

I'm taking "considerable" as considerable. I'll treat this as one full lexical family and follow the new reference's approach of grouping practical derivatives, constructions, specialist branches, distinctions, and a master comparison rather than stopping at the headword.

Word family: consider / considers / considered / considering / consideration / considerable / considerably / considerate / considerately / reconsider / reconsideration / inconsiderate / inconsiderately

Base word: consider

Past tense: considered

Past participle: considered

--ing form: considering

Major related forms:

- * consideration
- * considered
- * considering
- * considerable
- * considerably
- * considerate
- * considerately
- * inconsiderate
- * inconsiderately
- * reconsider
- * reconsideration

Useful secondary forms:

- * well-considered
- * ill-considered
- * unconsidered
- * considerateness
- * inconsiderateness

Your passage:

> "Students may complete exercises, but they are also absorbing an unhealthy message: convenience matters more than consideration."

Meaning in this passage

Here, consideration means thoughtful concern for other people's needs, feelings, rights, or convenience.

繁體中文：  體諒；為別人着想；顧及他人的需要、感受或權益

中文翻譯：

> “...convenience matters more than consideration.”

「.....個人方便比*體諒他人 / 為別人着想*更重要。」

Here:

consideration = 願意想到自己的行為會怎樣影響別人，並作出相應調整

This is directly related to:

> considerate = 體貼的；替別人着想的

A. CONSIDER — THINK CAREFULLY

1. consider something = think carefully about it (思考) — 考慮；仔細思考

This is the central verb meaning.

Practice 1

> “We need to consider the problem carefully.”

「我們需要仔細*考慮*這個問題。」

Practice 2

> “She paused to consider her options.”

「她停下來*考慮*自己的選擇。」

consider = 不立即決定，而是花時間思考某件事的不同方面

Common:

* consider the problem

* consider the options

* consider the evidence

* consider the consequences

* consider the situation

2. consider doing something = think about possibly doing it (打算 / 考慮) — 考慮做.....

Practice 3

> “She is considering moving abroad.”

「她正在考慮移居海外。」

Practice 4

> “Have you ever considered changing jobs?”

「你有沒有考慮過轉工？」

Grammar:

> consider + -ing

> consider moving

> consider applying

Normally not:

> consider to move

when the meaning is “think about possibly doing.”

3. consider whether / how / what / why = think about a question (思量) — 考慮是否 / 如何.....

Practice 5

> “We should consider whether the plan is realistic.”

「我們應該考慮這個計劃是否現實可行。」

Practice 6

> “Consider how your decision will affect others.”

「請想想你的決定會怎樣影響其他人。」

Very common in formal and academic writing.

4. consider a proposal/request/application = examine it before deciding (審議) — 審議 ; 考慮
**

Practice 7

> “The committee will consider the proposal next week.”

「委員會下星期會審議這項建議。」

Practice 8

> “Your application is being considered.”

「你的申請正在審核 / 考慮中。」

Here consider often involves:

1. examining information;
2. weighing merits;
3. making a later decision.

B. TAKE SOMETHING INTO ACCOUNT

5. consider something = take it into account (顧及) — 考慮到 ; 顧及

Practice 9

> “We must consider the needs of elderly customers.”

「我們必須顧及年長顧客的需要。」

Practice 10

> “You should consider the cost before making a decision.”

「作決定前，你應該考慮到成本。」

Here consider does not merely mean “think about.”

It means:

> allow this factor to influence your judgment or behaviour

This branch is very close to your passage's consideration = thoughtfulness toward others.

6. consider other people = think about their needs/feelings (體諒) — 顧及別人；替別人着想

Practice 11

> “You need to consider other people.”

「你需要替其他人着想。」

Practice 12

> “Please consider the people waiting for a table.”

「請顧及正在等候座位的人。」

This develops directly into:

> considerate

> consideration for others

7. consider the consequences = think about likely results before acting (後果) — 考慮後果

Practice 13

> “Consider the consequences before you act.”

「行動前先考慮後果。」

This can involve both:

* predicting consequences;

* allowing those consequences to affect the decision.

C. REGARD / JUDGE / BELIEVE

8. consider someone/something + noun/adjective = regard/judge as (認為) — 認為；視為

A major separate verb branch.

Practice 14

> “I consider him a reliable colleague.”

「我認為 / 視他為可靠的同事。」

Practice 15

> “They consider the plan unrealistic.”

「他們認為這個計劃不切實際。」

Pattern:

> consider + object + complement

Examples:

* consider him a friend

* consider it necessary

* consider the idea dangerous

* consider the result satisfactory

9. consider someone/something to be X = regard as X (認為是) **

Practice 16

> “The building is considered to be historically important.”

「這棟建築物被認為具有重要歷史價值。」

Practice 17

> “She is widely considered to be an expert.”

「她普遍被視為專家。」

Very common passive structure.

10. be considered + adjective/noun = be regarded as (被視為) **

Practice 18

> “The area is considered safe.”

「這個地區被認為是安全的。」

Practice 19

> “He is considered a leading researcher.”

「他被視為一位頂尖研究員。」

No to be is necessary:

> considered safe

> considered an expert

Both are standard.

11. consider that... = believe/judge that... (正式) — 認為.....

Practice 20

> “I consider that further investigation is necessary.”

「我認為有必要進一步調查。」

This is more formal, especially in British/formal writing.

Everyday English often prefers:

> I think that...

12. consider oneself + adjective/noun = regard oneself as (自認) **

Practice 21

> “She considers herself fortunate.”

「她認為自己很幸運。」

Practice 22

> “He considers himself an artist.”

「他自視為藝術家。」

13. consider it done = regard the request as effectively completed (固定表達) — 包在我身上 ; 當作已辦妥

Practice 23

> “Can you send the documents today?”

> “Consider it done.”

「你今天可以把文件寄出去嗎？」

「包在我身上 / 當作已經辦妥吧。」

The literal grammar is:

> consider + it + done

= regard it as completed.

But functionally it is a confident promise.

14. consider the matter closed = regard it as finished (視為結束) **

> “We now consider the matter closed.”

「我們現在視此事為已經結束。」

Common formal/institutional wording.

D. EVALUATE A PERSON OR OPTION

15. consider someone for a job/role/award = evaluate them as a possible choice (考慮人選) **

Practice 24

> “She is being considered for promotion.”

「公司正在考慮晉升她。」

Practice 25

> “Several candidates are under consideration for the position.”

「有幾位候選人正被考慮擔任這個職位。」

consider someone for X = 評估某人是否適合 X

16. consider something as an option = evaluate it as a possible choice (選項)

Practice 26

> “We are considering online teaching as an alternative.”

「我們正在考慮把網上教學作為另一個選擇。」

Note:

consider X as Y can be natural when as Y describes the capacity/role in which X is being examined:

> consider this as an option

But for the simple “regard X as Y” structure, English often prefers:

> consider him a friend

rather than:

> consider him as a friend

E. VIEW FROM A PARTICULAR PERSPECTIVE

17. consider something from a particular perspective (分析) — 從某角度考慮 / 審視

Practice 27

> “Consider the issue from the customer’s perspective.”

「請從顧客的角度考慮 / 審視這個問題。」

This is common in:

- * essays
- * analysis
- * ethics
- * policy
- * design

18. consider separately / together / in context (分析) **

> “The two issues should be considered separately.”

「這兩個問題應該分開考慮。」

> “The evidence must be considered in context.”

「證據必須放在具體背景下考量。」

Again, the basic sense is careful examination.

F. IMPORTANT FIXED EXPRESSIONS WITH CONSIDER

19. all things considered = after taking everything relevant into account (總的來說) — 綜合考慮；總體而言

Practice 28

> “All things considered, the plan worked quite well.”

「綜合各方面考慮，這個計劃運作得相當不錯。」

This means:

> after weighing all relevant facts.

20. everything considered

A less fixed variant of the same idea:

> “Everything considered, it was a reasonable decision.”

= 綜合所有因素來看.....

21. consider the source = judge information partly by who/where it came from (固定表達) — 考慮消息來源

Practice 29

> “Before believing the claim, consider the source.”

「相信這個說法之前，要先考慮消息來源是否可靠。」

Often used when a source may be:

* biased

* unreliable

* self-interested

G. CONSIDERING

22. considering = taking into account (介詞) — 考慮到；鑑於

Practice 30

> “The result was excellent, considering the limited time.”

「考慮到時間有限，這個結果已經非常出色。」

Practice 31

> “Considering his age, he performed remarkably well.”

「考慮到他的年齡，他的表現非常出色。」

Here considering functions like a preposition.

23. considering that... = given the fact that... (連接詞) — 考慮到.....；鑑於.....

Practice 32

> “The restaurant was remarkably quiet, considering that it was lunchtime.”

「考慮到當時是午飯時間，餐廳已經非常安靜。」

24. considering = the act/process of thinking about something

Gerund:

> “Considering all the options took several days.”

「考慮所有選項花了幾天時間。」

This is simply the -ing form of the verb rather than a new lexical sense.

H. CONSIDERATION — CAREFUL THOUGHT

25. consideration = careful thought before a decision (考慮) — 考慮；審慎思考

Practice 33

> “After careful consideration, we rejected the proposal.”

「經過仔細考慮後，我們否決了這項建議。」

Practice 34

> “The issue requires further consideration.”

「這個問題需要進一步考慮。」

Usually uncountable here.

Common:

- * careful consideration
- * serious consideration
- * further consideration
- * due consideration

26. give consideration to something = think seriously about it (正式) — 考慮

Practice 35

> “The committee will give further consideration to the proposal.”

「委員會會進一步考慮這項建議。」

Formal alternative to:

> consider the proposal.

27. under consideration = currently being examined (固定表達) — 正在考慮 / 審議中

Practice 36

> “Several options remain under consideration.”

「幾個選項仍然在考慮之中。」

Common in formal, administrative, and business English.

28. take something into consideration = take it into account (納入考量) — 把.....考慮在內

Practice 37

> “We must take the needs of staff into consideration.”

「我們必須把員工的需要考慮在內。」

Equivalent:

> take into account

Very important fixed expression.

29. for consideration = submitted so someone can think/evaluate (供考慮) **

Practice 38

> “I am sending the proposal for your consideration.”

「我把建議交給你考慮 / 審閱。」

Common in formal correspondence:

> for your consideration

30. due consideration = proper/adequate thought (充分考慮)

> “The decision was made after due consideration.”

「這個決定是在充分考慮後作出的。」

due here means:

> proper / appropriate.

I. CONSIDERATION — FACTOR / REASON

31. a consideration = factor that should influence a decision (考量因素) — 考慮因素

This is countable.

Practice 39

> “Cost is an important consideration.”

「成本是一個重要的考慮因素。」

Practice 40

> “Safety considerations must come first.”

「安全方面的考量因素必須放在首位。」

Common:

* practical considerations

* financial considerations

- * ethical considerations
- * safety considerations
- * commercial considerations

32. the main/primary consideration = most important factor (主要考量) **

> “Safety is our primary consideration.”

「安全是我們的首要考量。」

This can sometimes shade toward:

> priority

but consideration emphasizes the factor influencing a decision.

33. commercial/political/ethical considerations (領域因素) **

These mean:

> concerns/factors belonging to that domain.

Example:

> “Ethical considerations affected the design of the study.”

「倫理方面的考量影響了研究設計。」

No need to create separate dictionary senses for each domain.

J. CONSIDERATION — THOUGHTFULNESS TOWARD OTHERS

34. consideration = thoughtful concern for other people (體諒) — 體貼；顧及；為別人着想

This is the exact passage sense.

Practice 41 — Original

> “Convenience matters more than consideration.”

「個人方便似乎比體諒別人更重要。」

Practice 42

> “Please show some consideration for other passengers.”

「請多體諒 / 顧及其他乘客。」

Practice 43

> “He has very little consideration for his neighbours.”

「他很少顧及鄰居的感受。」

consideration for someone = 願意想到自己的行為對別人造成甚麼影響

This is the noun branch directly behind:

> considerate / inconsiderate.

35. show consideration for = be thoughtful toward (固定搭配) — 體諒 ; 顧及

> “Students should show consideration for other customers.”

「學生應該顧及 / 體諒其他顧客。」

36. out of consideration for someone = because you want not to inconvenience/upset them (出於體諒) **

Practice 44

> “They kept the music low out of consideration for the neighbours.”

「他們出於對鄰居的體諒，把音樂聲量調低。」

Useful formal construction.

K. CONSIDERATION — PAYMENT / EXCHANGE

37. for a consideration = in return for payment/reward (正式) — 收取報酬 ; 有償

A formal sense:

> “He agreed to provide the information for a consideration.”

Approximately:

「他同意在收取一定報酬 / 代價後提供資料。」

Here a consideration means:

> payment, reward, or something given in return.

This is formal and not especially common in everyday speech.

38. in consideration of = in return for / in exchange for (正式 / 法律) — 作為.....的代價 / 交換條件

Practice 45

> “The payment was made in consideration of the services provided.”

「該筆款項是作為所提供服務的代價而支付。」

Can also occasionally mean:

> because of / in view of,

but the exchange/legal interpretation is important in contracts.

39. consideration — contract law (法律) — 約因 ; 對價

In common-law contract terminology, consideration is generally something of legal value bargained for or exchanged between the parties as part of forming/enforcing certain contracts.

繁體中文 : 常譯作 約因 / 對價

Examples may involve:

- * money
- * a promise
- * an act

* refraining from an act

The precise legal requirements vary by jurisdiction and contract type.

Example

> “The court examined whether valid consideration had been given.”

「法院審視是否存在有效的約因 / 對價。」

This is a genuinely distinct specialist legal sense.

40. valuable consideration / sufficient consideration (法律) **

Established contract-law phrases:

- * valuable consideration
- * good/sufficient consideration
- * consideration moving from a party

Their exact technical interpretation depends on jurisdiction.

Keep under the legal branch rather than treating each as a separate meaning.

L. MARKETING / BUSINESS EXTENSIONS

41. consideration set = brands/options a consumer seriously considers (市場學) — 考慮集合

In consumer-behaviour/marketing terminology, a consideration set is the subset of brands/products/options that a consumer seriously considers when making a choice.

Example:

> “The campaign aims to put the brand into consumers’ consideration set.”

「這項推廣希望令品牌進入消費者的考慮名單 / 考慮集合。」

Specialist but established.

42. consideration stage = evaluation stage in a marketing funnel (市場推廣) — 考慮階段

In marketing funnels/customer journeys:

- * awareness
- * consideration
- * conversion/purchase

The consideration stage is when potential customers actively evaluate alternatives.

This is a domain application of:

> consideration = evaluation.

M. CONSIDERED

43. considered = carefully thought out (形容詞) — 經深思熟慮的 ; 審慎的

Practice 46

> “That is my considered opinion.”

「那是我經過深思熟慮後的意見。」

Practice 47

> “The committee issued a considered response.”

「委員會作出了審慎考慮後的回應。」

Common:

- * considered opinion
- * considered judgment
- * considered response
- * considered view

considered = not impulsive; formed after careful thought

44. well-considered = carefully and sensibly thought through (經充分考慮的) **

> “It was a well-considered decision.”

「那是一個經充分考慮的決定。」

45. ill-considered = poorly thought out (欠缺考慮的) — 考慮不周的 ; 草率的

Practice 48

> “It was an ill-considered remark.”

「那是一句欠缺考慮 / 草率的說話。」

Useful formal adjective.

46. unconsidered = not properly thought about/taken into account (未經考慮)

> “The decision had several unconsidered consequences.”

「這個決定帶來幾個未曾考慮到的後果。」

Less common than:

* overlooked

* not considered

but genuine.

N. CONSIDERABLE

This word must be separated carefully from considerate.

47. considerable = large in amount, size, degree, importance, or extent (相當大的) — 相當大的 ; 可觀的 ; 大量的

Practice 49

> “The project requires considerable investment.”

「這個項目需要相當可觀的投資。」

Practice 50

> “She has considerable experience.”

「她有相當豐富的經驗。」

Practice 51

> “The decision caused considerable concern.”

「這個決定引起了相當大的憂慮。」

considerable = sufficiently large or important to be noticeable/significant

Common:

- * considerable amount
- * considerable number
- * considerable distance
- * considerable time
- * considerable effort
- * considerable experience
- * considerable influence
- * considerable importance

48. a considerable amount/number = quite a lot (不少)

> “A considerable amount of money was spent.”

「花了相當大一筆錢。」

> “A considerable number of people attended.”

「有相當多人出席。」

49. considerable importance/significance = substantial importance (相當重要)

> “The discovery is of considerable importance.”

「這項發現具有相當重要的意義。」

Formal/common academic usage.

50. considerable ≠ considerate

Very important:

considerable

= large/substantial

> considerable cost

> 相當大的成本

considerate

= thoughtful toward others

> considerate neighbour

> 體貼的鄰居

They are completely different in modern usage.

O. CONSIDERABLY

51. considerably = by a large/notable amount (大幅) — 相當地；大大地；顯著地

Practice 52

> “Prices have risen considerably.”

「價格已經大幅上升。」

Practice 53

> “The second version is considerably better.”

「第二個版本好得多 / 明顯較好。」

Practice 54

> “Travel time was reduced considerably.”

「行程時間大幅縮短。」

considerably = to a noticeably large degree

Common:

- * considerably more
- * considerably less
- * considerably higher
- * considerably better
- * considerably different

52. considerably more/less = much more/less

Practice 55

> “This option is considerably cheaper.”

「這個選擇*便宜得多*。」

Often somewhat more formal than:

> much cheaper.

P. CONSIDERATE

53. considerate = thoughtful about other people's needs/feelings (體貼) — 體貼的；為別人着想的

This is the adjective directly connected to your passage.

Practice 56

> “It was considerate of her to keep her voice low.”

「她把聲音降低，真的很*體貼 / 顧及別人*。」

Practice 57

> “Please be considerate of other customers.”

「請*顧及 / 體諒*其他顧客。」

considerate = 會主動想到自己的行為對別人的影響，並盡量避免造成麻煩或不適

54. considerate of/towards someone (體諒某人) **

Common:

- > considerate of others
- > considerate towards colleagues

considerate of especially common:

- > “That was very considerate of you.”

「你真的很體貼。」

55. considerate behaviour/action = designed not to inconvenience others

Examples:

- * keeping noise down
- * arriving on time
- * giving up a seat
- * respecting shared space

This is precisely the ethical/social concept in your editorial passage.

Q. CONSIDERATELY

56. considerately = in a thoughtful way toward others (體貼地) **

Practice 58

- > “He spoke quietly and considerately.”

「他以安靜而體貼的方式說話。」

A valid but less frequent word than considerate.

R. INCONSIDERATE

57. *inconsiderate = not thinking about other people's needs/feelings (不體諒) — 不體貼的 ; 不替別人着想的***

Practice 59

> “It was inconsiderate to occupy the table for three hours.”

「佔着桌子三小時是很*不替別人着想的*。」

Practice 60

> “His loud music was inconsiderate to the neighbours.”

More naturally:

> “It was inconsiderate of him to play loud music.”

「他把音樂播得那麼大聲，對鄰居很*不體諒*。」

*inconsiderate = 沒有充分考慮自己的行為會怎樣影響其他人***

58. *inconsiderate of someone = thoughtless behaviour by that person***

> “It was inconsiderate of them to arrive so late.”

「他們遲到那麼久，實在很*不體貼 / 不顧及別人*。」

59. *inconsiderately = without thought for others (不體貼地) ******

> “They behaved inconsiderately.”

「他們的行為*沒有顧及別人*。」

S. CONSIDERATENESS / INCONSIDERATENESS

60. *considerateness = quality of being considerate (體貼) ******

Valid, but much less frequent than:

> consideration for others

or:

> thoughtfulness.

Example:

> “Her considerateness made everyone feel welcome.”

「她的體貼令大家都感到很受歡迎。」

61. inconsiderateness = lack of consideration for others (不體貼) **

Valid but clumsy/low-frequency.

Usually English prefers:

> inconsiderate behaviour

> lack of consideration

T. RECONSIDER

62. reconsider = think again about a decision/opinion/plan (重新考慮) — 重新考慮；再作考量

Practice 61

> “The company agreed to reconsider its decision.”

「公司同意重新考慮其決定。」

Practice 62

> “You may want to reconsider your options.”

「你可能需要重新考慮自己的選擇。」

reconsider = 因新資料、疑問、反對意見或情況改變而再次思考已考慮 / 決定過的事情

63. reconsider doing something

> “She reconsidered leaving the job.”

「她重新考慮是否離職。」

Same grammar:

> reconsider + -ing

64. *reconsider something in light of new evidence (正式) ****

> “The conclusion should be reconsidered in light of the new evidence.”

「基於新證據，這個結論應該*重新審視*。」

U. RECONSIDERATION

65. *reconsideration = fresh examination of a previous decision (重新考慮) ****

Practice 63

> “The decision is open to reconsideration.”

「這個決定仍可*重新考慮*。」

Practice 64

> “New evidence prompted a reconsideration of the policy.”

「新證據促使人們*重新審視*這項政策。」

66. *upon reconsideration = after thinking again (再三考慮後) ****

> “Upon reconsideration, we decided to accept the proposal.”

「重新考慮後，我們決定接受建議。」

Formal.

67. motion for reconsideration (法律 / 程序) — 要求重新考慮的動議 / 申請

In courts, legislatures, boards, and formal bodies, a motion for reconsideration can request that a previous ruling or decision be examined again.

The precise procedural rules depend on the institution/jurisdiction.

V. IMPORTANT DISTINCTIONS

consider vs think about think about

broad, everyday.

consider

usually suggests more deliberate evaluation.

> think about moving

> consider moving

Very close, but consider is often more purposeful/formal.

consider vs contemplate

contemplate

means think deeply about something or seriously consider a possibility.

It is more formal and often more prolonged.

> contemplate retirement

> consider retirement

consider vs evaluate

evaluate

means systematically assess quality/value/performance according to criteria.

consider

means think about something as part of reaching a judgment.

You can consider evidence before evaluating a proposal.

consider vs assess assess

focuses on estimating/measuring:

- * quality
- * risk
- * value
- * condition

consider

is broader mental examination.

consider vs regard

For “view as”:

regard X as Y

> regard him as an expert

consider X Y / consider X to be Y

- > consider him an expert
- > consider him to be an expert

All mean broadly:

> 視為 / 認為.

consider vs believe

believe

means hold something to be true.

consider

in the judgment sense often suggests an evaluation:

> “I consider the proposal impractical.”

= after evaluating it, I judge it impractical.

consider vs take into account

consider

can mean simply think about.

take into account

specifically means allow the factor to affect the decision.

> “We considered the weather.”

can be ambiguous.

> “We took the weather into account.”

clearly means it influenced the planning.

consideration vs thought

thought

is extremely broad.

consideration

often implies deliberate, careful thought before action.

- > after some thought
- > after careful consideration

The latter is more formal.

consideration vs factor

A factor is the thing influencing an outcome.

A consideration is a factor viewed from the perspective of decision-making.

- > cost is a factor
- > cost is an important consideration

Very close.

consideration vs concern

concern

can mean worry or an issue of importance.

consideration

can mean a factor to weigh or thoughtfulness toward others.

- > safety concern
- > safety consideration

Not always interchangeable.

consideration vs courtesy

In your passage:

consideration

= thinking about how your actions affect others.

courtesy

= polite/respectful behaviour.

Consideration often produces courtesy, but they are not identical.

consideration vs compassion

compassion

= sympathy for suffering plus desire to help.

consideration

= thoughtful regard for someone's needs/feelings.

You can show consideration without the person being in distress.

considerate vs kind

kind

broadly means benevolent, friendly, helpful.

considerate

specifically means thoughtful about other people's needs and inconvenience.

> donating money may be kind > keeping quiet while someone sleeps is considerate.

considerate vs thoughtful

Very close.

thoughtful

can mean considerate:

> “That was thoughtful of you.”

but also:

> thinking deeply

> “a thoughtful essay.”

considerate

almost always concerns regard for others.

considerate vs considerable

Critical distinction:

Word	Meaning
-----	-----
considerate	體貼的；為別人着想的
considerable	相當大的；可觀的

> a considerate person

> a considerable amount considerably vs carefully

considerably

= by a large amount

> considerably higher

carefully

= with care

> consider carefully

Completely different despite the family resemblance.

considered vs considerate

considered opinion

= 經深思熟慮的意見

considerate person

= 體貼的人 considered vs considerable

considered

= thought about carefully / regarded as

considerable

= large/substantial

> considered judgment

> considerable expense

consideration vs considerable

One is a noun meaning thought/factor/thoughtfulness.

The other is an adjective meaning:

> substantial.

Do not infer:

> considerable = worthy of consideration

in ordinary modern English.

W. GRAMMAR SUMMARY

consider + noun

> consider the proposal

= 考慮建議。

consider + -ing

> consider moving

= 考慮搬遷。

consider + wh-clause

> consider whether we should leave

= 考慮我們是否應該離開。

consider + object + noun/adjective

> consider him reliable

> consider her a friend

= 認為 / 視為。

consider + object + to be

> consider the plan to be unrealistic

= 認為.....是.....

More formal.

consider someone for

> consider her for the role

= 考慮她是否適合該職位。 consideration for

Usually thoughtfulness:

> consideration for others

= 對別人的體諒。

consideration of

Usually examination/thought:

> consideration of the proposal

= 對建議的考慮。

consideration in

Can identify the relevant decision/context:

> an important consideration in choosing a school

= 選校時的重要考量。

X. COUNTABILITY

consideration — careful thought

Usually uncountable:

> after careful consideration

> needs further consideration

consideration — factor

Countable:

- > an important consideration
- > several practical considerations

consideration — thoughtfulness

Usually uncountable:

- > show consideration
- > consideration for others

consideration — payment

Can appear countably:

- > for a consideration

Formal.

consideration — legal

Normally treated as a legal concept/mass noun:

- > valid consideration
- > lack of consideration

though individual items constituting consideration can be discussed.

Y. FAMILY MAP

Family member	Main modern meanings
-----	-----
consider	think carefully; take into account; regard/judge; evaluate as candidate
considering	taking into account; given that considered	carefully thought out; regarded/judged

consideration	careful thought; decision factor; thoughtfulness; legal/payment exchange considerable	substantial/large/notable
considerably	by a large amount/degree
considerate	thoughtful toward others
considerately	in a thoughtful way
inconsiderate	failing to think about others
reconsider	think again about a prior decision/view
reconsideration	renewed examination
well-considered	carefully and sensibly thought through ill-considered	poorly thought through
unconsidered	not sufficiently thought about/taken into account

Master comparison

Form / sense	MCQ-ready Traditional Chinese meaning
-----	-----
consider — think carefully	對某件事仔細思考 / 考慮
consider doing	考慮是否做某件事
consider whether/how	思考某個問題應否 / 如何處理
consider — take into account	把某因素納入判斷，顧及其影響
consider other people	顧及別人的需要或感受
consider X Y	認為 / 視 X 為 Y
consider X to be Y	認為 X 是 Y
be considered X	被普遍認為 / 視為 X
consider someone for a role	評估某人是否適合某職位 / 機會
consider it done	表示自己會辦妥；包在我身上
all things considered	把所有相關因素都考慮後；總體而言
considering	考慮到；鑑於
consideration — thought	作決定前的仔細思考 / 考慮
under consideration	正在審議 / 考慮之中
take into consideration	把某因素考慮在內
consideration — factor	會影響決定的考量因素
consideration — thoughtfulness	顧及 / 體諒別人的需要與感受
out of consideration for	出於對某人的體諒
consideration — payment	作為交換而支付的報酬 / 代價；正式
consideration — contract law	普通法合同中的約因 / 對價
consideration set	消費者真正納入比較的品牌 / 選項集合
considered opinion	經過深思熟慮後形成的意見
well-considered	經充分而審慎考慮的
ill-considered	欠缺充分考慮、草率的
unconsidered	沒有被充分思考 / 納入考量的
considerable	數量、程度、重要性等相當大 / 可觀的
considerably	大幅地；相當程度地
considerate	願意顧及別人需要、感受和方便的；體貼的
considerately	體貼地；顧及別人地
inconsiderate	沒有顧及別人需要 / 感受的；不體貼的

reconsider	對原有決定、觀點或計劃重新思考
reconsideration	對原有決定 / 問題重新審議

For your original sentence

> "...convenience matters more than consideration."

The exact meaning is:

*consideration = 願意想到自己的行為會否佔用他人的空間、增加別人的不便，並因此作出較體貼的選擇

So:

> convenience matters more than consideration

= 把自己的方便看得比體諒別人更重要

The closest family adjective is:

> considerate

So the implied criticism is that the behaviour is:

> inconsiderate

= 沒有顧及其他顧客的需要。

For the database, I would treat the family as six major semantic clusters:

1. CONSIDER — think/evaluate carefully
2. CONSIDER — take factors/people into account
3. CONSIDER — regard/judge as
4. CONSIDERATION — thought / factor / thoughtfulness / legal exchange
5. CONSIDERABLE — substantial in size or degree
6. CONSIDERATE — thoughtful toward others

Then reconsider, considered, considering, considerably, inconsiderate, and the fixed/legal/business constructions should all remain indexed explicitly, because several of them have developed meanings that are no longer safely predictable from the base verb alone.