

Word family: standard

Base word: standard

Part of speech: noun / adjective

Related forms: standardize / standardise, standardized / standardised, standardization / standardisation, substandard

Original sentence:

> “She was the kind of teacher who had high standards but never made students feel small.”

Meaning in this passage

1. standard = level of quality or performance expected (要求 / 品質水平) — 標準 ; 要求

Here, standard means the level that someone expects a person, product, or piece of work to reach.

> high standards

= 高標準 ; 要求高

Practice 1 — Original sentence

> “She was the kind of teacher who had high standards but never made students feel small.”

「她是一位要求很高 / 有很高標準的老師，但從不讓學生覺得自己很差。」 standard = 用來判斷某事是否合格、符合要求的準則

3. standard = officially established specification (官方 / 技術規格) — 規格 ; 標準

This is a particularly important institutional and technical use.

A standard can be an officially agreed specification governing how something should be designed, measured, tested, produced, or performed.

Practice 6

> “The equipment was tested according to international standards.”

「這些設備按照國際標準 / 規格進行測試。」

Practice 7

> “The industry introduced a new safety standard.”

「該行業推出了一項新的安全標準。」

standard = formally established technical or industry specification

4. standard = normal/usual level or condition (一般水平 / 正常規格) — 標準的 ; 一般的

As an adjective, standard can mean something that is ordinary, conventional, or normally provided rather than specially modified.

Practice 8

> “The room has standard equipment.”

「房間配有標準 / 一般規格的設備。」

Practice 9

> “The hotel offers standard and deluxe rooms.”

「酒店提供標準房和豪華房。」

standard = ordinary, conventional, or normally provided

Important:

> standard here does not necessarily mean “excellent.”

It can simply mean:

> normal / regular / conventional.

5. standard = officially recognized model or form (統一規格 / 標準形式) — 標準規格 ; 統一格式

A standard can establish a common form that different people or organizations follow.

Practice 10

> “The company uses a standard format for all reports.”

「公司所有報告都使用統一的標準格式。」

Practice 11

> “The files must follow a standard naming convention.”

「這些檔案必須遵循統一的標準命名規則。」 standard = 大家共同採用的規格、格式或方法

6. standard = level of quality generally accepted (公認水平) — 標準水平

Sometimes standard refers to the level generally regarded as acceptable within a group, profession, industry, or society.

「古代軍隊跟隨著自己的軍旗前進。」

standard = large identifying flag/banner

This sense is much less common in ordinary modern conversation but remains useful in historical writing and literature.

11. standard = song/item used as a recognized classic (經典曲目) — 經典歌曲 / 標準曲

In music, especially jazz, a standard is a song that has become widely known and is commonly performed or recorded by different musicians.

Practice 22

> “The band played several jazz standards.”

「樂隊演奏了幾首爵士樂經典曲目。」

Practice 23

> “It has become a popular standard among jazz musicians.”

「它已成為爵士樂手之間流行的經典曲目。」

standard = widely recognized song that many performers know and perform

12. standard = conventional type/model (常規型號 / 基本款) — 標準型 ; 普通型

As a noun or adjective in products and services, standard can distinguish the normal version from premium, deluxe, customized, or advanced versions.

Practice 24

> “I chose the standard package rather than the premium one.”

「我選了標準方案，而不是高級方案。」

Practice 25

> “The standard model is cheaper.”

「標準型號比較便宜。」

standard = regular/basic version rather than a special or premium version

13. standard = standard size/class/category (標準尺寸 / 級別) — 標準規格

Practice 26

> “The box is a standard size.”

「這個盒子是標準尺寸。」

Practice 27

> “The school uses standard grading categories.”

「學校採用標準的評分級別。」

standard = officially or commonly recognized size, category, or classification

14. standard = upright support / vertical object (旗杆等直立物) — 直立支架；旗杆

A less common but established noun use.

Practice 28

> “The lamp was mounted on a tall standard.”

「燈具安裝在一根高的直立支架上。」

Practice 29

> “The flag was fixed to a metal standard.”

「旗幟固定在金屬旗杆 / 支架上。」

This is more specialist and lower-priority than the main meanings.

15. standardize / standardise = make uniform (統一規格) — 標準化；統一

This is an important family extension.

standardize means to make things conform to a common standard.

Practice 30

> “The company is trying to standardize its procedures.”

「公司正嘗試將程序標準化。」

Practice 31

> “The equipment was standardized across all branches.”

「所有分店的設備都被統一規格。」

standardize = make things follow the same standard

British spelling:

> standardise

American spelling:

> standardize

> “Standardization makes the products easier to compare.”

「標準化令產品更容易比較。」

18. substandard = below the accepted level (低於標準) — 不合標準的 ; 劣質的

A useful negative family extension.

Practice 36

> “The building was constructed with substandard materials.”

「這座建築使用了不符合標準的 / 劣質的材料。」

Practice 37

> “Customers complained about substandard service.”

「顧客投訴服務低於應有標準。」

substandard = below the expected or acceptable standard

Important distinctions

standard vs quality

standard

= the level or criterion used to judge something.

quality

= how good or bad something actually is.

Compare:

> The company has high standards.

「公司要求很高。」

> The product is of high quality.

「產品品質很高。」

A high standard is an expectation/criterion; high quality is an actual characteristic.

standard vs level

They overlap strongly.

level

focuses on degree or position:

> a high level of skill

= 技能程度高

standard

focuses on expected or accepted quality:

> a high standard of skill

= 對技能水平的要求 / 標準很高

standard vs rule

rule

= a specific instruction about what must or must not be done.

standard

= a level, criterion, or specification used to judge quality, safety, behaviour, or performance.

A standard can lead to rules, but they are not identical.

standard vs norm

standard

= a criterion or expected level.

norm

= what is usual, typical, or socially accepted.

Compare:

> safety standards

= 安全標準

> social norms

= 社會規範 / 常態

A standard often tells you what should be achieved; a norm often describes what normally happens or what a group regards as normal.

standard vs criterion

criterion

= a specific basis for making a judgment.

standard

= an accepted level, specification, or benchmark.

> accuracy is one criterion

> international safety standards

A criterion is one judging factor; a standard can be the broader accepted benchmark.

high standards vs high quality

This distinction is especially important for your passage.

> high standards

= 要求 / 判定水平高

> high quality

= 實際品質高

Therefore:

> “She had high standards.”

means:

> 她要求學生達到很高的水平。 **

It does not necessarily mean:

> 她本人做出來的每件事品質都很高。 **

standard vs standardize

standard

= a level, criterion, specification, or conventional version.

standardize

> a safety standard

vs.

> standardize safety procedures.

standard vs standardized

standard

can mean ordinary/conventional.

standardized means deliberately made uniform according to an established standard.

So:

> a standard procedure

can mean a normal/conventional procedure.

But:

> a standardized procedure

emphasizes that the procedure has been made uniform.

Important expressions

meet a standard

= 達到標準

> “The product does not meet safety standards.”

「產品不符合安全標準。」

meet the required standard

= 達到要求的標準

high standards

= 高標準；高要求

low standards

= 低標準；要求低

maintain standards

= 維持標準

raise standards

= 提高標準

lower standards

= 降低標準 set a standard

= 訂立標準

set high standards

= 訂立高標準 / 要求高

industry standard

= 業界標準

international standard

= 國際標準

safety standard

= 安全標準

professional standards

= 專業標準 / 操守

standard practice

= 標準做法；慣常做法

standard procedure

= 標準程序；一般程序

standard model

= 標準型號

standard version

= 標準版本

standard size

= 標準尺寸

standard rate

= 標準費率 / 標準價格

industry standard

= 業界公認標準

below standard / below the standard

= 低於標準

substandard

= 不符合標準的；低於正常水平的

For your original passage

> “She was the kind of teacher who had high standards but never made students feel small.”

The most natural interpretation is:

> standard = the level of performance or quality that someone expects

Therefore:

high standards

= 高標準；高要求

The sentence contrasts two qualities:

> high standards

> = 對學生的表現要求高

but

> never made students feel small

> = 不會令學生因為未達要求而覺得自己很差

So the teacher's standard is the expected level, not a physical object and not simply a rule.

The key semantic map is:

STANDARD — expected level

→ high standards

STANDARD — judging criterion

→ safety standards

STANDARD — technical specification

→ industry standards

STANDARD — normal/conventional version

→ standard model / standard room

STANDARD — benchmark

→ a standard for comparison

STANDARD — moral/behavioural principle

→ ethical standards

STANDARD — flag/banner

→ historical standard

STANDARD — recognized classic song

→ jazz standard

STANDARDIZE

→ make things conform to a common standard

SUBSTANDARD

→ below the accepted standard

And in your original sentence:

> high standards = 對學生的表現 / 品質要求很高
