MCQ-ready definition:

folder = a person or machine that folds something, especially paper

This is far less important than the document/digital senses.

Important distinction 1: folder vs file

This is crucial for your passage.

folder

container/location that organizes files.

file

individual digital item.

> shared folder

共享資料夾

> presentation file

簡報檔案

Kevin checked the folder but opened the wrong file.

Important distinction 2: folder vs document

folder

contains or organizes documents/files.

the actual piece of content.

> folder = 容器

> document = 內容 / 文件

Important distinction 3: digital folder vs physical folder

Digital

> Open the folder.

打開電腦資料夾。

Physical

> Put the papers in the folder.

把文件放進文件夾。

Same core concept: a container used to organize things, but one is virtual and one physical.

Important distinction 4: folder vs directory

In computing:

folder

user-friendly everyday term.

directory

more technical filesystem term.

They often refer to essentially the same structural concept, though exact technical distinctions can depend on system/context.

For normal learners:

> folder = 資料夾

> directory = 目錄 / 資料夾 (較技術)

Important distinction 5: folder vs drive

folder

an organizational container inside storage.

drive

a larger storage device/location.

A drive can contain many folders.

> drive → folder → subfolder → file

Important distinction 6: folder vs cloud

cloud

remote online storage/service.

folder

an organizational container within that storage.

So:

> upload to the cloud

上傳到雲端

> save in the shared folder

儲存在共享資料夾

Important distinction 7: shared folder vs shared file

shared folder

contains multiple files and can be shared as a whole.

shared file

one specific file is shared.

In group projects, a shared folder is useful because everyone can access multiple related files.

Important distinction 8: subfolder vs folder

folder

any folder.

subfolder

specifically a folder contained inside another folder.

Important distinction 9: folder path vs filename

folder path

where the folder is located.

filename

the name of the specific file.

These are different navigation concepts.

Important distinction 10: folder structure vs file organization

folder structure

the hierarchy of folders/subfolders.

file organization

broader arrangement of files, naming, categories, etc.

Family-extension note

Folder is semantically fairly concentrated.

Its main branches are:

1. digital container

- * shared folder
- * subfolder
- * folder path

2. physical document container

- * file folder
- * document folder
- * presentation folder

3. folding tool/person

- * paper folder
- * letter folder

The first two meanings are closely connected:

physical folder containing papers → digital folder containing files

For your passage, the exact meaning is the digital one.

Master comparison

Form / expression	Traditional Chinese	Core idea
-----	-----	-----
folder (digital)	資料夾	stores files
shared folder	共享資料夾	team access
open a folder	打開資料夾	view contents

save in a folder	儲存在資料夾中	storage location
move to a folder	移到資料夾	relocate file
subfolder	子資料夾	folder inside folder
folder structure	資料夾結構	hierarchy
folder path	資料夾路徑	location
folder icon	資料夾圖示	interface symbol
folder (physical)	文件夾；檔案夾	paper container
file folder	文件夾	paper filing
document folder	文件夾	document storage
presentation folder	展示 / 簡報文件夾	formal paper presentation
folder (machine/person)	摺疊機 / 摺疊者	folds material

For your original sentence

> Later that evening, Kevin checked the shared folder again and realised that he had opened the wrong file.

Here:

shared folder = 小組成員共同使用、存放簡報相關檔案的電子資料夾

A natural Traditional Chinese rendering is:

> 到了當天晚上較後的時候，Kevin 再次檢查共享資料夾，才發現自己打開了錯的檔案。

The key contrast in the sentence is especially neat:

> folder = 存放 / 整理檔案的位置

> file = 資料夾裏其中一個具體檔案
