Your passage:

> "...a café dream shared with friends, full of freedom, risk and possibility."

Meaning in this passage

Here, freedom means greater personal autonomy and control over one's own working life—being able to make one's own decisions instead of being constrained by an ordinary company job.

Kam Chai imagines running a café as offering:

- * more independence;
- * greater control over decisions;
- * more opportunity to create something personally meaningful;
- * less dependence on an employer.

繁體中文：

* 自由 *

* 自主 *

* 自己作主的空間 *

* 掌握自己工作和生活方向的自由 *

A natural interpretation is:

> "full of freedom, risk and possibility"

「充滿自主自由、風險和可能性」

Here freedom is not primarily political liberty. It means:

> 有較大空間按照自己的想法工作、作決定和安排人生。

A. FREEDOM = ABILITY TO ACT AS ONE CHOOSES

1. freedom = ability to act, choose, or live without unnecessary restriction (自由)

This is the central general meaning.

> "She values her freedom."

「她很珍惜自己的自由。」

> “Working independently gives him greater freedom.”

「獨立工作給他更大的自主空間。」

The essential idea is:

> restriction ↓ → ability to choose ↑

2. personal freedom = 個人自由

The ability to make personal choices about one's own life.

> “He wanted more personal freedom.”

「他希望有更多個人自主權 / 自由。」

3. individual freedom = 個人自由

Often used when discussing how much scope individuals should have to make their own decisions.

B. FREEDOM = AUTONOMY / CONTROL OVER ONE'S LIFE

4. freedom = autonomy over one's work/lifestyle (自主權) **

This is especially close to your passage.

> “Self-employment gave her greater freedom.”

「自僱讓她擁有更大的自主權。」

It can involve choosing:

- * schedule;
- * work;
- * customers;
- * location;
- * methods;
- * priorities.

5. freedom at work = 工作自主空間

> “The role gives employees considerable freedom.”

「這個職位給員工很大的自主空間。」

6. freedom over one's schedule = 自主安排時間的自由

> “One advantage of freelancing is greater freedom over your schedule.”

「自由工作的一個好處是可以更自主地安排時間。」

C. FREEDOM TO DO SOMETHING

7. freedom to do X = ability/right/opportunity to do X without being prevented (做.....的自由)

A major grammatical construction.

> “Employees have the freedom to choose how they complete the task.”

「員工有自行選擇如何完成工作的自由。」

8. have the freedom to

> “As an owner, you have the freedom to make your own decisions.”

「作為店主，你有自己作決定的自由。」

Directly relevant to the café passage.

9. give someone the freedom to do X

> “The manager gave the team the freedom to experiment.”

「經理給團隊自由嘗試的空間。」

This often means:

> granting autonomy rather than merely legal permission.

10. allow someone the freedom to

Formal:

> “The flexible schedule allows her the freedom to travel.”

「彈性時間表讓她有自由旅行的空間。」

D. FREEDOM OF CHOICE

11. freedom of choice = ability to choose between alternatives (選擇自由) **

> “Customers value freedom of choice.”

「顧客重視選擇自由。」

Can apply to:

- * products;
- * careers;
- * lifestyles;
- * education;
- * personal decisions.

12. freedom to choose

Closely related:

> “People want the freedom to choose where they work.”

「人們希望有選擇工作地點的自由。」

E. FREEDOM OF ACTION

13. freedom of action = ability to act without excessive restriction (行動自由 ; 行動自主權) **

> “The agreement leaves managers considerable freedom of action.”

「這項安排給管理人員相當大的行動自主權。」

Often formal/business/military/legal writing.

F. FREEDOM = ABSENCE OF RESTRICTION

14. freedom from restrictions/control (不受限制) **

> “She wanted freedom from constant supervision.”

「她希望擺脫持續監督的束縛。」

This introduces a second major grammatical pattern:

> freedom from + unwanted thing

G. FREEDOM FROM X

15. freedom from X = state of not being subject to an unwanted condition (免受 ; 擺脫) **

Examples:

* freedom from fear

* freedom from pain

* freedom from interference

* freedom from debt

* freedom from discrimination

Practice

> “Financial planning gave him greater freedom from debt.”

「財務規劃令他更能擺脫債務束縛。」

The Chinese is rarely literally 「從.....的自由」 ; often better:

* 免於.....

* 免受.....

* 擺脫.....

16. freedom from fear = 免於恐懼

General phrase describing absence of fear/coercive insecurity.

17. freedom from interference = 不受干預

> “The researchers were given freedom from unnecessary interference.”

「研究人員可以免受不必要干預。」

18. freedom from pain = 免受痛苦

Not a separate lexical meaning; an established productive freedom from construction.

H. FREEDOM TO vs FREEDOM FROM

This distinction is extremely important.

freedom to X

= ability to do something.

> freedom to start a business

> 做某事的自由

freedom from X

= absence of an unwanted restraint/burden.

> freedom from excessive control

> 免受某事束縛

Your passage emphasizes mostly:

> freedom to make one's own choices.

I. CIVIL / SOCIAL FREEDOMS

19. freedom = socially/legal protected liberty (自由權) **

In civic/legal discourse, freedom may refer to recognized liberties concerning how people may think, speak, associate, move, worship, etc.

The exact scope and legal protection of any named freedom varies by jurisdiction.

20. civil freedom / civil freedoms = 公民自由

Plural freedoms is common when referring to several distinct liberties.

> “The debate concerned individual rights and civil freedoms.”

「討論涉及個人權利和各項公民自由。」

J. FREEDOM OF SPEECH

21. freedom of speech = 言論自由

Broadly:

> freedom to express views verbally or through related forms of expression, subject to the applicable legal framework.

Important:

> the phrase does not mean speech is without every possible legal or private consequence in every context.

Exact scope varies by jurisdiction.

K. FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

22. freedom of expression = 表達自由

Broader than literal spoken speech.

May include forms such as:

- * writing;
- * art;
- * publication;
- * symbolic expression,

depending on the legal/philosophical context.

23. freedom of speech vs freedom of expression speech

often everyday phrase, sometimes legally conventional.

expression

broader wording that may encompass non-verbal expression.

Exact legal distinctions vary.

L. FREEDOM OF THOUGHT

24. freedom of thought = 思想自由

Freedom to hold/develop thoughts and beliefs.

25. freedom of conscience = 良心自由 / 思想信念自由

Concerns freedom of personal moral/religious conviction in legal/philosophical discourse.

M. RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

26. religious freedom = 宗教自由

Broadly refers to liberty regarding religious belief/practice, with exact legal content varying by system.

27. freedom of religion = 宗教自由

28. freedom of worship = 宗教崇拜自由

More specifically emphasizes worship/practice.

N. FREEDOM OF ASSEMBLY

29. freedom of assembly = 集會自由

Ability to gather collectively, subject to applicable legal frameworks.

O. FREEDOM OF ASSOCIATION

30. freedom of association = 結社自由

Ability to form/join organizations or associations, again subject to jurisdiction-specific law.

P. FREEDOM OF MOVEMENT

31. freedom of movement = 遷徙 / 移動自由

Can refer to:

- * ability to travel or move physically;
- * legal liberty to move between places;
- * absence of physical constraint.

32. physical freedom of movement

> “The loose clothing allows greater freedom of movement.”

「寬鬆衣服讓身體有更大的活動自由度。」

Here there is no political/legal meaning.

Very important polysemy.

Q. FREEDOM OF THE PRESS / PRESS FREEDOM

33. freedom of the press = 新聞 / 出版自由

The liberty of news/publishing organizations and journalists to gather/publish information under the relevant legal system.

34. press freedom = 新聞自由

More compact equivalent phrase.

R. ACADEMIC FREEDOM

35. academic freedom = 學術自由

The principle that scholars/teachers should have appropriate freedom to pursue:

- * research;
- * inquiry;
- * teaching;
- * publication;

within applicable academic and institutional standards.

Exact institutional/legal definitions vary.

S. CREATIVE / ARTISTIC FREEDOM

36. creative freedom = 創作自由

> “The director wanted more creative freedom.”

「導演希望擁有更多創作自主權。」

Very close to the passage's entrepreneurial freedom.

37. artistic freedom = 藝術創作自由

Freedom to make artistic choices rather than following external demands.

38. editorial freedom = 編輯自主權

Freedom to make editorial decisions.

T. FREEDOM IN WORK / BUSINESS

39. entrepreneurial freedom = 創業自主權

Ability to choose how to create/run an enterprise.

40. commercial freedom = 商業活動自主空間

Meaning varies by context and is more formal.

41. freedom to innovate = 創新自由 / 創新空間

> "Small teams often value the freedom to innovate."

「小型團隊通常重視自由創新的空間。」

U. FINANCIAL FREEDOM

42. financial freedom = sufficient financial independence to make life choices without severe money constraints (財務自由) **

Popular personal-finance expression.

Usually means some combination of:

- * sufficient savings/assets/income;
- * reduced dependence on salary;
- * ability to meet living expenses;
- * greater freedom of lifestyle choice.

There is no single universal financial threshold built into the phrase.

43. financial independence vs financial freedom

Often overlap.

financial independence

usually emphasizes not needing employment income to meet financial needs.

financial freedom broader, looser lifestyle concept.

Usage varies.

V. FREEDOM OF INFORMATION

44. *freedom of information = public access to certain government/public records (資訊自由 / 資訊公開) ****

A legal/public-administration term concerning rights/processes for requesting access to certain official information.

Specific rights, exemptions, and procedures are jurisdiction-specific.

45. freedom-of-information request = 資訊公開申請

A formal request under an applicable information-access framework.

W. FREEDOM OF CONTRACT

46. freedom of contract = 契約自由

Legal principle associated with parties' ability to choose whether and on what terms to contract, subject to applicable legal restrictions.

Important:

> it does not mean every imaginable contractual term will necessarily be legally enforceable.

X. FREEDOM OF NAVIGATION

47. freedom of navigation = 航行自由

Legal/maritime term concerning navigation rights under applicable international/domestic legal frameworks.

Specialist.

48. freedom of the seas = 公海自由 / 海洋自由

Historical/international-law expression concerning permitted uses of the seas.

Specialist and context-sensitive.

Y. FREEDOM OF PANORAMA

49. freedom of panorama = 建築 / 公共藝術影像使用的版權例外概念

A copyright-law term in jurisdictions recognizing some form of exception permitting specified reproductions/images of works permanently situated in public places.

The rules vary substantially by jurisdiction.

Priority: specialist legal/copyright use.

Z. FREEDOM TO OPERATE — PATENT / BUSINESS

50. freedom to operate = ability to commercialize something without infringing relevant enforceable third-party rights (自由實施 / 自由營運分析) **

A major patent/IP-business term.

Common abbreviation:

> FTO

A freedom-to-operate analysis examines whether making, using, selling, importing, etc. a proposed product/process could conflict with relevant enforceable intellectual-property rights in the jurisdictions being considered.

It does not mean:

> the product itself is patented or patentable.

51. FTO search / analysis / opinion

Specialist patent practice:

* freedom-to-operate search

* FTO analysis

* FTO opinion

AA. FREEDOM = RELEASE FROM CAPTIVITY

52. freedom = state of no longer being imprisoned, detained, enslaved, or confined (自由身) **

> “After years in captivity, he regained his freedom.”

「多年被囚後，他終於重獲自由。」

This is a distinct high-value branch.

53. gain / regain freedom = 獲得 / 重獲自由

> “The animal was released and regained its freedom.”

「動物獲釋，重獲自由。」

54. win one's freedom = 爭取到自由

May be literal or figurative.

55. give someone their freedom = release them / allow independence

Depending on context:

> release from captivity or:

> stop controlling someone.

AB. FREEDOM = INDEPENDENCE FROM CONTROL

56. freedom from someone's control = 擺脫某人控制

> “She wanted freedom from an overly controlling environment.”

「她希望擺脫過度控制的環境，獲得自主。」

Not necessarily legal captivity.

AC. FREEDOM IN RELATIONSHIPS

57. give someone freedom = allow personal independence (給予自主空間)

> “Good management gives employees enough freedom to make decisions.”

「良好的管理會給員工足夠的自主空間作決定。」

58. need some freedom / space

In relationships, freedom may mean:

> room to act independently.

Different from literally ending the relationship.

AD. CREATIVE LATITUDE

59. freedom = latitude to depart from strict rules (發揮空間)

> “The adaptation takes considerable freedom with the original story.”

More idiomatically, English often says:

> take liberties with but creative freedom is very common.

60. give someone complete freedom = give wide discretion (全權 / 充分自主)

> “The chef was given complete freedom to redesign the menu.”

「主廚獲得充分自主權重新設計餐牌。」

AE. FREEDOM = LACK OF SOMETHING UNDESIRABLE

61. freedom from disease / defects / contamination = absence of them (無..... ; 免受.....)

Formal/scientific/regulatory-style construction.

> “The plants were tested for freedom from disease.”

Approximately:

「檢測植物是否沒有疾病 / 不帶病害。」

This is less common everyday English but an established formal use.

AF. DEGREE OF FREEDOM — TECHNICAL CORE

A completely separate major specialist branch.

62. degree of freedom = one independent way a system can vary (自由度) **

Plural:

> degrees of freedom

This is central in:

- * statistics;
- * mechanics;
- * robotics;
- * physics;
- * engineering;
- * chemistry.

The exact definition varies by field.

AG. MECHANICS

63. degrees of freedom = independent coordinates/motions needed to specify configuration (力學自由度) **

For a physical system:

> each independent way it can move/change position contributes to its degrees of freedom under the chosen model.

64. translational degrees of freedom = 平移自由度

Movement along independent spatial axes.

65. rotational degrees of freedom = 旋轉自由度

Independent rotational motions.

66. six degrees of freedom = 六自由度

A rigid body in ordinary three-dimensional space is commonly described as having six independent motions:

- * three translations;
- * three rotations.

This phrase is extremely important in:

- * robotics;
- * aerospace;
- * mechanics;
- * VR/control systems.

AH. ROBOTICS

67. *DOF = degree(s) of freedom (自由度) ****

A robot joint/system may be described by how many independent motions/configuration variables it has.

> “The robotic arm has six degrees of freedom.”

「機械臂有*六個自由度*。」

AI. STATISTICS

68. *degrees of freedom = number of independent pieces of information available after relevant constraints/parameter estimation (統計自由度) ****

In statistics, degrees of freedom broadly measure how many independent quantities remain available for estimating variability or forming a statistic after constraints/estimated parameters are taken into account.

Exact calculation depends on the statistical procedure.

69. df = degrees of freedom

Common abbreviation:

> df

Used in:

- * t tests
- * chi-square tests
- * ANOVA
- * regression
- * variance estimation

depending on method.

70. residual degrees of freedom = 殘差自由度

Broadly related to independent residual information remaining after model parameters are fitted.

Exact formula depends on model.

71. numerator / denominator degrees of freedom

Common in F-test/ANOVA-related contexts.

AJ. THERMODYNAMICS / CHEMISTRY

72. *degrees of freedom = independent variables/modes available to a system (自由度) ****

Can refer to different concepts depending on context:

- * molecular motion;
- * thermodynamic state variables;
- * phase-equilibrium freedom.

73. molecular degrees of freedom

Can include:

- * translational
- * rotational
- * vibrational

modes under the relevant model.

74. Gibbs phase-rule degrees of freedom

In phase-equilibrium thermodynamics, degrees of freedom describe the number of intensive variables that can be independently varied while maintaining specified equilibrium conditions.

Highly specialist.

AK. STRUCTURAL ENGINEERING

75. degree of freedom = independent displacement/rotation variable (結構自由度)

A structural model may assign translational/rotational DOFs to nodes.

AL. FREEDOM OF THE CITY

76. freedom of the city = civic honour/status (城市榮譽市民權 / 城市自由榮譽)

An old civic expression.

Historically, gaining the freedom of a city could be associated with formal civic status and particular privileges.

In many modern contexts, Freedom of the City is primarily ceremonial/honorary.

Exact traditions differ by city.

77. freeman of the city = 城市自由民 / 獲授城市榮譽者

Historical/civic terminology.

78. freedom of a borough/town

Similar historical local-government usage.

AM. THE FREEDOM OF... = UNRESTRICTED ACCESS/USE

79. give someone the freedom of a place = allow unrestricted/friendly use of it

Older/formal/humorous:

> “They gave us the freedom of the house.”

= 「他們讓我們可以自在地使用整間房子。」

This construction survives in expressions suggesting very generous access.

AN. FREEDOM OF THE HOUSE/CITY

80. freedom of the house = unrestricted informal access (可自由出入 / 使用)

Less common but genuine.

AO. FREEDOMS — PLURAL

81. freedoms = distinct liberties or areas of permitted action (各項自由)

> “The constitution debate concerned individual rights and freedoms.”

「討論涉及個人權利與各項自由。」

Plural emphasizes:

> multiple specific liberties,

not abstract freedom as a single condition.

AP. ENJOY FREEDOM

82. enjoy freedom = possess/have freedom (享有自由) **

Formal enjoy here means:

> have the benefit of.

> “Workers enjoy considerable freedom in choosing their schedules.”

「員工在選擇工作時間方面享有相當大的自由。」

AQ. FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

83. fight for freedom = struggle to obtain/preserve freedom (爭取自由) **

Can be literal, political, social, or figurative depending on context.

AR. FREEDOM FIGHTER

84. freedom fighter = person who fights against a system/rule they regard as oppressive in pursuit of political/national freedom

繁體中文： often 自由鬥士 / 爭取自由的戰士

This is a potentially contested political label: different speakers may use different labels for the same armed or political actor, so it should be understood as an attributed/ideological term rather than a neutral universal classification.

AS. FREEDOM-LOVING

85. freedom-loving = strongly valuing personal/social liberty (熱愛自由的) **

> “He described himself as freedom-loving.”

「他形容自己是個熱愛自由的人。」

Can apply to:

* person

* culture

* society

but may be rhetorically evaluative.

AT. IDIOM: GIVE SOMEONE FREE/FULL FREEDOM?

The normal constructions are:

> give someone freedom

> give someone the freedom to do X

Not usually:

> give someone a freedom ❌ unless referring to a specific legally distinguished freedom.

AU. WITH FREEDOM

86. move/speak/act with freedom = without restriction (自由地)

Formal/literary.

Modern English often prefers:

> freely.

AV. FREEDOM AND RESPONSIBILITY

A common conceptual collocation:

> freedom comes with responsibility.

Lexically this means:

> the ability to make choices can coexist with accountability for those choices.

This is especially relevant to your passage's argument about entrepreneurship.

AW. IMPORTANT DISTINCTIONS

freedom vs liberty

These overlap very strongly.

freedom

broader everyday term.

liberty

often more formal, legal, philosophical, or literary.

> personal freedom

> civil liberties

Both may translate as 自由.

freedom vs independence

freedom

ability to act without undue restriction.

independence

not being dependent on/control by another person/entity.

A worker may have significant freedom within a company without being independent.

This distinction is crucial for your passage.

freedom vs autonomy

autonomy

capacity/authority to govern one's own actions or decisions.

freedom

broader absence of restriction.

For Kam Chai:

> café ownership promises autonomy in business decisions > and therefore greater perceived freedom.

freedom vs permission permission

someone with authority allows a specific act.

freedom

broader ability/right to act without having to seek permission each time.

> permission to leave early > freedom to arrange your own schedule.

freedom vs right right

a recognized entitlement/claim under moral/legal/institutional rules.

freedom

the condition or protected ability to act.

A legal right may protect a particular freedom.

They overlap but are not synonymous.

freedom vs choice

choice

the act/options involved in selecting.

freedom

the ability to make that choice without undue constraint.

You may technically have two choices but little meaningful freedom if one is practically impossible.

freedom vs flexibility flexibility

ability to adjust arrangements.

freedom

broader autonomy.

> flexible hours

> freedom to choose whether to work at all.

freedom vs discretion discretion

authority to choose among options within a role/rule framework.

freedom

broader and less technical.

> managers have discretion to waive the fee > employees have freedom to organize their work.

freedom vs latitude

latitude

room/discretion to act within limits.

freedom

can imply fewer limits overall.

> considerable latitude in interpretation is formal.

freedom vs release

release

act of setting someone/something free.

freedom

resulting condition.

> prisoner was released > prisoner regained freedom.

freedom vs escape

escape

act of getting away.

freedom

state after restriction ends.

An escape may lead to freedom.

freedom vs free will

freedom

external/internal scope to act.

free will philosophical concept concerning whether/how agents genuinely choose among actions.

They are related but not equivalent.

freedom vs leisure

leisure time free from work/duties.

freedom

autonomy or lack of restriction.

Owning a business may increase decision-making freedom while reducing leisure time.

That is particularly relevant to the café passage.

freedom vs convenience convenience

something is easy/practical.

freedom

you have meaningful choice/control.

A high salary may provide convenience without giving Kam Chai the career freedom he wants.

freedom vs security

Not opposites by definition.

Security concerns protection/stability; freedom concerns autonomy/lack of constraint.

Real choices can involve trade-offs between them, as the passage illustrates, but one does not linguistically negate the other.

AX. GRAMMAR

87. freedom to + verb

- > freedom to choose
- > freedom to travel
- > freedom to create

88. freedom of + noun

- > freedom of speech
- > freedom of movement
- > freedom of choice

89. freedom from + noun

- > freedom from fear
- > freedom from interference

90. freedom for + person/group

Possible when identifying the beneficiary:

- > “greater freedom for employees”

But when specifying an action, prefer:

- > freedom for employees to choose.

91. give + person + freedom

- > “Give employees more freedom.”

92. give + person + the freedom to + verb

- > “Give employees the freedom to experiment.”

93. have/enjoy freedom

> “They enjoy considerable freedom.”

94. gain/regain/win freedom

> gain freedom > regain freedom

> win freedom.

AY. COUNTABILITY

freedom — abstract condition

Usually uncountable:

> freedom is important

> greater freedom

> personal freedom.

Not normally:

> a freedom in ordinary general use.

a freedom — one specific liberty

Possible:

> “Freedom of expression is a fundamental freedom.”

Here:

> a freedom

= one identifiable protected liberty.

freedoms — multiple distinct liberties > individual freedoms > civil freedoms.

Countable plural is common in legal/civic discourse.

For your original passage

> “...the other opens to a café dream shared with friends, full of freedom, risk and possibility.”

The exact meaning is:

> freedom = Kam Chai imagines that owning his own café would let him control his work, make his own decisions, create his own style of business, and depend less on an employer.

So freedom here is closest to:

> 自主權 + 自己掌握工作方向的自由

rather than:

- * political freedom;
- * release from prison;
- * a technical degree of freedom.

There is also an important tension in the passage:

> café dream → more freedom

but:

> café ownership → rent + staff + suppliers + licensing + customers + financial risk.

So the writer is quietly challenging the simplistic idea that entrepreneurship automatically means unlimited freedom. The café may give Kam Chai more autonomy, but it will also create new obligations.

For your core database, I would keep 6 principal semantic branches for freedom:

1. general ability to act or choose without undue restriction
2. personal/professional autonomy and control over one's decisions
3. freedom to / freedom from — positive ability versus absence of constraint
4. specific civil, legal, academic, creative, or institutional liberty
5. release from captivity, control, or confinement
6. technical degree(s) of freedom

Then separately index the highly established specialist constructions freedom of movement, freedom of information, freedom of contract, freedom to operate, freedom of the city, and the plural freedoms, because their meanings cannot always be recovered safely from a bare gloss like 「自由」.
