Informal but now very common.

29. handle = nickname/name (稱號 / 名字 ; 非正式) — 名號 ; 暱稱

The online sense developed from an older informal naming sense.

Practice 58

> “He goes by the handle ‘Ace.’”

「他用『Ace』這個名號 / 暱稱。」

Practice 59

> “What handle do you use on the forum?”

「你在論壇使用甚麼網名？」 handle = 非正式用來指某人的名稱、暱稱或識別名稱

「她對這個情況掌握得很好。」 have a handle on = 已經對某件事有足夠理解和控制能力

32. lose your handle/grip on something (失去掌控；較少見) — 失去控制

The ordinary modern expression is more often:

> lose your grip on rather than:

> lose your handle on

So this should not be treated as a major handle expression.

The useful learner form is:

> get/have a handle on

33. fly off the handle (突然發脾氣) — 勃然大怒 ; 突然失控

A major idiom.

Practice 64

> “He flew off the handle when he saw the mistake.”

「他看到錯誤後突然大發脾氣。」

Practice 65

> “There’s no need to fly off the handle.”

「沒必要突然發火 / 暴怒。」

fly off the handle = 突然失去情緒控制並非常生氣

This expression is unrelated to physically holding a handle in modern use, though historically metaphorical.

34. too hot to handle (棘手 / 難以控制) — 太棘手 ; 難以應付

An idiomatic extension.

> “The event handler runs when the user clicks the button.”

「用戶按下按鈕時，事件處理程序便會執行。」

handler = 電腦系統中負責回應 / 處理特定事件、錯誤或資料的程式元件

Useful technical extension, but clearly domain-specific.

Important distinction: handle vs deal with

These are very close in your passage sense.

handle

often suggests:

- * manage effectively;
- * take responsibility;
- * keep something under control.

deal with

is broader:

- * take action regarding something;
- * respond to something.

Compare:

> “I handled the problem.”

often suggests:

> I managed it successfully.

> “I dealt with the problem.”

simply means:

> I took action on it.

So handle can imply stronger competence/control.

Important distinction: handle vs manage

handle

often focuses on:

> successfully dealing with a particular situation/task.

manage

can mean:

- * organize/control ongoing work;
- * succeed in doing something;
- * supervise people/resources.

Compare:

> “She handled the complaint well.”

= 她把投訴處理得很好。

> “She manages the customer-service team.”

= 她管理客戶服務團隊。

They overlap, but manage is broader in organizational leadership.

Important distinction: handle vs solve

handle

= deal with/manage a problem.

= find the answer and remove the problem.

You can:

> handle a difficult situation well

without completely:

> solving it.

So:

handle = 處理 / 應付

solve = 解決

Important distinction: handle vs cope with

handle

can be practical/professional:

> handle a task, complaint, project.

cope with

focuses on surviving/managing difficulty, especially stress or unpleasant situations:

> cope with anxiety

> cope with loss

For your passage:

> handle the challenge

emphasizes taking effective action.

> cope with the stress

would emphasize emotionally getting through the stress.

Important distinction: handle vs face

face a challenge

= confront it rather than avoid it.

handle a challenge

= manage/deal with it once confronted.

So the sequence can be:

> face the challenge → handle the challenge.

Important distinction: handle vs control

handle

= manage appropriately.

control

= have power over behaviour, movement, or outcome.

You can handle a difficult conversation well even if you cannot control the other person.

So handle does not always mean complete control.

Important distinction: handle vs touch touch

= make physical contact.

handle

= touch, hold, move, or manipulate something, often with a purpose.

> “Do not touch the artwork.”

= 不要碰。

> “Only trained staff may handle the artwork.”

= 只有受訓人員可以拿取 / 搬動 / 處理。

Handle usually implies more interaction than a brief touch.

Important distinction: handle vs hold

hold

= have something in your hands.

handle

= touch/manipulate/use it.

= 拿著相機。

= 小心操作 / 拿取相機。

Important distinction: handle vs operate

operate

specifically means use/control a machine/system.

handle

is broader and may include:

- * hold;
- * move;
- * use;
- * control.

> “Only trained staff may operate the machine.”

more technical.

> “Handle the equipment carefully.”

broader physical interaction.

Important distinction: handle pressure vs withstand pressure

handle pressure

often refers to a person functioning effectively under psychological/work pressure.

withstand pressure

often emphasizes not being damaged or defeated by force/stress.

It can describe:

- * materials;
- * systems;
- * people.

For workplace confidence:

> handle pressure

is much more natural.

Important distinction: can't handle vs can't stand

These can overlap in emotional contexts.

can't handle

= cannot cope/manage.

can't stand

= strongly dislike/cannot tolerate.

> “I can't stand that noise.”

With handle, the issue may be ability rather than dislike.

Important distinction: handle someone vs treat someone handle someone

= manage/respond to the person, often because they are difficult or require skill.

treat someone

= behave toward them in a particular way.

> “She handled the angry customer well.”

= 她應對得很好。

> “She treated the customer respectfully.”

= 她很尊重地對待客戶。

Different focus.

Important distinction: handling vs management

handling often refers to:

> how one specific matter was dealt with.

> “the handling of the complaint”

management

can mean:

* ongoing control/organization;

* the people managing an organization.

So:

handling = 某件事情的處理方式

management = 管理活動 / 管理層

Important distinction: handle — verb vs handle — noun

Verb:

> “I can handle the challenge.”

= 我能應付挑戰。

Noun:

> “Turn the handle.”

= 轉動把手。

Same spelling, completely different grammatical and semantic role.

Important distinction: get a handle on vs understand understand

= know what something means/how it works.

get a handle on

= begin to understand it sufficiently to manage/control it.

> “I understand the problem.”

= 我明白問題。

> “I’m getting a handle on the problem.”

= 我逐漸掌握這個問題，也開始知道怎樣處理。

The idiom combines understanding with practical control.

Important distinction: handle vs handler

handle

can be:

* verb: 處理

* noun: 把手 / 網名

handler

= person/system component that handles something.

Examples:

* animal handler

* baggage handler

* error handler

Do not confuse the two.

Family-extension sweep

The practical handle family is rich in management, physical manipulation, control, capacity, and noun uses:

* handle a challenge/problem/situation = 處理 / 應付

* handle pressure/stress = 應付壓力

* handle a task/workload = 處理任務 / 工作量

* handle responsibility = 承擔 / 應付責任

* handle customers/people = 應對人

- * handle complaints/cases = 處理 / 跟進
- * handle data/information = 處理資料
- * handle money/accounts = 管理 / 經手金錢
- * handle a project/event = 負責 / 管理
- * handle physically = 拿取 / 搬動 / 觸碰
- * handle with care = 小心輕放
- * handle equipment/tools = 操作設備
- * handle a vehicle = 操控車輛
- * system can handle X = 系統能處理 / 承受某負荷
- * can't handle something = 受不了 / 應付不了
- * handle something professionally = 專業地處理
- * handle negotiations/inquiries = 負責談判 / 查詢
- * handle goods/luggage = 搬運 / 處理貨物
- * handling — management = 處理方式
- * handling — physical = 搬運 / 操作
- * handling — vehicle = 操控性能
- * handling fee = 手續費 / 處理費
- * handle — noun = 把手 / 手柄
- * door/suitcase/tool handle = 門把 / 手挽 / 工具柄
- * online handle = 網名 / 帳號名稱
- * get a handle on = 開始掌握 / 了解並控制
- * have a handle on = 已掌握
- * fly off the handle = 突然發怒
- * too hot to handle = 太棘手 / 難以處理
- * handle yourself = 自己能應付 / 保護自己
- * handle yourself well = 應對得體
- * handler = 處理 / 管理 / 操作的人
- * animal handler = 動物管理 / 訓練員
- * baggage handler = 行李處理員
- * event/error handler = 事件 / 錯誤處理程序

The main semantic branches are:

> deal with / manage > physically touch / manipulate > operate / control

> have capacity for > part designed to be held

> name/identifier

with several important idiomatic extensions.

The exact meaning is:

handle = 採取有效方法去應付、管理和面對一個困難情況

Therefore:

> handle the challenge

= 「應付 / 處理這個挑戰」

The sentence does not mean:

> physically hold the challenge and it is stronger than merely:

> notice the challenge.

It means that you actively did things to make the challenge manageable.

In your passage, the sequence is essentially:

> challenge appears

> → you decide not to avoid it

> → you prepare carefully

> → you handle it

So the key mapping is:

handle = deal with effectively / manage

The most important learner contrasts are:

> handle a challenge

> = 應付挑戰

> handle pressure

> = 應付壓力 > handle a complaint

> = 處理投訴

> handle data

> = 處理數據

> handle equipment carefully

> = 小心操作 / 拿取設備

> the car handles well

> = 車輛操控性能良好

> the system can handle the load

> = 系統能承受 / 處理負荷

> door handle

> = 門把

> social-media handle

> = 社交媒體帳號名稱 / 網名

> get a handle on the problem

> = 開始掌握 / 弄清楚問題

> fly off the handle

> = 突然大發脾氣

So handle is much richer than simply:

> handle = 處理

and in your original sentence it specifically means:

“to manage and deal effectively with a difficult challenge.”
