

Absolutely — benefit is a strong polysemy target because your passage uses it here:

> “Secondly, it benefits from word of mouth.”

Here benefit from means to gain an advantage or positive result from something. But benefit also has major noun meanings involving advantage, employee/welfare payments, and formal uses such as for someone’s benefit.

Word family: benefit / beneficial / beneficiary

Base word: benefit

Verb forms: benefit, benefits, benefited/benefitted, benefiting/benefitting

Related adjective: beneficial

Related noun: beneficiary

Part of speech: noun (名詞) / verb (動詞)

Spelling note:

> benefited / benefiting

> and > benefitted / benefiting both occur. The single-t forms are more common internationally.

Meaning in your passage: benefit from = gain an advantage from — 受益於 ; 得益於

beneficiary = 在保險、信託、遺產等法律安排下有權獲取利益的人

Important distinction: benefit vs advantage

benefit

= positive result/help gained.

advantage

= favorable position compared with others or compared with another option.

> benefit of local shopping

> = 本地購物的好處

> competitive advantage

> = 競爭優勢

They overlap, but advantage more often implies comparison.

Important distinction: benefit vs profit

benefit

= any positive effect.

profit

= financial gain after costs.

A bakery can:

* benefit from good reviews

* make a profit from sales

Not the same.

Important distinction: benefit vs value

benefit

= useful positive result.

value

= importance, usefulness, worth, or monetary value.

> benefit of a service

> = 服務帶來的好處

> value of a service

> = 服務本身的價值

Important distinction: benefit vs help

help

very broad:

assist someone/do something easier.

benefit

emphasizes the positive outcome received.

> “This advice helped me.”

= 這建議幫了我。

> “I benefited from this advice.”

= 我從這建議中受益。

Different perspective.

Important distinction: benefit from vs benefit someone

This is a key grammar contrast.

Intransitive:

> “The bakery benefits from word of mouth.”

= 麵包店從口碑中受益。

Transitive:

> “Word of mouth benefits the bakery.”

= 口碑令麵包店受惠。

Same relationship, reversed grammar.

Important distinction: benefit vs beneficial

benefit

noun/verb:

> “The change has benefits.”

> “The change benefits customers.”

beneficial

adjective:

> “The change is beneficial.”

So:

> benefit = 好處 / 使受惠

> beneficial = 有益的

Important distinction: benefit vs beneficiary

benefit

= the good received.

beneficiary

= the person/group receiving it.

> benefit = 好處 / 福利

> beneficiary = 受惠者 / 受益人

Important distinction: benefits — employee vs government

Employee:

> job benefits

> = 員工福利

Government:

> state benefits

> = 政府福利金 / 補助

Same plural noun, different institutional source.

Important distinction: benefit — general good vs welfare payment

General:

> “The benefit of exercise”

= 運動的好處

Institutional:

> “unemployment benefit”

= 失業福利金

Excellent MCQ contrast.

Important distinction: benefit vs perk

benefit

formal/general employee compensation:
insurance, retirement plans, paid leave.

perk informal:

extra advantage/pleasant extra.

> health insurance = benefit > free coffee = perk

Overlap exists, but perk is usually less formal and more “extra”.

Important distinction: for your benefit vs to your benefit for your benefit

= intended to help you.

> “I explained it again for your benefit.”

to your benefit

= resulting in advantage for you.

> “The change worked to your benefit.”

Subtle but useful difference.

Important distinction: beneficial vs harmless

beneficial

= actively produces good effects.

harmless

= does not cause harm.

Something can be harmless without being beneficial.

Important note on polysemy depth

Benefit has a compact but strong modern inventory:

1. benefit = positive advantage
2. benefit from / benefit someone
3. employee benefits
4. government/insurance benefits
5. family forms beneficial / beneficiary

We should not over-split every type of positive effect into a new lexical meaning.

Family-extension sweep

After the full audit, the useful modern inventory includes:

- * benefit — noun: advantage = 好處 / 益處
- * benefit from = 受益於 / 得益於
- * benefit + object = 使.....受惠
- * for someone's benefit = 為某人的利益 / 方便
- * benefit of the doubt = 姑且相信
- * benefits — employee = 員工福利
- * benefit — government = 福利金 / 補助
- * benefits — insurance/pension = 給付 / 福利
- * beneficial = 有益 / 有利的
- * beneficiary — general = 受惠者
- * beneficiary — legal/financial = 受益人
