# CS. PASSAGE RECAP

> “By the time we wrote our reflection, even students who seldom spoke in class could **identify the conflict**, describe the characters’ motives and explain how tone, gesture and hesitation changed the meaning of a sentence.”

Here:

**conflict****

= **the central opposition, clash, or tension between people, values, motives, or choices in a dramatic situation****

Best Traditional Chinese:

* **衝突****

* **矛盾****

* in literary/drama analysis: **核心衝突 / 戲劇衝突****

Natural contextual translation:

**到我們寫反思文章時，就連平日很少在課堂發言的學生，也能指出情境中的核心衝突、描述角色的動機，並解釋語氣、手勢和猶豫如何改變一句話的意思。****

Passage MCQ-ready meaning

**conflict****

= **a struggle or opposition between people, ideas, interests, values, goals, or forces****

**衝突；矛盾；對立****

The biggest learner branches are:

> **conflict between two people****

> → 人際**衝突****

> **armed conflict****

> → **武裝衝突****

> **internal conflict****

> → **內心矛盾****

> **conflict of interest****

> → **利益衝突****

> **schedule conflict****

> → **時間撞期****

> **conflicting evidence****

> → **互相矛盾的證據****

> **the rule conflicts with the law****

> → 規則**與法律衝突****

> **merge conflict****

> → **合併衝突****

> **feel conflicted****

> → **感到內心矛盾****

> **conflict resolution****

> → **衝突解決****

The key semantic idea is:

**two things pull in different directions and cannot comfortably coexist.****

That may happen between:

* two people,

* two groups,

* two armies,

- * two values,
- * two emotions,
- * two duties,
- * two schedules,
- * two rules,
- * two sets of evidence,
- * or two versions of computer code.

In the passage specifically, **identify the conflict** is a drama/literature-analysis use: students identify **what opposing motivations, values, or choices are creating the tension in the scene**, rather than merely identifying that “something bad happened.”
