Useful constructions/extensions: quick movement, quick response, quick look, quick meal, quick decision, quick learner, quick thinking, quick temper, quick fix, be quick, quickly judge, the quick, quicken the pace

Part of speech: adjective (形容詞) / adverb (副詞) / related noun and verb forms (相關名詞及動詞)

Your passage contains:

> “She never judges me too quickly, even when I make mistakes.”

Here, quickly means:

too soon, before taking enough time to understand the situation properly.

Meaning in this passage

In:

> judge me too quickly

quickly does not mainly refer to physical speed.

It means:

forming an opinion too soon, without enough information, reflection, or understanding.

Your grandmother instead:

* listens first;

* gives you time;

* tries to understand;

* does not immediately decide what kind of person you are.

Meaning: Too soon or with insufficient thought.

14. quick learner (學得快的人) — 學習速度快

A very common compound.

Practice 28

> “She is a quick learner.”

「她學東西很快。」

Practice 29

> “He proved to be a quick learner.”

「事實證明他是一個學得很快的人。」 quick learner = 能在短時間內掌握新知識 / 技能的人

15. quick = readily understanding something (領悟快) — 敏銳 ; 反應快

Practice 30

> “She was quick to understand what I meant.”

「她很快就明白了我的意思。」

Practice 31

> “He is quick to notice small changes.”

「他很快就能注意到細微變化。」 be quick to do = 很快察覺 / 理解 / 作出某種反應

16. quick to + verb (很快就.....) — 迅速 ; 容易立即

This construction can describe either speed or tendency.

Practice 32

> “She was quick to apologize.”

「她很快就道歉了。」

Practice 33

> “He is quick to criticize others.”

「他總是很快就批評別人。」

quick to do = 某人很快便採取某行動；某些語境亦暗示太容易作出該反應

17. quick = alert / responsive (敏捷的) — 敏捷；靈活

Practice 34

> “You need quick reflexes for this sport.”

「這項運動需要敏捷反應。」

> “Drivers need quick reflexes.”

「司機需要有快速反應能力。」 quick reflexes = 身體能迅速對突然刺激作出反應

19. quick = eager to act, sometimes prematurely (很快就.....) — 容易急於

A subtle figurative sense.

Practice 38

> “Don’t be too quick to blame him.”

「不要太快責怪他。」

Practice 39

> “People were quick to assume the worst.”

「人們很快便往最壞方向猜想。」 too quick to do = 還未充分了解情況便急於作出行動 / 判斷

This is very close to your passage’s judge too quickly.

20. quick temper (容易發脾氣) — 急躁 ; 易怒

A lexicalized personality collocation.

Practice 40

> “He has a quick temper.”

「他很容易發脾氣 / 脾氣急。」

Practice 41

> “Her quick temper sometimes causes problems.”

「她容易動怒的脾氣有時會造成問題。」 quick temper = 情緒很快由平靜變成憤怒

Not:

> a “fast” temper literally.

21. quick = alive / sensitive tissue: the quick (活肉) — 指甲下活肉

A genuinely separate noun sense.

Practice 42

> “Be careful not to cut into the quick.”

「小心不要剪到指甲下面的活肉。」

Practice 43

> “The cut went through the nail and into the quick.”

「傷口穿過指甲，傷到下面的敏感活肉。」 the quick = 指甲 / 爪下面有血管和神經的敏感活組織

This is a separate lexical noun.

22. cut someone to the quick (深深傷害感情) — 傷到痛處；深深刺痛

A major idiom derived from the noun the quick.

Practice 44

> “His words cut her to the quick.”

「他的話*深深刺痛了她*。」

Practice 45

> “The criticism cut him to the quick.”

「那番批評*深深傷害了他*。」 cut someone to the quick = 在情感上深深傷害某人

The metaphor comes from cutting into sensitive living tissue.

23. quick = pregnancy: with quick child / quickening — historical caution

Older English used quick to mean:

> alive.

This survives in historical expressions and in quicken, but bare quick = alive is not a normal modern learner sense.

It should be recognized only historically, not actively taught as an everyday meaning.

24. quicken = become faster (加快) — 加速 ; 變快

A major related verb.

Practice 46

> “Her pace quickened.”

「她的步伐加快了。」

Practice 47

> “The music gradually quickened.”

「音樂節奏逐漸加快。」

quicken = 速度、節奏或動作變快 / 令其加快

25. quicken = make something happen faster (加快) — 促進 ; 加速

Practice 48

> “The new system should quicken the process.”

「新系統應該能加快流程。」

Practice 49

> “The treatment may quicken recovery.”

「治療可能有助加快康復。」 quicken = 縮短某個過程所需時間

26. quicken = become more active/intense (加劇；活躍起來) — 加快；加強

A figurative extension.

Practice 50

> “Her heartbeat quickened.”

「她的心跳加快了。」

Practice 51

> “His breathing quickened as he ran.”

「他跑步時呼吸加快。」 quicken = 心跳、呼吸等頻率增加

27. quickness (速度；敏捷) — 快速；敏捷程度

A related noun.

Practice 52

> “I was impressed by the quickness of her response.”

「她反應的迅速程度令我印象深刻。」

Practice 53

> “The job requires quickness and accuracy.”

「這份工作需要速度和準確度。」 quickness = 動作、反應或思考迅速的特質 / 程度

28. quickness of mind (思維敏捷) — 頭腦反應快

Practice 54

> “Her quickness of mind was obvious.”

「她的思維敏捷很明顯。」

Practice 55

> “He relied on quickness of mind during the interview.”

「他在面試中依靠自己的快速思考能力。」 quickness of mind = 理解、思考和回應速度很快

29. quick fix (快速但通常不徹底的解決辦法) — 權宜之計；快速解決方案

A major modern idiom.

Practice 56

> “There is no quick fix for this problem.”

「這個問題沒有快速又簡單的解決辦法。」

Practice 57

> “The change is only a quick fix.”

「這個改變只是一個權宜之計。」 quick fix = 能快速處理眼前問題，但未必解決深層原因的方法

Very useful distinction.

30. quick win (容易快速取得的成果) — 快速成果；容易達成的勝利

A common business expression.

Practice 58

> “Let’s identify a few quick wins first.”

「我們先找出幾個可以快速取得的成果。」

Practice 59

> “Updating the website is a quick win.”

「更新網站是一項容易而能快速見效的改進。」 quick win = 成本 / 難度相對低，但能在短時間內取得明顯成果的行動

31. be quick! (快點！) — 快；趕快

A common imperative use.

Practice 60

> “Be quick! We’re late.”

「快點！我們遲到了。」

Practice 61

> “You’ll have to be quick.”

「你得快一點。」 be quick = 加快動作，不要拖延

32. as quick as possible (盡快) — 儘快

Practice 62

> “Come back as quick as possible.”

In careful standard English, more commonly:

> “Come back as quickly as possible.”

「盡快回來。」

Practice 63

> “Please respond as quickly as possible.”

「請*盡快回覆*。」

For formal learner English:

> as quickly as possible is generally the safer form when modifying a verb.

Important distinction: quick vs fast

These overlap heavily.

quick

often emphasizes:

- * little time;
- * prompt response;
- * short duration.

fast

often emphasizes:

- * high speed of movement/rate.

Compare:

> a fast car

very natural.

> a quick car

usually less natural if simply talking about maximum speed.

But:

> a quick meeting

natural.

> a fast meeting usually unnatural.

So:

fast = speed

quick = speed + short time/promptness

Important distinction: quickly vs fast

Both can modify movement:

> “She ran quickly.”

> “She ran fast.”

But fast is especially natural for physical speed.

For:

quickly is natural.

> “She answered fast.”

possible informally, but less neutral.

Important distinction: quick vs short

quick

= takes little time.

short

= has limited duration/length.

A:

> quick meeting

emphasizes efficiency/speed.

A:

> short meeting

simply describes duration.

They often overlap.

Important distinction: quick vs early

quick

= after only a short delay.

early

= before the expected/scheduled time.

> “She gave a quick reply.”

= replied soon after receiving it.

> “She arrived early.”

= arrived before the expected time.

Different timeline relationships.

Important distinction: quick vs immediate

quick

= happens soon/fast.

immediate = happens with virtually no delay.

Immediate is stronger.

> quick response

= fast response.

> immediate response

= essentially at once.

Important distinction: quick vs sudden

quick

= fast / short in time.

sudden

= unexpected and without warning.

A change can be:

> quick but expected

or:

> sudden but not particularly fast in total duration.

Important distinction: quick vs rapid

quick

= everyday.

rapid

= more formal and often describes processes/rates:

> rapid growth

> rapid change

For:

> quick answer

rapid answer is unusual.

Collocation matters.

Important distinction: quick vs prompt

quick response

= response happens fast.

prompt response

= response happens without unnecessary delay.

Very close, but prompt is more formal and often praises timeliness.

Important distinction: quick look vs careful look quick look

= brief/general inspection.

careful look

= detailed attention.

A quick look may miss details.

Important distinction: quick decision vs good decision

A quick decision describes speed.

It does not tell us whether the decision is:

* wise;

* correct;

* thoughtful.

That is crucial in your passage.

Important distinction: quickly judge vs judge correctly

Someone can judge:

> quickly and correctly

or:

> quickly and unfairly.

Your passage criticizes premature judgment, not speed by itself.

Important distinction: judge quickly vs be quick to judge

These are very close.

judge someone quickly

= form an opinion in little time.

be quick to judge

= have a tendency to form judgments too readily.

> “She is quick to judge.”

often carries stronger criticism.

Your grandmother is presented as the opposite.

Important distinction: quick mind vs intelligent quick mind

= processes ideas rapidly.

intelligent

= broader intellectual ability.

Someone may be intelligent but deliberate/slow in response.

Important distinction: quick learner vs intelligent learner

quick learner

= learns new things rapidly.

intelligent person

= has strong intellectual ability generally.

Learning speed is only one dimension of intelligence.

Important distinction: quick thinking vs careful thinking

quick thinking

= rapid effective thinking, especially under pressure.

careful thinking

= thorough consideration.

Neither is automatically better.

In emergencies:

> quick thinking

can be ideal.

In judging people:

> careful thinking

may be more appropriate.

This fits your passage very well.

Important distinction: quick temper vs bad temper

quick temper

= becomes angry very quickly.

bad temper

= generally irritable/angry disposition.

A person with a quick temper may calm down quickly too.

Important distinction: quick fix vs solution

solution

= resolves a problem.

quick fix

= fast remedy, often temporary/superficial.

So calling something a:

> quick fix

can be slightly critical.

Important distinction: quick win vs easy win

quick win

= result that can be achieved rapidly with relatively manageable effort.

easy win

= victory/result that requires little difficulty.

A quick win usually emphasizes:

> speed + visible benefit.

Important distinction: quickly = rapidly vs quickly = prematurely

Compare:

> “She walked quickly.”

= at high speed.

versus:

> “She judged him too quickly.”

= too soon / before enough consideration.

This is the key polysemy distinction for your passage.

Important distinction: quick vs hasty

quick

can be neutral or positive.

hasty usually means:

> too quick and therefore insufficiently considered.

> “a quick decision”

could be good.

> “a hasty decision”

usually implies poor judgment.

In your passage:

> too quickly

moves toward the meaning of:

> hastily / prematurely.

Important distinction: quick vs rash rash

= acting too quickly without considering danger/consequences.

Stronger and more negative than quick.

> quick judgment

may simply be fast.

> rash judgment

suggests recklessness.

Important distinction: the quick vs quick adjective

Compare:

> “a quick response”

= 迅速回應.

versus:

> “cut into the quick”

= 剪到指甲下的活肉.

Same spelling, completely different lexical function.

Important distinction: quicken vs speed up quicken

= become/make faster, slightly more literary/formal in many contexts.

speed up

= everyday phrasal equivalent.

very natural.

> “Her heartbeat sped up.”

also natural and more conversational.

Family-extension sweep

The practical quick family is rich in speed, short duration, response, thought, premature action, and several lexicalized expressions:

- * quick — fast movement/action = 快速的
- * quickly — rapidly = 快速地
- * quick — short duration = 短時間的
- * quick meal/meeting = 很快完成的飯 / 會議
- * quick response/reaction = 快速反應
- * quick decision = 很快作出的決定
- * quick look/check = 快速查看 / 簡單檢查
- * quickly — too soon = 過早 / 太快
- * quick judgment = 草率 / 過早判斷
- * quick mind = 思維敏捷
- * quick thinking = 急智 / 快速應變
- * quick learner = 學得快的人
- * quick to do = 很快便做 / 容易立刻做
- * quick reflexes = 敏捷反應
- * quick temper = 易怒 / 脾氣急
- * the quick = 指甲 / 爪下的敏感活肉
- * cut to the quick = 深深刺痛感情
- * quicken = 加快
- * quicken heartbeat/pace = 心跳 / 步伐加快
- * quickness = 快速 / 敏捷程度
- * quick fix = 快速但往往不徹底的解決方法
- * quick win = 可快速取得的明顯成果
- * be quick! = 快點
- * as quickly as possible = 儘快

The main semantic branches are:

> high speed

> short duration

> prompt response

> rapid mental processing > premature judgment/action

plus the separate noun:

> the quick = sensitive living tissue

For your original passage

> “She never judges me too quickly, even when I make mistakes.”

The exact meaning is:

quickly = too soon / before taking enough time to understand

Therefore:

> judge me too quickly

= 「未充分了解我 / 事情之前便太快下判斷」

This is not mainly about:

> speed of speech

or:

> how many seconds the judgment takes.

The deeper idea is:

> premature judgment

Your grandmother does the opposite:

> she listens first

> → understands the situation

> → then gives thoughtful advice.

So the contrast is:

> quick judgment

> = fast, possibly superficial versus:

> thoughtful judgment/advice

> = careful, considered, based on understanding.

The most important learner contrasts are:

> a quick runner

> = 動作很快的人

> a quick meeting

> = 短會

> a quick response

> = 迅速回應

> a quick look

> = 快速看一下

> judge too quickly

> = 太快 / 過早下判斷

> a quick mind

> = 頭腦敏捷

> quick thinking

> = 臨場急智

> a quick learner

> = 學得很快的人 > be quick to criticize

> = 很快就批評 / 容易急於批評

> a quick temper

> = 易怒的脾氣 > the quick

> = 指甲下面的活肉 > cut someone to the quick

> = 深深刺痛某人 > quicken your pace

> = 加快步伐

> a quick fix

> = 權宜之計 / 快速但不徹底的解決方案

> a quick win

> = 可快速取得的成果

So quick is much richer than simply:

> quick = 快的

and in your original passage its family form quickly specifically means:

“prematurely — forming a judgment before taking enough time to listen, understand, and consider the full situation.”
