Important distinction: range vs variety

Your source phrase:

> a wide range of plants

and:

> a wide variety of plants

are very close.

emphasizes:
the breadth of options/types available.

variety

emphasizes:
difference/diversity among the types.

Both can naturally mean:

「種類繁多」

Important distinction: range vs selection

selection

often implies items that have been chosen or offered for choice.

range

emphasizes breadth across different types/options.

> “The shop has a wide range of plants.”

= 植物種類很多。

> “She chose a selection of plants.”

= 她挑選了一些植物。

Important distinction: range vs scope

range

often involves:

- * different types;
- * numerical limits;
- * distances.

scope

means the breadth/limits of what an activity, study, responsibility, etc. covers.

> “a range of subjects”

= 各種科目

> “the scope of the research”

= 研究範圍

They overlap in abstract contexts but are not interchangeable everywhere.

Important distinction: range vs area

range

can mean a span from one limit to another.

area

usually means a physical/geographical space or subject domain.

> temperature range

> = 溫度範圍

not usually:

> temperature area ❌

Important distinction: range vs distance

distance

= the space between two points.

range

= maximum distance something can reach/effectively operate.

> “The distance between the phone and speaker is five metres.”

> “The speaker has a Bluetooth range of ten metres.”

Different concepts.

Important distinction: range vs reach

reach

can mean the extent of influence/access.

range

often defines the limits within which something works or varies.

> “The signal has a range of ten metres.”

> “The campaign has a global reach.”

The first emphasizes operational distance; the second emphasizes who/where can be reached.

Important distinction: range vs series

You already curated series.

a series

= items/events occurring in sequence.

a range

= different types/options existing across a span.

> “a series of lessons”

= 一連串課堂

> “a range of lessons”

= 多種不同類型的課堂

This is a very important contrast.

Important distinction: range vs scale

range

= lowest-to-highest span.

scale

= system of ordered measurement/categories.

> “The temperature range is 10–30°C.”

> “Rate pain on a scale of 1 to 10.”

So:

range = 實際上下限

scale = 用來衡量的刻度 / 等級系統

Important distinction: range vs spectrum

spectrum

often emphasizes continuous variation across many positions/types.

range

is broader everyday language.

> “a wide range of opinions”

> “a broad spectrum of opinions”

Both possible, but spectrum is slightly more formal and stresses diversity across a continuum.

Important distinction: range cooker vs ordinary cooker

range

in American English can simply be a stove/range.

range cooker

especially British usage can refer to a large freestanding cooking appliance, often with multiple ovens/hotplates.

So regional context matters.

Important distinction: within range vs within the range

within range

often means physically reachable/effective:

> “The target is within range.”

within the range

often means inside specified numerical/category limits:

> “The result is within the normal range.”

This article difference often changes the natural interpretation.

Family-extension sweep

After the full audit, the useful modern family includes:

* range — variety/selection = 一系列 / 各種

* wide range of = 種類廣泛

* product range = 產品系列

* range — numerical limits = 範圍 / 區間

* price range = 價位

* age range = 年齡範圍

* range — maximum distance = 有效距離 / 航程 / 射程

* in/out of range = 在 / 超出有效範圍
 * mountain range = 山脈
 * range — grazing land = 放牧地
 * shooting/firing range = 射擊場
 * driving range = 高爾夫練習場
 * range — cooker = 爐灶 / 煮食爐
 * range of motion = 活動幅度
 * vocal range = 音域
 * range — breadth/scope = 能力 / 知識涵蓋廣度
 * range from A to B = 從 A 到 B 不等
 * range between A and B = 介乎 A、B 之間
 * range over/across topics = 涵蓋
 * range — move/distribute widely = 廣泛活動 / 分布
 * ranger = 護林員 / 巡護員

I would stop there rather than include rare military, mathematical, or specialist senses unless a later passage requires them.
