Key contrasts

51. change vs alter

change is broad and very common.

alter usually means make something somewhat different without necessarily replacing it completely.

Compare:

* change the plan = 改變計畫

* alter the design slightly = 稍微修改設計

alter is generally more formal.

52. change vs replace

change

can mean make different OR replace.

replace

specifically means remove one thing and put another in its place.

Compare:

> We changed the design.

> 我們修改了設計。

> We replaced the old computer.

> 我們換掉了舊電腦。

53. change vs switch

often emphasizes moving from one option, system, position, or setting to another.

change is broader.

Compare:

* switch channels

* change channels

Both are natural.

But:

* change your personality ✓

* switch your personality ✗ in ordinary usage

54. change vs transform

change

= become or make different

transform

= change dramatically into something significantly different

徹底改變；轉化

Compare:

> The experience changed her.

> 那次經歷改變了她。

> The experience transformed her life.

> 那次經歷徹底改變了她的人生。

transform is much stronger.

55. change vs develop

= grow or progress over time

change

= simply become different, whether better, worse, or neutral

A person can change without necessarily developing.
