**Part of speech:** noun ( 名詞 ) / verb ( 動詞 ) ; attributive noun in compounds such as **dream job**

Your passage:

> "...the other opens to a café **dream** shared with friends..."

and later:

> "...do not treat it as a surrender of your **dream**..."

> "A **Dream** Needs More Than a Dream"

Meaning in this passage

Here, **dream** means **a strongly desired future ambition or life goal that the person hopes to make real**.

Kam Chai's dream is:

> opening and running a café with friends.

**繁體中文：****

* **夢想****

* **理想****

* **長遠願望****

* **希望實現的人生目標****

A natural translation:

> “a café **dream** shared with friends”

「與朋友共同擁有的**開咖啡店夢想****」

This is **not** the sleeping sense of dream.

---

A. DREAM DURING SLEEP

1. **a dream = sequence of images, thoughts, feelings, or events experienced while sleeping
( 夢 ; 夢境 ) ****

This is the original/core noun sense.

> “I had a strange **dream** last night.”

「我昨晚做了一個奇怪的**夢****。」

> “She woke up in the middle of a dream.”

「她在**夢境**中途醒來。」

Here:

**dream = 睡眠期間主觀經歷的影像、思想、情緒或故事****

---

2. **have a dream = 做夢****

The normal English construction is:

> **have a dream****

rather than literally *make a dream*.

> “I had a dream about school.”

「我夢見學校的事情。」

---

3. **dream about/of someone or something during sleep = 夢見**

> “I dreamed about my old neighbourhood.”

「我夢見以前住的社區。」

> “She dreamt of her grandmother.”

「她夢見祖母。」

Both **about** and **of** occur.

---

4. **dream that + clause = 夢見.....**

> “I dreamed that I was flying.”

「我夢見自己在飛。」

Very important grammar pattern.

---

5. **bad dream = 惡夢 / 不好的夢**

> “The child woke after a bad dream.”

「孩子做了**惡夢**後醒來。」

A **bad dream** overlaps with **nightmare**, but **nightmare** usually suggests a more frightening/distressing dream.

---

6. **pleasant / beautiful / wonderful dream = 美夢**

> “It was such a beautiful dream that I didn't want to wake up.”

「那是一個很美的**夢**，我甚至不想醒來。」

# B. DREAM SCIENCE / SLEEP

7. **dreaming = the experience/process of having dreams ( 做夢現象 )**

> “Dreaming occurs during sleep.”

「人在睡眠期間會有**做夢現象**。」

Sleep science studies dreaming during different sleep stages, although vivid dreaming is especially associated with REM sleep.

---

8. **REM dream / REM dreaming ( 睡眠科學 )**

REM = **rapid eye movement** sleep.

Dream reports after REM sleep are often vivid and narrative-like, although dreaming is not limited exclusively to REM sleep.

**繁體中文：** **快速眼動睡眠中的夢境**

---

9. **dream content = 夢境內容**

What occurs in a person's dream:

- * people
- * events
- * imagery
- * emotions
- * settings

---

10. **dream recall = remembering one's dreams ( 夢境回憶能力 )**

> “Her dream recall is unusually good.”

「她記住夢境的能力很強。」

---

11. **dream report = account of a dream ( 夢境報告 ) **

Used in:

* psychology

* sleep research

---

# C. LUCID DREAM

12. **lucid dream = dream in which the dreamer knows they are dreaming ( 清醒夢 / 清明夢 ) **

> “He realized he was dreaming and entered a lucid dream.”

「他意識到自己正在做夢，進入了**清醒夢**狀態。」

A lucid dream does not necessarily mean the dreamer can fully control everything in the dream.

---

13. **lucid dreaming = 清醒夢現象 / 清明夢**

The state/practice of becoming aware during a dream that one is dreaming.

# D. RECURRING DREAM

14. **recurring dream = dream occurring repeatedly ( 反覆出現的夢 ) **

> “She has a recurring dream about missing a train.”

「她反覆夢見自己趕不上火車。」

# E. FEVER DREAM

15. **fever dream = vivid/strange dream associated with fever ( 發燒夢 ) **

A dream experienced while feverish and often described as unusually vivid or bizarre.

16. **fever dream — figurative = bizarre, surreal experience**

Informal modern extension:

> “The whole evening felt like a fever dream.”

「整個晚上都像一場**荒誕離奇的夢**。」

Here there may be no actual fever or sleep.

---

F. WET DREAM

17. **wet dream = erotic dream associated with nocturnal emission ( 夢遺 )**

A normal physiological phenomenon, particularly associated with puberty/adolescence but possible beyond it.

**繁體中文：***夢遺；伴隨遺精的性夢境**

This is a genuine established compound and should be indexed separately.

G. DREAM INTERPRETATION

18. **dream interpretation = interpretation of dream meaning ( 解夢；夢境解析 )**

May refer to:

- * traditional/cultural practices;
- * psychotherapy traditions;
- * informal attempts to understand dream content.

Different schools make very different claims about what dreams signify.

---

19. **interpret a dream = 解讀夢境**

> “She tried to interpret the dream.”

「她嘗試**解讀這個夢**。」

---

H. DREAM = HOPE / AMBITION

20. **dream = strongly desired future goal ( 夢想 ) **

This is your **exact passage branch**.

> “Her dream is to become a doctor.”

「她的**夢想**是成為醫生。」

> “Opening a café had always been his dream.”

「開咖啡店一直是他的**夢想**。」

This is one of the most important modern senses.

---

21. **dream of doing something = long to achieve it ( 夢想做..... ) **

> “He dreams of opening his own café.”

「他夢想開自己的咖啡店。」

Pattern:

> **dream of + noun / -ing**

---

22. **dream about doing something = imagine/think hopefully about doing it**

> “She often dreams about travelling around the world.”

「她常常幻想 / 夢想環遊世界。」

For ambitions, **dream of** often sounds slightly more conventional and goal-oriented, while **dream about** may emphasize imaginative thought. There is substantial overlap.

---

23. **dream of becoming X**

> “She dreamed of becoming a writer.”

「她夢想成為作家。」

24. **childhood dream = 兒時夢想**

> “Owning a bakery was her childhood dream.”

「擁有自己的麵包店是她的**兒時夢想**。」

---

25. **lifelong dream = 畢生夢想**

> “The journey fulfilled a lifelong dream.”

「這趟旅程實現了她的**畢生夢想**。」

---

26. **shared dream = 共同夢想**

Your passage:

> “a café dream shared with friends”

= **與朋友共同擁有的夢想**

---

I. PURSUE / FOLLOW / CHASE A DREAM

27. **pursue a dream = actively work toward it ( 追求夢想 ) **

> “She left her old career to pursue her dream.”

「她離開原來的職業去**追求夢想**。」

---

28. **follow one's dream = 追隨 / 追求夢想**

> “His friends encouraged him to follow his dream.”

「朋友鼓勵他**追求自己的夢想**。」

Usually implies acting in accordance with a deeply desired goal.

---

29. **chase a dream = 追逐夢想**

Often more vivid and potentially less grounded than **pursue**.

Can be positive:

> “Keep chasing your dream.”

or skeptical:

> “He spent years chasing an impossible dream.”

---

J. ACHIEVE / REALISE A DREAM

30. **achieve one's dream = 實現夢想**

> “After years of work, she achieved her dream.”

「多年努力後，她終於**實現夢想**。」

---

31. **realise/realize one's dream = 把夢想變成現實**

> “He finally realized his dream of opening a restaurant.”

「他終於實現了開餐廳的夢想。」

---

32. **fulfil/fulfill a dream = 完成 / 實現夢想**

> “Winning the championship fulfilled a childhood dream.”

「奪冠實現了他的兒時夢想。」

---

33. **make a dream come true = 令夢想成真**

> “The scholarship made her dream come true.”

「獎學金讓她的**夢想成真**。」

K. DREAM COME TRUE

34. **a dream come true = something wonderful that one had long hoped for ( 夢想成真 )**

Practice

> “Opening the café was a dream come true.”

「開設咖啡店簡直是**夢想成真**。」

Grammatically, **come true** functions postpositively here:

> a dream **come true**

not normally:

> *a come-true dream*.

---

L. DREAM = IDEAL / HIGHLY DESIRABLE THING

35. **dream + noun = ideal or especially desirable version of something ( 夢寐以求的 )**

A very productive attributive use.

Examples:

- * dream job

**

> “The company assembled a dream team of designers.”

「公司組成了一支設計師**夢幻團隊**。」

Can refer to:

* sports;

* business;

* entertainment;

* any ideal group.

---

42. **dream lineup = 理想陣容**

A related productive expression.

N. DREAM TICKET

43. **dream ticket = ideal combination of two candidates/people ( 夢幻組合 ) **

Most famously used in electoral or leadership contexts, but can also be broader.

Lexically:

> a combination regarded by supporters/observers as especially attractive or complementary.

Because political evaluation can be contested, use this as a lexical definition rather than declaring any real candidates a “dream ticket.”

**繁體中文： ** **理想搭檔 / 夢幻組合**

O. A DREAM = SOMETHING WONDERFUL / EXCELLENT

44. **be a dream = be extremely pleasant/easy/excellent ( 非常理想 ) **

Informal:

P. DREAM = FANTASY / UNREALISTIC HOPE

47. **dream = unrealistic fantasy ( 幻想 ; 空想 ) **

The word can become skeptical or negative.

> “The project is still only a dream.”

「這個項目仍然只是一個**幻想 / 遙遠構想**。」

Context determines whether **dream** sounds inspiring or unrealistic.

---

48. **idle dream = 不切實際的空想**

Formal/literary.

49. **impossible dream = 不可能實現的夢想**

Can be literal or rhetorical.

Q. PIPE DREAM

50. **pipe dream = unrealistic or impossible hope ( 白日夢 ; 不切實際的幻想 ) **

> “Without funding, the project may remain a pipe dream.”

「沒有資金，這個項目可能只會停留在**不切實際的幻想**。」

A pipe dream is much more skeptical than ordinary dream.

---

# R. DREAM WORLD / DREAMLAND

51. dream world = imaginary/idealized mental world ( 幻想世界 )

> “He seems to live in a dream world.”

「他好像活在自己的幻想世界裏。」

Often critical:

> detached from practical reality.

---

52. live in a dream world = 脫離現實 / 活在幻想中

> “You can't run a business while living in a dream world.”

「經營生意不能一直活在幻想裏。」

Highly relevant to the theme of your passage.

---

53. dreamland = dreamlike imaginary place / state of sleep ( 夢鄉 ; 夢境 )

Literal/poetic

「他夢想開一間咖啡店。」

This is probably the most important verb construction for your passage.

---

W. **WOULD NEVER DREAM OF**

61. **wouldn't dream of doing X = would never consider doing it ( 絕不會想到 / 絕不會做 ) **

A highly important idiom.

> “I wouldn't dream of taking credit for her work.”

「我**絕不會想過**把她的功勞據為己有。」

Meaning:

> the action is so unacceptable/unlikely that the speaker would not even consider it.

It is not about literal sleeping dreams.

62. **wouldn't dream of asking = 不敢 / 絕不會想到要問**

Depending on context, can indicate:

- * politeness;
- * moral refusal;
- * extreme improbability.

---

X. **NEVER DREAMED THAT...**

63. **never dreamed that X = never imagined X was possible ( 從未想過 )**

> “I never dreamed that the business would become so successful.”

「我**從未想過**這門生意會如此成功。」

Strong sense of surprise.

---

64. **little did I dream... = 我萬萬沒想到.....**

* wonderfully pleasant;

* surreal/unreal.

AI. **DREAMLIKE**

77. **dreamlike = having the unreal/strange quality of a dream ( 夢幻般的 ; 如夢的 ) **

Although often written as one word **dreamlike**, it is an established derivative/compound.

> “The film has a dreamlike atmosphere.”

「電影有一種**夢幻般的氣氛**。」

Can be:

* beautiful;

* strange;

* hazy;

* surreal.

---

AJ. **DREAMER**

78. **dreamer = person who dreams during sleep ( 做夢的人 ) **

Literal but uncommon except in scientific/contrastive contexts:

AQ. **DAYDREAMER**

90. **daydreamer** = person who often daydreams ( 愛幻想的人 ) **

May be affectionate or critical.

AR. **DREAMER VS VISIONARY**

**dreamer**

can mean someone with aspirations, but may imply impracticality.

**visionary**

usually emphasizes imaginative ideas about the future with greater positive connotations of insight/innovation.

> “He's a dreamer.”

may be criticism.

> “He's a visionary.”

usually praise.

---

AS. DREAM = IDEALIZED DESIRE VS GOAL

A particularly important distinction for your passage:

**dream**

emotionally powerful desired future.

**goal**

specific result someone intends to achieve.

**plan**

steps intended to achieve it.

**target**

measurable result or benchmark.

Your passage deliberately moves Kam Chai from:

> **dream**

to:

> savings targets + deadlines + milestones + evidence.

That is the essay's central rhetorical move.

---

# AT. DREAM VS AMBITION

### **dream**

often more emotional, imaginative, personally meaningful.

### **ambition**

strong desire for achievement/status/success, often more purposeful.

> dream of owning a café

> ambition to build a successful restaurant company

Large overlap.

# AU. DREAM VS ASPIRATION

### **aspiration**

formal word for a hope/ambition toward a future achievement.

### **dream**

more emotional and vivid.

> educational aspirations

> childhood dream

# AV. DREAM VS HOPE

### **hope**

desire that something happen, usually with some perceived possibility.

### **dream**

can be much bigger, more imaginative, or less realistic.

> “I hope it doesn't rain tomorrow.”

Normally not:

> “I dream it doesn't rain tomorrow.”

# AW. DREAM VS WISH

### **wish**

desire for something, sometimes unlikely/impossible.

### **dream**

often a sustained imagined future or ambition.

> wish for good weather

> dream of owning a café.

# AX. DREAM VS FANTASY

### **fantasy**

imagined situation detached from reality, often knowingly.

### **dream**

can be realistic ambition **or** fantasy.

That ambiguity is important in your passage:

> dream + practical preparation > versus > fantasy + wishful thinking.

---

# AY. DREAM VS VISION

### **vision**

clear imagined future or strategic direction.

### **dream**

more personal/emotional aspiration.

A dream can become a vision when developed more concretely.

---

# AZ. DREAM VS DELUSION

### **dream**

ordinary hope/fantasy and does not imply mental disorder.

### **delusion**

in clinical contexts, a fixed false belief meeting specific psychiatric criteria.

Do not casually equate an unrealistic dream with a clinical delusion.

---

# BA. DREAM VS NIGHTMARE

### **dream**

neutral umbrella term.

### **nightmare**

distressing/frightening dream.

Figuratively:

> “The project became a nightmare.”

= 極糟糕的經歷 / 惡夢般局面.

---

# BB. DREAM VS DAYDREAM

### **dream**

usually during sleep, or figuratively an ambition.

### **daydream**

imaginary thought while awake.

BC. DREAM VS PIPE DREAM

**dream**

may be realistic and achievable.

**pipe dream**

specifically unrealistic/improbable.

Your café idea is called a **dream**, not a **pipe dream**, because the latter treats it as potentially achievable with preparation.

---

BD. DREAM VS IDEAL

**ideal**

perfect or optimal model/state.

**dream**

what a person strongly wants.

Your dream home may not objectively be everyone's ideal home.

---

BE. IMPORTANT GRAMMAR

91. **dream of + noun / -ing**

> dream of success

> dream of opening a café

Can mean:

* aspiration;

* sleeping dream.

Context decides.

---

92. **dream about + noun / -ing**

> dream about travelling

Also either:

* sleep dream;

* imaginative fantasy.

---

93. **dream that + clause**

Most naturally a sleeping/imagining construction:

> "I dreamed that I was rich."

---

94. **dream + object**

Usually **dream** is not used transitively with an ordinary noun:

> *I dreamed success* ❌

But idiomatic/literary constructions exist:

> dream a dream

> dream the impossible dream

Normally use:

> dream **of/about** success.

---

95. **dream someone/something up**

> dream up an idea

The object belongs after **up** or between verb and particle:

> dream the idea up though the first is more natural.

---

96. **dream away + time**

> dream the afternoon away

= spend it daydreaming/idly imagining.

---

BF. DREAMED VS DREAMT

Both are standard.

**dreamed**

very common across varieties and especially common in American English.

**dreamt**

especially common in British English and other varieties.

Examples:

> "I dreamed about it."

> "I dreamt about it."

Both correct.

---

BG. PRONUNCIATION/GRAMMAR TRAP: **DREAMED**

Past-tense **dreamed** is pronounced with a single final /d/ sound after the /m/; it is not an extra syllable like *dream-ed* in ordinary modern English.

BH. COUNTABILITY

Sleep experience

Countable:

> a dream
> several dreams.

### Ambition

Countable:

> a dream
> her dreams.

### Abstract activity of dreaming

Usually expressed through:

> dreaming

rather than mass noun *dream*.

# BI. CULTURAL COMPOUND: **THE AMERICAN DREAM**

97. **American Dream = cultural ideal of achieving a better/prosperous life through opportunity and effort**

A historically evolving cultural concept rather than one single precisely defined promise.

**繁體中文： ** **美國夢**

It may involve ideas such as:

- * opportunity;
- * upward mobility;
- * prosperity;
- * home ownership;
- * personal freedom,

depending on speaker/time period.

This is a conventional proper-noun compound, not merely “a dream an American has.”

# BJ. DREAM IN ADVERTISING / BUSINESS

98. **sell the dream = promote an attractive idealized future**

> “The advertisement sells the dream of effortless luxury.”

「廣告推銷一種毫不費力便能享受奢華生活的**理想幻想**。」

Can sound skeptical:

> marketing the aspiration rather than the practical reality.

---

BK. **DREAM CUSTOMER / CLIENT?**

Productive but less lexicalized:

> dream client

> dream customer

= ideal/easy/desirable client.

Treat these compositionally under:

> **dream + noun = ideal version**

rather than separate dictionary senses.

BL. **DREAM DESTINATION**

99. **dream destination = place one strongly wishes to visit ( 夢想目的地 )**

Another productive **dream + noun** compound.

BM. **DREAM SCHOOL / UNIVERSITY**

100. **dream school / dream university = institution someone most hopes to attend ( 夢想學校 )**

Again, productive ideal/desire branch.

For your passage

The text deliberately contrasts **dream** with the practical machinery needed to make one real:

- > café **dream**
- > → savings
- > → research
- > → testing
- > → budget
- > → milestones
- > → partnership agreement
- > → customer demand.

So in:

> “A Dream Needs More Than a Dream”

the repeated word performs two related functions.

The first Dream is:

> a meaningful long-term ambition

while the second invites the additional idea:

> merely imagining/wishing is insufficient.

The title can therefore be understood roughly as:

> 「夢想不能只靠夢想本身實現。」

And this sentence:

> “do not treat it as a surrender of your dream”

means:

> 接受升職並不等於放棄開咖啡店的人生目標。

For the core database, I would keep 5 principal semantic branches:

1. sleep experience — a dream / to dream
2. strong hope, ambition, or desired future
3. fantasy or unrealistic imagined possibility
4. ideal/highly desirable person, thing, or situation — dream job, dream team, be a dream
5. imaginative mental creation — dream of/about, dream up, daydream

Then explicitly index the major family/construction extensions dreamer, dreamy, dreamless, daydream, lucid dream, recurring dream, pipe dream, dream come true, wouldn't dream of, dream on, in your dreams, beyond one's wildest dreams, because these have meanings or pragmatic functions that a simple 「夢 / 夢想」 entry would miss.
