This is an established sense, but far less important for modern everyday learners.

Important distinction 1: page vs sheet

one side of a sheet, or the content on that side.

sheet

the whole physical piece of paper.

One sheet normally has:

- > two pages
- > front + back

So:

sheet = 一張紙

page = 一頁 / 一面

Important distinction 2: page vs paper

paper

material or a physical sheet/document.

one numbered or conceptual section of a book/document.

- > a sheet of paper

一張紙

> page 20

第 20 頁

Important distinction 3: page vs leaf

In book terminology:

leaf

one physical sheet in a bound book.

page

one side of that leaf.

So one leaf normally contains two pages.

Leaf is more technical/bookish.

Important distinction 4: page vs webpage

can mean either paper page or digital page.

webpage / web page explicitly digital.

> Turn the page.

翻頁。

> Refresh the web page.

重新整理網頁。

Important distinction 5: page vs website

website

the whole collection of interconnected web pages.

web page

one individual page within it.

A website may contain hundreds of pages.

Important distinction 6: page vs screen

page

organized unit of content.

screen

what is physically visible on the device at one moment.

A single web page may extend across many screens as you scroll.

Important distinction 7: page through vs read page through flip/browse through pages.

read

actually process the written content.

> I paged through the magazine.

我隨手翻了翻雜誌。

does not necessarily mean:

> I read the magazine carefully.

Important distinction 8: page someone vs call someone

call someone usually telephone them directly.

page someone

send a public/electronic alert asking them to respond.

> page the doctor

傳呼醫生

> call the doctor

打電話給醫生

Important distinction 9: page vs pager

page (verb)

send the alert.

pager (noun)

device that receives such alerts.

> Page the doctor.

傳呼醫生。

> The doctor carries a pager.

醫生帶着傳呼機。

Pager is closely related but is a separate device noun.

Important distinction 10: on the same page vs agree completely

On the same page usually means:

> shared understanding / aligned expectations

It does not necessarily mean everyone agrees on every opinion.

Two people may disagree about details while still being on the same page about the overall goal.

Important distinction 11: turn the page literal vs figurative

Literal

> Turn the page.

翻頁。

Figurative

> It's time to turn the page.

是時候*放下過去，進入新階段*。

This metaphor is one of the most important extensions of page.

Important distinction 12: page in history vs historical page

a page in history

figurative:

= 一段歷史 / 歷史篇章

a historical page

could simply mean an actual old page relating to history.

Context matters.

Important distinction 13: front page vs homepage

front page

traditionally newspaper:

= 頭版

home page

website:

= 首頁 / 主頁

They can both be “first pages,” but belong to different media.

Important distinction 14: pagination vs page number

page number

one number printed on one page.

pagination

the overall system/process of dividing and numbering pages.

> page number 24

第 24 頁的頁碼

> incorrect pagination

整份文件的頁碼編排有誤

Important distinction 15: page-turner is not literally a person turning pages

A page-turner is normally:

a very gripping book

The expression comes from the idea that the story is so engaging that you keep turning pages.

Family-extension note

Page has several strong modern branches:

1. physical/document page

- * page of a book
- * page by page
- * turn the page
- * page number

2. digital page

- * web page
- * homepage
- * social-media page

3. verb: browse

- * page through a magazine

4. verb: contact/call

- * page a doctor
- * be paged

5. figurative stages and alignment

- * turn the page
- * a page in history
- * on the same page

6. publishing/document structure

- * pagination

7. computing

- * memory page
- * paging

8. historical attendant

- * a page

For learners, the biggest branches are:

page = 頁

page = 網頁

page someone = 傳呼某人

on the same page = 有共識

turn the page = 翻頁 / 告別過去進入新階段

For your original sentence

> Page by page, it captured small moments that might otherwise have slipped through the cracks.

page by page = 一頁一頁地；逐頁地

The phrase also works beautifully with the meaning of the scrapbook: each physical page preserves a different memory.

A natural Traditional Chinese rendering is:

> 一頁一頁翻下去，裏面記錄的都是一些如果不特別留住，就很容易從生活縫隙中溜走的小片段。

The exact sense here is the straightforward book/scrapbook page = 頁面 , while page by page adds the idea of memories being revealed gradually, one page at a time.
