

Absolutely — worth is a very strong polysemy/grammar target because your passage uses it here:

> “...I think it would be worth it.”

Here worth it means valuable or beneficial enough to justify the money, time, or effort spent. The word also has major uses for monetary value, usefulness, importance, net wealth, and fixed structures such as worth doing / worth + amount.

Word family: worth / worthy / worthwhile / worthless / worthiness

Base word: worth

Related adjectives: worthy, worthwhile, worthless

Related noun: worth, worthiness

Part of speech: adjective-like predicative form / noun (名詞)

Important grammar point:

> worth normally comes after be.

For example:

> “It is worth $500.”

> “It is worth seeing.”

Not normally:

> a worth painting ❌

Meaning in your passage: worth it = sufficiently valuable to justify the cost — 值得；值得付出這個代價

Your sentence:

> “...for a piece I would look at every day, I think it would be worth it.”

Here worth it means:

> the benefit, enjoyment, or value I would get from the artwork would justify the money spent on it.

繁體中文：

得到的價值、享受或好處足以抵得上所付出的金錢、時間或努力；值得

Natural translation:

> “I think it would be worth it.”

「我覺得還是值得的。」

So here:

> worth it = 值得付出這個價錢 / 代價

1. be worth + amount = 值.....錢；價值為.....

A core monetary meaning.

Practice 1

> “The painting is worth several million dollars.”

「這幅畫價值數百萬美元。」

Practice 2

> “How much is this watch worth?”

「這隻手錶值多少錢？」 be worth + amount = 某物的金錢價值相當於某個數額

Important:

> cost = 買它要花多少

> worth = 它本身值多少

2. be worth it = 值得；值得付出代價

This is your exact source sense.

Practice 3 — Original

> “I think it would be worth it.”

「我覺得還是值得的。」

Practice 4

> “The ticket was expensive, but the exhibition was worth it.”

「門票很貴，但這個展覽值得這個價錢。」 worth it = 最後得到的好處 / 體驗足以補償所付出的成本或努力

3. be worth + -ing = 值得做.....

A very important grammar pattern.

Practice 5

> “The exhibition is worth seeing.”

「這個展覽值得一看。」

Practice 6

> “This book is worth reading twice.”

「這本書值得讀兩遍。」

be worth + gerund = 某件事有足夠價值，值得花時間 / 精力去做

Important:

> worth seeing

> worth to see

This is highly testable.

4. be well worth + -ing = 非常值得.....

A stronger version.

Practice 7

> “The museum is well worth visiting.”

「這間博物館非常值得參觀。」

Practice 8

> “The long journey was well worth making.”

「這趟長途旅程非常值得走一趟。」 well worth = 非常值得；明顯值得付出時間 / 金錢 / 努力

Notice:

> well worth

not usually:

> very worth

5. be worth + noun = 值得某種付出 / 考慮

Practice 9

> “The idea is worth consideration.”

「這個想法*值得考慮*。」

Practice 10

> “The issue is worth further discussion.”

「這個問題*值得進一步討論*。」 worth + noun = 某事值得投入某種注意、研究、努力或討論

More formal than worth doing in many contexts.

6. worth = value / usefulness / importance — 價值；重要性

As a noun.

Practice 11

> “The painting’s artistic worth is widely recognized.”

「這幅畫的藝術價值廣受認可。」

Practice 12

> “His contribution proved its worth over time.”

「隨著時間過去，他的貢獻證明了自己的價值。」 worth — noun = 某人 / 某物所具有的價值、用處或重要性

This can be:

* monetary

* artistic

* practical

* moral

* personal

7. prove one’s worth = 證明自己的價值 / 能力

A common fixed expression.

Practice 13

> “The young artist quickly proved her worth.”

「那位年輕藝術家很快就證明了自己的價值 / 實力。」

Practice 14

> “He was given a chance to prove his worth to the team.”

「他獲得機會向團隊證明自己的能力和價值。」 prove one’s worth = 透過表現證明自己有能力、有價值或值得信任

8. for what it’s worth = 不管有沒有幫助；僅供參考

A very common discourse expression.

Practice 15

> “For what it's worth, I think the smaller frame looks better.”

「僅供參考 / 不管有沒有幫助，我覺得較小的畫框看起來更好。」

Practice 16

> “For what it's worth, I had the same reaction.”

「僅供你參考，我當時也有相同反應。」

for what it's worth = 說話者不確定自己的意見 / 資訊有多大價值，但仍提供出來

9. worthwhile = worth the time/effort/money — 值得的；有價值的

A major related adjective.

Practice 17

> “The visit was worthwhile.”

「這次參觀很值得 / 很有價值。」

Practice 18

> “Learning to appreciate art is a worthwhile experience.”

「學習欣賞藝術是一段很有價值的經歷。」 worthwhile = 某件事帶來的好處足以補償投入的時間、金錢或努力

Unlike worth, worthwhile can directly modify a noun:

> a worthwhile experience

10. worthwhile to do / worthwhile doing — 值得做

Practice 19

> “It is worthwhile to compare the two versions.”

「比較這兩個版本是值得的。」

Practice 20

> “It is worthwhile spending time on the details.”

「花時間研究細節是值得的。」

Both patterns occur, though:

> worth + -ing

is usually the cleaner learner pattern.

11. worthy = deserving respect/attention/support — 值得尊敬 / 注意 / 支持的

A distinct related adjective.

Practice 21

> “It is a worthy cause.”

「這是一項值得支持的事業。」

Practice 22

> “Her work is worthy of attention.”

「她的作品值得關注。」 worthy = 因本身品質、目的或品格而值得尊敬、支持或注意

12. worthy of + noun = 值得……；配得上……

A major pattern.

Practice 23

> “The painting is worthy of admiration.”

「這幅畫值得欣賞 / 敬佩。」

Practice 24

> “The achievement is worthy of recognition.”

「這項成就值得肯定。」 worthy of = 因品質或表現而配得上某種評價、尊敬或待遇

13. worthy = good enough / suitable for a high standard — 配得上的；有資格的

Practice 25

> “The museum wanted a display worthy of the artist.”

「博物館希望設計一個配得上這位藝術家的展覽。」

Practice 26

> “It was a performance worthy of the occasion.”

「那是一場配得上這個場合的表演。」 worthy of X = 品質高到與 X 的重要性 / 地位相稱

14. worthless = having no monetary value — 一文不值的；沒有金錢價值的

A major opposite.

Practice 27

> “The fake painting turned out to be worthless.”

「那幅假畫最後證實*一文不值*。」

Practice 28

> “The damaged tickets were worthless.”

「那些損壞的票已經*沒有任何價值*。」 worthless = 幾乎沒有金錢價值

15. worthless = useless / having no practical value — 毫無用處的；沒有價值的

A figurative extension.

Practice 29

> “The information was outdated and worthless.”

「那些資訊已經過時，毫無用處。」

Practice 30

> “Without evidence, the claim is practically worthless.”

「沒有證據的話，這項說法實際上沒有甚麼價值。」 worthless = 沒有實際用途、意義或價值

16. self-worth = 自我價值感

A major psychological compound.

Practice 31

> “A job should not determine your self-worth.”

「一份工作不應決定你的自我價值感。」

Practice 32

> “Success can affect a person’s sense of self-worth.”

「成功可能影響一個人的自我價值感。」

self-worth = 一個人對自己是否有價值、值得尊重的內在感受

This is not the same as confidence.

17. net worth (金融) — 淨資產；身家

A major financial compound.

Practice 33

> “The company’s net worth increased.”

「公司的淨資產增加了。」

Practice 34

> “Net worth is calculated by subtracting liabilities from assets.”

「淨資產是以資產減去負債計算的。」 net worth = 資產總值減去負債後剩下的淨財富

For a person, Chinese may also be:

> 身家 / 淨資產

18. worth + amount of goods/time = 價值.....份量的

A useful quantifying construction.

Practice 35

> “We bought fifty dollars’ worth of books.”

「我們買了價值五十元的書。」

Practice 36

> “She has a week’s worth of work to finish.”

「她有足足一星期份量的工作要完成。」 amount + worth of + noun = 價值 / 份量相當於某個數量的東西

Very useful because worth here expresses not necessarily market value alone, but equivalent quantity.

19. a day’s / week’s worth of = 一天 / 一星期份量的

A common non-monetary extension.

Practice 37

> “The folder contains a month’s worth of photographs.”

「這個資料夾有一個月份量的照片。」

Practice 38

> “We completed a day’s worth of work in three hours.”

「我們三小時就完成了一天份量的工作。」

X worth of = 相當於 X 時間通常會產生 / 需要的數量

20. worth one’s while = 值得某人花時間 / 精力

A common fixed expression.

Practice 39

> “The exhibition is worth your while.”

「這個展覽*值得你花時間去看*。」

Practice 40

> “It may be worth your while to compare prices.”

「花點時間比較價格可能*對你很值得 / 很有幫助*。」 worth someone’s while = 回報足以值得某人投入時間或努力

Important distinction: worth vs cost

Directly relevant to your passage.

cost

= what you have to pay.

> “The reproduction costs $5,000.”

「複製畫要價 5,000 元。」

worth

= its value / whether the benefit justifies that cost.

> “The reproduction is worth $5,000.”

「這幅複製畫值 5,000 元。」

> “It is worth it.”

「它值得這個價錢 / 代價。」

So:

> cost = 花多少

> worth = 值多少 / 值不值得

Important distinction: worth vs value

worth

often appears in constructions:

> be worth $500

> be worth doing

value

can be a noun or verb:

> the value of the painting

> value the painting

So:

> worth = 價值程度 / 值得

> value = 價值 ; 重視

They overlap but grammar differs.

Important distinction: worth vs price

price

= seller's stated amount.

worth

= actual/perceived value.

A painting can have:

> a price of $10,000

but someone may believe:

> it is only worth $7,000.

So price and worth do not have to match.

Important distinction: worth vs affordable

You already curated afford.

affordable

asks:

> Can I reasonably pay for it?

worth it

asks:

> Is the benefit/value enough to justify paying for it?

Something can be:

> affordable but not worth it

or:

> worth it but unaffordable.

This is a very useful contrast for your passage.

Important distinction: worth it vs worthwhile

worth it usually refers back to a specific cost/effort.

> “The ticket was expensive, but it was worth it.”

worthwhile

describes the activity/experience generally.

> “The visit was worthwhile.”

Both:

「值得」

but grammar differs.

Important distinction: worth vs worthy

These are often confused.

worth

normally:

> be worth + noun/-ing

> “The film is worth seeing.”

worthy

normally:

> worthy of + noun

> “The film is worthy of attention.”

So:

> worth seeing

> worthy of attention

not:

> worthy seeing

Important distinction: worthwhile vs worthy

worthwhile

= worth the resources spent.

> worthwhile trip

> = 值得去的旅程

worthy

= deserving respect/support/attention.

> worthy cause

> = 值得支持的事業

Not the same.

Important distinction: worthless vs cheap

cheap

= low price, possibly low quality.

worthless

= having essentially no value.

A cheap object may still be useful and valuable.

A worthless object may cost nothing because it has no value.

Important distinction: worthless vs useless

worthless

= has no value.

useless

= has no practical use.

Something may be:

> useless but valuable as art/history

or:

> useful but low in financial worth.

Different concepts.

Important distinction: self-worth vs self-esteem

self-worth

= sense that you have inherent value as a person.

self-esteem

= broader evaluation/confidence about yourself.

They overlap, but self-worth focuses more directly on perceived personal value.

Important distinction: worth + -ing vs worth to + verb

Correct:

> "The museum is worth visiting."

Not:

> The museum is worth to visit. ❌

This is one of the most important grammar points.

Important distinction: well worth vs very worth

Natural:

> “It is well worth seeing.” ✅

Normally not:

> It is very worth seeing. ❌

Use:

* well worth

* definitely worth

* absolutely worth

Important distinction: worth + amount vs worth of

be worth $500

= 價值 500 元

$500 worth of books

= 價值 500 元的書

Grammar reverses the structure.

Important distinction: a week's worth of

This often does not mean monetary value.

> “a week's worth of food”

= 足夠一星期的食物

So worth can express:

> equivalent quantity not only money.

Family-extension sweep

After the full audit, the useful modern family includes:

- * be worth + amount = 值.....錢
- * be worth it = 值得這個成本 / 代價
- * be worth + -ing = 值得做.....
- * be well worth + -ing = 非常值得.....
- * worth + noun = 值得考慮 / 討論等
- * worth — noun = 價值 / 重要性
- * prove one's worth = 證明自己的價值 / 能力
- * for what it's worth = 僅供參考 / 不管有沒有幫助
- * worthwhile = 值得的 / 有價值的
- * worthy = 值得尊敬 / 支持 / 注意的
- * worthy of = 配得上 / 值得.....
- * worthless — monetary = 一文不值的
- * worthless — practical = 毫無用處 / 價值的
- * self-worth = 自我價值感
- * net worth = 淨資產 / 身家
- * amount's worth of = 價值 / 份量相當於.....
- * worth one's while = 值得某人投入時間 / 精力

Master comparison

Form / sense	MCQ-ready Traditional Chinese meaning
-----	-----
be worth + amount	某物的金錢價值相當於指定數額
be worth it	得到的好處、價值或享受足以抵得上所付出的成本 / 努力
be worth + -ing	某件事有足夠價值，值得投入時間、金錢或精力去做
be well worth + -ing	某件事非常值得做
worth — noun	某人 / 某物所具有的價值、用處或重要性
prove one's worth	透過表現證明自己的能力、價值或重要性
for what it's worth	不確定資訊 / 意見是否有幫助，但仍提出供參考 worthwhile	得到的好處足以補償投入的時間、金錢或努力
worthy	因品質、目的或品格而值得尊敬、支持或注意

worthy of	品質 / 表現足以配得上某種評價或待遇
worthless — monetary	幾乎沒有任何金錢價值
worthless — practical	沒有實際用途、意義或價值
self-worth	一個人對自己是否有價值、值得尊重的內在感受
net worth	資產總值減去負債後的淨財富
X worth of Y	價值或數量相當於 X 的 Y
worth one's while	所得回報足以值得某人花時間 / 精力去做

For your original sentence

> “That is not exactly cheap, but for a piece I would look at every day, I think it would be worth it.”

The exact meaning is:

worth it = 雖然三千至五千港元不算便宜，但因為這幅作品能長期每天帶來觀賞和情緒上的價值，所以作者認為這筆支出是合理、值得的。

Natural translation:

> 「那當然不算便宜，但如果是一件我每天都會看的作品，我覺得還是值得。」

The highest-value contrasts are:

- > worth $5,000 → 值 5,000 元
- > worth it → 值得這個代價
- > worth seeing → 值得一看
- > well worth visiting → 非常值得參觀
- > artistic worth → 藝術價值
- > worthwhile experience → 值得 / 有價值的經歷
- > worthy of attention → 值得關注
- > worthless → 毫無價值的
- > self-worth → 自我價值感
- > net worth → 淨資產
- > $500 worth of books → 價值 500 元的書
- > worth vs cost → 值多少 / 值不值得 vs 要花多少錢