

Word family: hope / hopes / hoped / hoping / hopeful / hopefully / hopeless / hopelessly / hopelessness

Base word: hope

Past tense: hoped

Past participle: hoped

 -ing form: hoping

Related forms: hopeful, hopefully, hopeless, hopelessly, hopelessness

Part of speech: verb (動詞) / noun (名詞) / adjective-related forms (相關形容詞)

Your sentence:

> “In the future, I hope I can stay as curious as he is...”

Meaning in this passage

Here, hope means to want something desirable to happen or be true in the future while believing that it is reasonably possible.

The speaker wants to remain curious like Mr. Wong in the future.

繁體中文： 希望某件理想或令人期待的事情將來會發生或成真，同時認為它具有一定可能性

中文翻譯：

> “In the future, I hope I can stay as curious as he is...”

「將來，我希望自己也能像他一樣保持好奇心.....」

Here:

hope + clause = 希望某件理想的事情將會發生或成真

1. hope + that-clause / hope to + verb (願望 / 未來) — 希望 ; 期望

This is the meaning used in your passage.

Meaning: To want something desirable to happen or be true and believe there is some possibility that it will.

Practice 1 — Original

> “In the future, I hope I can stay as curious as he is.”

「將來，我希望自己也能像他一樣保持好奇心。」

Practice 2

> “I hope everything goes well tomorrow.”

「我希望明天一切順利。」

Practice 3

> “She hopes to become a journalist one day.”

「她希望有一天成為記者。」 hope = 希望某件理想或令人期待的事情發生，並認為它有一定可能實現

Common patterns:

- * hope that...
- * hope to do something
- * hope someone can/will...
- * I hope so
- * I hope not

These belong to the same basic desire + possibility sense.

2. hope for + thing/result (期望某事) — 希望得到；期待

Hope can take a noun rather than a full clause.

Practice 4

> “We are hoping for good weather.”

「我們希望 / 期待有好天氣。」

Practice 5

> “She hoped for a positive result.”

「她希望得到一個正面的結果。」 hope for something = 希望某件理想的事物、結果或情況出現

For database counting, I would merge this with Meaning 1.

The grammatical structure changes, but the semantic concept remains:

> want a desirable outcome that is considered possible

The Golden Manual specifically says grammatical or contextual differences should not automatically become separate lexical meanings when the underlying semantic idea stays the same.

3. hope = feeling/belief that something good may happen (名詞) — 希望；期望

As a noun, hope can mean the emotional state or belief that a desirable outcome is possible.

Practice 6

> “There is still hope that the situation will improve.”

「情況仍然有改善的希望。」

Practice 7

> “She refused to give up hope.”

「她拒絕放棄希望。」 hope = 相信某件理想事情仍有可能發生而產生的期待和信念

This is the noun counterpart of the verb, but it is useful to keep explicitly because its grammar changes substantially.

4. a hope / hopes = particular expectation or ambition (具體願望) — 願望；期望

In countable use, hope can mean a particular thing that someone wants to happen.

Practice 8

> “Her greatest hope is to travel the world.”

「她最大的願望是環遊世界。」

Practice 9

> “They have high hopes for the new project.”

「他們對新項目抱有很高的期望。」

a hope / hopes = 某人希望將來能實現的一個具體願望、期望或理想結果

This is closely connected to Meaning 3, but countability creates a useful learner distinction:

> hope = 希望這種感覺 / 信念

> a hope = 一個具體願望

For core semantic counting, I would usually keep them under one broader noun meaning.

5. hope = person/thing that may provide success or improvement (希望所在) — 希望；寄望對象

A person, plan, possibility, etc. can itself be called someone's hope.

Practice 10

> “The new treatment may be their best hope.”

「這種新療法可能是他們最大的希望所在。」

Practice 11

> “She was the team’s last hope of winning.”

「她是球隊取得勝利的最後希望。」

someone/something is a hope = 某人或某事物被視為最有可能帶來理想結果、改善或成功的對象

This is different enough to teach separately because hope now refers to the source or means of achieving the desired outcome, not merely the feeling itself.

6. hope = possibility/chance of a positive outcome (可能性) — 希望；可能性

Sometimes hope means the actual possibility that something desirable can still happen.

Practice 12

> “Is there any hope of finding the missing document?”

「還有沒有希望 / 可能找到那份遺失的文件？」

Practice 13

> “There is little hope of finishing on time.”

「準時完成的希望 / 可能性很小。」 hope of something = 某個理想結果仍然存在的實際可能性

This is closely related to the emotional noun sense, but the focus shifts from:

> what someone feels to:

> whether the outcome is realistically possible

I would keep it explicit, although it can be merged with the broader noun sense in a conservative database.

Related form: hopeful

Hopeful has two especially useful meanings.

hopeful = feeling optimistic (有希望的 / 抱有希望的)

Practice 14

> “She is hopeful that the plan will succeed.”

「她很有希望 / 樂觀地期待這個計劃會成功。」

Practice 15

> “Despite the difficulties, he remained hopeful.”

「儘管遇到困難，他仍然抱有希望 / 保持樂觀。」 hopeful = 相信理想結果仍有可能發生，因此保持期待或樂觀的 hopeful = promising / giving reason for hope (帶來希望的) **

Practice 16

> “The early results are hopeful.”

「初步結果令人感到*有希望*。」

Practice 17

> “There are some hopeful signs of recovery.”

「出現了一些*令人抱有希望的康復跡象*。」 hopeful = 顯示事情可能有良好結果，因此令人產生希望的

This use exists, although promising is often more natural for results/signs in modern English.

Related form: hopefully

Hopefully has two important uses.

hopefully = in a hopeful manner (懷着希望地) **

Practice 18

> “She looked at him hopefully.”

「她*滿懷希望地*看着他。」 hopefully = 帶着希望、期待或樂觀情緒地

hopefully = it is hoped that... (希望.....) **

Very common in modern English:

Practice 19

> “Hopefully, the weather will improve tomorrow.”

「希望明天天氣會好轉。」

Practice 20

> “Hopefully, we’ll finish before six.”

「希望我們六點前可以完成。」 hopefully = 用來表達說話者希望接下來所說的事情會發生

This sentence-adverb use is extremely common.

Related form: hopeless

Hopeless has more than one useful branch.

hopeless = with no reasonable chance of success (沒有希望的) **

Practice 21

> “The situation seemed hopeless.”

「情況看起來*毫無希望*。」

Practice 22

> “They thought the rescue attempt was hopeless.”

「他們認為救援行動已經*沒有成功希望*。」 hopeless = 幾乎沒有可能得到理想結果、改善或成功的

hopeless at + activity (非常不擅長) — 很差勁的 ; 完全不擅長的

This is a common informal extension, especially in British English.

Practice 23

> “I’m hopeless at remembering names.”

「我在記人名方面非常不擅長。」

Practice 24

> “He’s hopeless at cooking.”

「他煮食方面完全不在行。」

hopeless at something = 在某項活動或能力方面非常差，幾乎做不好；較口語

This is a genuinely useful family-extension meaning.

Related form: hopelessly

Practice 25

> “They were hopelessly lost.”

「他們完全迷路了 / 迷路得毫無辦法。」

Practice 26

> “He is hopelessly optimistic.”

「他樂觀得近乎不切實際。」 hopelessly = 程度非常嚴重或幾乎無法改善地

Depending on the adjective, it often intensifies a negative or extreme condition.

Related form: hopelessness

Practice 27

> “A sense of hopelessness spread through the group.”

「團隊中逐漸出現一種絕望感。」

Practice 28

> “The programme aims to reduce feelings of hopelessness.”

「這項計劃旨在減少人們的絕望感。」

hopelessness = 覺得事情沒有改善或成功可能而產生的絕望狀態

Fixed expression: I hope so / I hope not — 希望如此 / 希望不是

Practice 29

> “Will he come tomorrow?”

> “I hope so.”

「他明天會來嗎？」

「我*希望會 / 希望如此*。」

Practice 30

> “Do you think it will rain?”

> “I hope not.”

「你覺得會下雨嗎？」

「我*希望不會*。」

hope so/not = 用 so / not 代替前面整個希望發生或不發生的內容

This is a grammatical construction rather than a new meaning of hope.

Fixed expression: hope for the best — 希望有最好的結果

Practice 31

> “We’ve done everything we can. Now we just have to hope for the best.”

「我們已經盡力了，現在只能*希望有最好的結果*。」

Practice 32

> “She submitted the application and hoped for the best.”

「她提交了申請，只能*期待最好的結果*。」

hope for the best = 在無法完全控制結果的情況下，希望事情最終順利

Fixed expression: get your hopes up — 抱太大期望

Practice 33

> “Don’t get your hopes up until we know the result.”

「在知道結果之前不要抱太大期望。」

Practice 34

> “I don’t want to get my hopes up too early.”

「我不想太早抱太大希望。」 get your hopes up = 開始對某個理想結果抱有很高期望，尤其當結果仍不確定時

Fixed expression: lose / give up hope — 失去 / 放棄希望

Practice 35

> “They never gave up hope.”

「他們從沒有放棄希望。」

Practice 36

> “She was beginning to lose hope.”

「她開始失去希望。」

These belong naturally to the noun hope = belief/expectation of a positive outcome sense.

Important distinction: hope vs wish

This is the most important learner contrast.

hope

usually concerns something considered possible or realistic.

> “I hope I pass the exam.”

「我希望考試合格。」 wish

often concerns:

- * unreal situations,
- * regrets,
- * things outside one's control,
- * formal expressions of goodwill.

> “I wish I were taller.”

「我希望自己高一點。」

— but the current reality is different.

So:

hope = 希望可能發生的事情

wish = 願望；常涉及與現實不同或較難改變的情況

Important distinction: hope vs expect

hope

focuses on what you want to happen.

expect focuses on what you believe is likely to happen.

> “I hope the train is on time.”

= 我希望火車準時。

> “I expect the train to be on time.”

= 我預計火車會準時。

You can:

> hope something happens without expecting it and:

> expect something undesirable to happen without hoping for it.

Important distinction: hope vs optimism

hope

usually concerns a particular desired outcome.

optimism

is a more general tendency to expect positive outcomes.

> “I have hope that things will improve.”

= 我希望事情會改善。

> “She is full of optimism.”

= 她整體上很樂觀。

Important distinction: hopeful vs optimistic

hopeful

often connects to a specific desired outcome.

> “I’m hopeful about the interview.”

optimistic can describe a broader positive expectation or outlook.

> “She is naturally optimistic.”

They overlap strongly, but hopeful is closely tied to hope for a result.

Family-extension note

The practical modern family includes:

* hope
* hoped
* hoping
* hopeful
* hopefully
* hopeless
* hopelessly
* hopelessness

Useful expressions include:

* hope that...
* hope to...
* hope for...
* I hope so
* I hope not
* hope for the best
* high hopes
* lose hope
* give up hope
* get your hopes up

The Manual says useful related forms and fixed expressions should be included, but overlapping contexts should still be merged when they share the same underlying semantic concept.

Master comparison

Form / sense	MCQ-ready Traditional Chinese meaning
-----	-----
hope — verb	希望某件理想或令人期待的事情將來會發生，並認為它具有一定可能性
hope — feeling/belief	相信某個理想結果仍有可能發生而產生的期待、信念和希望
a hope / hopes — particular wish	某人希望將來能實現的一個具體願望、期望或理想結果
hope — source of possibility	被視為最有可能帶來改善、成功或理想結果的人、方法或事物
hope — chance/possibility	某個理想結果實際仍然可能發生的程度或可能性
hopeful	相信理想結果仍有可能發生，因此保持希望或樂觀的
hopefully — manner	帶着希望、期待或樂觀情緒地

hopefully — sentence adverb	表示說話者希望接下來所述的事情會發生
hopeless — no chance	幾乎沒有成功、改善或得到理想結果的可能
hopeless at something	在某項活動或能力方面非常不擅長；較口語
hopelessness	覺得事情沒有改善或成功可能而產生的絕望狀態

For your original sentence

> “In the future, I hope I can stay as curious as he is...”

The exact meaning is:

hope = 希望某件理想而且仍有可能實現的事情將來會發生

More specifically:

I hope I can stay as curious as he is = 我希望自己將來也能一直保持像他那樣的好奇心

So:

> I hope...

= 我希望.....

For your database, I would count 3 genuinely distinct core meanings for hope:

1. verb — want a desirable outcome that is considered possible
2. noun — the feeling/belief or possibility that a desirable outcome may happen
3. noun — a person, thing, or possibility relied on as a source of future success or improvement

I would merge a particular hope / high hopes / hope of success / there is hope under #2 unless greater grammatical detail is needed, and keep hopeful, hopefully, hopeless, and the fixed expressions as family extensions rather than inflate the base-word count.