

Word family: funny / funnier / funniest / funnily / funniness

Base word: funny

Comparative: funnier

Superlative: funniest

Related forms: funnily, funniness

Useful expressions / extensions: funny story, funny feeling, funny look, funny business, funny thing, funny bone

Part of speech: mainly adjective (形容詞) / adverb and noun derivatives (相關副詞及名詞)

Your sentence:

> “He was full of energy, but at the same time he was warm, funny, and surprisingly thoughtful...”

Meaning in this passage

Here, funny means:

> amusing and able to make people laugh

The speaker likes Leo partly because he has a naturally humorous personality.

繁體中文： 有趣而令人發笑的；幽默的；能逗人笑的

中文翻譯：

> “He was warm, funny, and surprisingly thoughtful.”

「他很溫暖、很幽默有趣，而且出乎意料地細心。」

Here:

funny = 幽默、好笑，能自然地逗人開心

1. funny = humorous / amusing (好笑的) — 好笑的；幽默的

This is the exact sense in your passage.

Practice 1 — Original

> “He was warm, funny, and surprisingly thoughtful.”

「他很溫暖、很幽默有趣，而且出乎意料地細心。」

Practice 2

> “Leo told me a really funny story.”

「Leo 跟我說了一個非常好笑的故事。」

Practice 3

> “She is naturally funny without trying too hard.”

「她不用刻意搞笑，本身就很幽默。」 funny = 能令人覺得有趣、發笑或感到歡樂的

2. funny person (幽默的人) — 風趣的；會逗人笑的

Practice 4

> “He is one of the funniest people I know.”

「他是我認識的人之中最*風趣*的其中一個。」

Practice 5

> “Her father is very funny.”

「她爸爸非常*幽默*。」

funny person = 很會逗人笑、經常說或做有趣事情的人

This is different from saying:

> “He looks funny.”

which may mean he looks strange.

3. funny = strange / unusual (奇怪的) — 奇怪的；不尋常的

A major separate meaning.

Practice 6

> “That’s funny. I was sure I left my keys here.”

「真奇怪，我明明記得把鎖匙放在這裡。」

Practice 7

> “There is something funny about this situation.”

「這個情況有點不對勁 / 奇怪。」

funny = 與正常情況不同，令人覺得奇怪、意外或難以解釋的

This meaning does not necessarily involve laughter.

4. funny = suspicious / not quite right (可疑的) — 不對勁的；可疑的

A closely related but useful branch.

Practice 8

> “Something funny is going on.”

「好像有甚麼不對勁 / 可疑的事情正在發生。」

Practice 9

> “The figures look a bit funny to me.”

「我覺得這些數字看起來有點可疑 / 不太對勁。」 funny = 令人懷疑可能有問題、欺騙或異常情況的

This grows from the “strange” sense but often carries stronger suspicion.

5. funny = physically strange / not normal (身體感覺不對勁) — 怪怪的；不舒服的

A common everyday use.

Practice 10

> “My stomach feels funny.”

「我的胃感覺怪怪的 / 有點不舒服。」

Practice 11

> “My leg has felt funny since this morning.”

「我的腿從今早開始一直感覺不太對勁。」 feel funny = 身體出現難以明確描述、不同於正常狀態的感覺

Depending on context, it may mean:

* uncomfortable

* dizzy

* numb

* sick

* strange

So funny is deliberately vague here.

6. funny feeling (奇怪的感覺 / 預感) — 怪怪的感覺 ; 不祥 / 特殊預感

This can be physical or intuitive.

Practice 12

> “I have a funny feeling in my arm.”

「我的手臂有一種*奇怪的感覺*。」

Practice 13

> “I have a funny feeling that we’ve forgotten something.”

「我有一種*奇怪的預感*，覺得我們好像忘了甚麼。」 funny feeling = 難以清楚解釋的身體感覺或直覺 / 預感

Context decides the meaning.

7. funny = behaving strangely (行為反常) — 怪怪的 ; 反常的

Practice 14

> “He has been acting funny all day.”

「他今天一整天都表現得怪怪的 / 不太正常。」

Practice 15

> “Why are you being funny with me?”

「你為甚麼對我怪怪的 / 態度反常？」 act/be funny = 表現得不正常、不自然或和平時不同

Depending on tone, it can also suggest:

* evasive

* awkward

* unfriendly

8. funny look (奇怪的表情 / 眼神) — 古怪的眼神；異樣表情

Practice 16

> “She gave me a funny look.”

「她用一種奇怪的眼神看我。」

Practice 17

> “People gave him funny looks when he wore the costume.”

「他穿著那套服裝時，大家都用異樣的眼光看他。」 funny look = 表示疑惑、驚訝、不贊同或覺得事情古怪的表情 / 眼神

9. funny = visually odd / unusual-looking (外表古怪) — 看起來怪怪的

Practice 18

> “That hat looks funny on you.”

「那頂帽子戴在你頭上看起來有點怪。」

Practice 19

> “The drawing looks funny because one side is too large.”

「這幅畫看起來有點不對勁，因為一邊畫得太大。」

look funny = 外觀與正常 / 預期不同，顯得古怪或不協調

This may or may not mean “comical.”

10. funny = ironic / curious coincidence (巧合得有趣 / 奇妙) — 真巧；有意思

A useful discourse use.

Practice 20

> “It’s funny that we both chose the same book.”

「真巧 / 有意思，我們兩個都選了同一本書。」

Practice 21

> “Funny how things change.”

「事情的變化真是耐人尋味 / 很奇妙。」

funny = 某件事因巧合、反差或出乎意料而令人覺得有意思

This may contain little or no actual humour.

11. the funny thing is... (有趣 / 奇怪的是.....) — 有趣的是；奇怪的是

A very common discourse pattern.

Practice 22

> “The funny thing is, I wasn’t nervous at all.”

「奇怪的是 / 有趣的是，我當時完全不緊張。」

Practice 23

> “The funny thing is, we had met before.”

「有意思的是，原來我們以前已經見過。」

the funny thing is = 用來引出一件出乎意料、帶反差或值得注意的事情

The Chinese depends on whether the idea is:

* humorous → 有趣的是

* surprising/odd → 奇怪的是

12. funny business (不正當 / 可疑行為) — 可疑勾當；古怪把戲

An established fixed expression.

Practice 24

> “I don’t want any funny business.”

「我不想看到任何可疑 / 不正當的行為。」

Practice 25

> “The manager suspected some funny business with the accounts.”

「經理懷疑帳目中有一些可疑勾當。」

funny business = 不誠實、可疑、不正當或胡鬧的行為

Register:

> informal

This has little to do with being amusing.

13. funny money (假鈔 / 可疑資金) — 假錢；來歷可疑的錢

An informal lexicalized expression.

Practice 26

> “The shopkeeper realized the customer had used funny money.”

「店主發現顧客用了假鈔。」

Practice 27

> “Investigators were looking for signs of funny money.”

「調查人員正在尋找來歷可疑資金的跡象。」

funny money = 假鈔，或在某些語境下指不正常 / 可疑的資金

Register: informal.

14. funny bone (手肘敏感處) — 麻筋；尺神經附近的敏感位置

A common compound.

Practice 28

> “I hit my funny bone on the table.”

「我的手肘撞到麻筋位置了。」

Practice 29

> “Hitting your funny bone can cause a tingling sensation.”

「撞到手肘的麻筋會產生一陣刺麻感。」 funny bone = 手肘內側附近、撞到時會產生強烈麻痺 / 刺痛感的位置

Despite the name, it is not a bone that is literally “funny.”

15. funny bone = sense of humour (幽默感) — 幽默感

A figurative extension of the same expression.

Practice 30

> “That joke really hit my funny bone.”

「那個笑話真的很對我的幽默感 / 笑點。」

Practice 31

> “The show appeals to my funny bone.”

「這個節目很合我的笑點。」

funny bone = 一個人的幽默感或覺得甚麼好笑的傾向

Less common than the anatomical use but established.

16. funnily = in an amusing way (好笑地) — 滑稽地 ; 有趣地

Practice 32

> “He told the story funnily.”

「他把故事說得很好笑。」

Practice 33

> “She described the scene funnily but accurately.”

「她把那個場景描述得既幽默又準確。」

funnily = 以令人發笑或覺得有趣的方式

In everyday English, speakers often prefer:

> “in a funny way”

depending on context.

17. funnily enough = strangely/interestingly enough (說來也巧 / 奇怪的是) — 說來也巧 ; 有趣的是

A very useful fixed expression.

Practice 34

> “Funnily enough, I was thinking about him yesterday.”

「說來也巧，我昨天才在想他。」

Practice 35

> “Funnily enough, we chose exactly the same colour.”

「真巧，我們竟然選了完全一樣的颜色。」 funnily enough = 用來引出巧合、意外或有趣地出乎預期的事情

This does not usually mean “in a humorous way.”

18. funniness = quality of being funny (好笑程度 / 古怪程度) — 幽默感 ; 滑稽 / 奇怪的特質

Practice 36

> “The funniness of the scene comes from the characters’ reactions.”

「這個場景的*好笑之處*來自角色的反應。」

Practice 37

> “There was a certain funniness about the situation.”

「那個情況有一種說不出的*古怪感*。」

funniness = 某事令人發笑，或顯得奇怪、不尋常的性質

This noun is much less common than humour, strangeness, or phrases such as what makes it funny.

Important distinction: funny vs fun

This is essential.

funny

= makes you laugh / strange

> “He is funny.”

= 他很幽默。

fun

= enjoyable

> “He is fun to be with.”

= 和他相處很開心。

A person can be:

> fun but not funny

= 很好玩、相處愉快，但未必幽默。

And:

> funny but not fun

= 很會講笑話，但未必容易相處。

So:

funny ≠ fun

Important distinction: funny vs humorous

funny

is the ordinary everyday word.

humorous

means deliberately or naturally amusing and is somewhat more formal.

> “a funny story”

very ordinary.

> “a humorous essay” slightly more formal/literary.

Also, humorous usually does not mean “strange,” while funny can.

Important distinction: funny vs amusing*

funny

often means:

> actually makes you laugh.

amusing

often means:

> entertaining or mildly funny.

> “The story was amusing.”

may suggest a smile rather than strong laughter.

Important distinction: funny vs hilarious*

funny

= amusing.

hilarious

= extremely funny.

> funny joke

> hilarious joke

So hilarious is much stronger.

Important distinction: funny vs strange*

These overlap strongly in one branch.

strange

directly means:

> unusual / unfamiliar / difficult to explain.

funny

can mean the same informally:

> “That smells funny.”

= 那聞起來怪怪的。

But funny is usually more conversational and can be deliberately vague.

Important distinction: funny vs weird

funny — strange

often means:

> slightly odd or not quite right.

weird

usually sounds stronger:

> very strange / unusual.

> “Something smells funny.”

can simply suggest the smell is unusual.

> “Something smells weird.”

sounds more explicitly strange.

Important distinction: funny vs suspicious

funny

can indirectly suggest:

> something does not seem right.

suspicious states more directly that:

> there may be dishonesty, danger, or wrongdoing.

> “The accounts look funny.”

is informal and indirect.

> “The accounts look suspicious.”

is more explicit.

Important distinction: funny person vs funny-looking person a funny person usually:

> 幽默的人

a funny-looking person

usually:

> 外表有點古怪的人

The word looking changes the interpretation dramatically.

Important distinction: feel funny vs feel amused

feel funny usually means:

> 身體 / 感覺怪怪的

or sometimes:

> 感到有點不自在

It does not normally mean:

> “I feel amused.”

So:

> “My stomach feels funny.”

= 我的胃不太舒服 / 怪怪的。

not:

> 我的胃覺得很好笑。 ❌

Important distinction: funny feeling — physical vs intuitive

Physical:

> “I have a funny feeling in my hand.”

= 我的手有種怪怪的感覺。

Intuitive:

> “I have a funny feeling that he won’t come.”

= 我有種奇怪的預感，覺得他不會來。

Same phrase, different contextual interpretation.

Important distinction: funny = amusing vs funny = strange

This is the central polysemy.

Amusing:

> “That joke is funny.”

= 那個笑話很好笑。

Strange:

> “That noise sounds funny.”

= 那個聲音聽起來怪怪的。

Learners cannot safely translate funny as 「好笑」 every time.

Important distinction: funny business vs funny story

funny story

= 好笑的故事

funny business

usually:

= 可疑 / 不正當的行為

So the same adjective can point to completely different senses depending on the collocation.

Important distinction: funnily vs funnily enough

funnily

= in an amusing way.

> “He spoke funnily.”

funnily enough

= strangely/coincidentally enough.

> “Funnily enough, I saw him yesterday.”

The fixed expression has developed a separate discourse function.

Important distinction: funny vs comic/comical comic often relates to comedy as a genre or deliberate humorous effect.

comical means:

> amusing because something looks or seems ridiculous.

funny

is the broad everyday word.

> funny person

> comic actor

> comical expression

Important distinction: funny vs ridiculous

funny

may be positive:

> amusing

ridiculous

often means:

> absurd, unreasonable, or deserving mockery.

Something ridiculous may be funny, but ridiculous is often more critical.

Family-extension note

Funny is a strong polysemy candidate because it has two major everyday semantic centres:

* amusing / humorous
 * strange / not normal

From the second branch, several established contextual extensions develop:

* suspicious / not quite right
 * physically odd → feel funny
 * behaving strangely → act funny
 * curious coincidence → It's funny that...
 * funnily enough → 說來也巧

There are also lexicalized compounds and expressions:

* funny business
 * funny money
 * funny bone

The derivational family itself is relatively small:

* funnier
 * funniest
 * funnily
 * funniness

We should therefore be exhaustive with the major constructions but conservative about splitting every “strange” context into a completely separate dictionary meaning. That matches the manual’s principle of broad search with conservative semantic division.

Master comparison

Form / sense	MCQ-ready Traditional Chinese meaning
-----	-----
funny — humorous	能令人覺得有趣、發笑或感到歡樂的
funny person	很會逗人笑、經常說或做有趣事情的人
funny — strange	與正常 / 預期不同，令人覺得奇怪或難以解釋的
funny — suspicious	因顯得異常而令人懷疑有問題、不誠實或不對勁的 feel funny	身體或感覺出現難以明確描述的不正常狀態
funny feeling — physical	難以清楚描述的奇怪身體感覺
funny feeling — intuition	一種難以解釋的直覺或預感 act/be funny	行為 / 態度反常、不自然或和平時不同
funny look	表示疑惑、驚訝、不滿或覺得古怪的表情 / 眼神
look funny	外觀與正常 / 預期不同，顯得古怪或不協調
funny — coincidence	某事因巧合、反差或意外而令人覺得有意思
the funny thing is...	引出一件出乎意料、帶反差或值得注意的事情

funny business	不誠實、可疑、不正當或胡鬧的行為
funny money	假鈔或來歷 / 性質可疑的資金
funny bone — anatomy	手肘附近撞到會產生強烈麻刺感的位置
funny bone — humour	一個人的幽默感 / 笑點
funnily	以令人發笑或覺得有趣的方式
funnily enough	用來引出巧合、意外或有趣地出乎預期的事情；說來也巧
funniness	某事令人發笑或顯得奇怪的性質

For your original sentence

> “He was full of energy, but at the same time he was warm, funny, and surprisingly thoughtful...”

The exact meaning is:

funny = 很幽默、有趣，能令人發笑和感到開心的

Therefore:

> he was funny

= 「他很幽默 / 很會逗人開心」

This is the amusing-personality sense.

It does not mean:

> He was strange.

> = 他很古怪。

That distinction matters a lot with funny, because:

> a funny child

can potentially mean either:

* 一個很幽默、好笑的小朋友

* 一個有點古怪的小朋友

Context resolves it.

In your passage, the surrounding positive description—> warm, funny, and surprisingly thoughtful —makes the intended meaning clearly:

> 幽默、有趣、討人喜歡.