Passage recap

The passage contains two useful realizations:

> “...most people type far more than they write by hand.”

Here:

by hand

= manually rather than using a keyboard

→ 手寫；用手

And:

> “It looked elegant, felt solid in my hand...”

Here:

hand

= the physical body part used to hold the pen

→ 手；手中

Natural contextual translations:

> write by hand

> → 手寫

> felt solid in my hand

> → 拿在手上感覺很扎實 / 很有份量

Passage MCQ-ready meaning

hand in “by hand”

= using the hands rather than a machine

用手；人手

hand in “in my hand”

= the body part at the end of the arm used for holding things

手；手掌

The passage therefore nicely contrasts:

> type

> → 鍵盤打字

with:

> write by hand

> → 手寫

while also emphasizing the physical experience of the gift:

> in my hand

> → 真正拿著那支鋼筆時的觸感.
