EM. SEMANTIC MAP

The central historical/practical idea of NEGOTIATE is:

work one's way successfully toward an outcome

Modern English divides this into two especially important branches.

A. Through discussion

Passage

> negotiating

> → 透過溝通協調不同意見 / 需求

Business

> negotiate a contract

> → 協商合約

> negotiate a price

> → 議價

Workplace

> negotiate a salary

> → 談薪

Conflict

> negotiate a compromise

> → 協商出折衷方案

B. Through physical difficulty

> negotiate a corner

> → 順利通過彎角

> negotiate stairs

> → 設法走過樓梯

> negotiate difficult terrain

> → 穿越崎嶇地形

The conceptual connection is:

work through difficulties until you get successfully to the other side.

C. Figurative social navigation

The two branches overlap metaphorically:

> negotiate changing relationships

> → 協調 / 應對不斷改變的人際關係

> negotiate a transition

> → 順利應對轉變

> negotiate boundaries

> → 協商彼此界線

> negotiate meaning

> → 透過互動共同確認意思

So the word can move smoothly from:

談條件 → 協調差異 → 穿越障礙 → 應付複雜情況

EO. PASSAGE RECAP

> “Learning is not just about storing information; it is about explaining, listening, negotiating and responding under pressure.”

Here:

negotiate

= to discuss differing views, needs, or possible actions with other people in order to reach agreement or a workable solution

Best Traditional Chinese:

* 協商

* 商議

* 談判

* in this classroom context: 透過溝通協調不同意見

Natural contextual translation:

學習不只是儲存資訊；它還包括解釋、聆聽、協商，以及在壓力下作出回應。

Passage MCQ-ready meaning

negotiate

= to communicate with others in order to reconcile differences and reach agreement

協商；商議

The biggest learner split is:

> negotiate a contract

> → 協商合約

> negotiate a price

> → 議價

> negotiate a compromise

> → 協商出折衷方案

but completely differently:

> negotiate a tight corner

> → 順利通過狹窄彎角

> negotiate the stairs

> → 設法走過樓梯

> negotiate difficult terrain

> → 穿越難行地形

Then advanced figurative uses connect the two ideas:

> negotiate relationships

> → 協調 / 摸索人際關係

> negotiate boundaries

> → 協商彼此界線

> negotiate a transition

> → 順利應對轉變

> negotiate meaning

> → 透過互動共同確認意思

The adjective family is especially important:

> negotiable salary

> → 薪酬可議

> non-negotiable requirement

> → 沒有商量餘地的硬性要求

But in commercial law:

> negotiable instrument

> → 可轉讓 / 可流通票據

So the core conceptual map is:

NEGOTIATE = work through differences or difficulty until a workable way forward is found.

That may mean working through:

* another person's demands,

* contract terms,

* a price,

* competing interests,

* a misunderstanding,

* a relationship,

* a difficult transition,

* or even a narrow physical obstacle.

In the passage, the writer means the first social-communication branch: students learn not merely to know information, but to listen to competing views, express their own position, adjust to others, and work toward a mutually workable response.
