AD. IMPORTANT DISTINCTIONS

Important distinction 1: resolution vs solution

solution

the answer/method that solves a problem.

resolution

the process or state of the problem/dispute being settled.

Example:

proposed solution 提出的解決方法

final resolution of the dispute 爭議的最終解決

A solution may lead to resolution.

Important distinction 2: resolve vs solve

especially:

- problem,
- puzzle,
- equation,
- mystery.

especially:

- issue,
- conflict,
- dispute,
- difficulty,
- ambiguity.

Compare:

solve a maths problem 解數學題

resolve a workplace conflict 化解職場衝突

There is overlap, but resolve often implies settling something complicated or disputed.

Important distinction 3: resolve a problem vs solve a problem

Both are natural.

find the answer.

bring the matter to a satisfactory end.

For a technical fault:

solve the problem

often sounds most natural.

For a complaint/dispute:

resolve the problem

often emphasizes successful closure.

Important distinction 4: resolution vs settlement

settlement

especially negotiated agreement ending a dispute, often legal/business.

resolution

broader; conflict can be resolved without a formal settlement document.

settlement = 協議／和解結果

resolution = 更廣義的解決

Important distinction 5: resolution vs compromise compromise

each side gives something up.

resolution

problem is settled.

A resolution may involve compromise, but it does not have to.

One side may simply recognize the other is correct.

Important distinction 6: resolution vs mediation

mediation

process involving a neutral third party helping people negotiate.

resolution

the desired outcome/process of ending the conflict.

Mediation is one method of conflict resolution.

Important distinction 7: resolution vs arbitration arbitration

a third party hears the dispute and gives a decision under the relevant arrangement.

conflict/dispute resolution umbrella concept.

Arbitration can be one form of dispute resolution.

Important distinction 8: conflict resolution vs conflict management

conflict resolution

aims to address and resolve the underlying conflict.

conflict management

may simply control conflict so it does not become destructive.

Some conflicts cannot be completely resolved but can be managed constructively.

Important distinction 9: resolution vs reconciliation

resolution

the problem/dispute is settled.

reconciliation

the relationship between people/groups is repaired.

You can resolve a business dispute without fully reconciling personally.

Important distinction 10: resolve vs clarify clarify

make something easier to understand.

resolve

remove the underlying ambiguity/problem.

Clarification may resolve a misunderstanding.

Important distinction 11: resolve vs address

address a problem

take action concerning it.

resolve a problem

successfully bring it to an end.

addressed but unresolved
= 有處理, 但仍未解決

Very useful workplace distinction.

Important distinction 12: resolve vs handle

handle

deal with/manage.

successfully settle.

A manager can handle a complaint without yet resolving it.

Important distinction 13: resolve vs settle settle a dispute

very natural; reach an agreement/end dispute.

resolve a dispute

slightly broader and often emphasizes underlying issues.

Both are common.

Important distinction 14: resolved vs unresolved

resolved

no longer outstanding.

unresolved

still open/pending.

resolved issue

已解決問題

unresolved issue

尚未解決問題

Important distinction 15: irresolvable vs unresolved

This is crucial.

unresolved

not solved yet.

irresolvable

cannot be solved, or appears impossible to reconcile.

An unresolved conflict may still be resolvable.

Important distinction 16: resolvable vs soluble/solvable

resolvable

can be settled/clarified.

solvable

can be solved.

resolvable dispute 可以化解的爭議

solvable equation/problem 可解的方程／問題

Overlap exists, but collocations differ.

Important distinction 17: resolution = solution vs resolution = determination

Compare:

conflict resolution 衝突解決

show great resolution 表現出堅定決心

Completely different senses.

Important distinction 18: resolution vs resolve as determination

Noun:

She showed great resolution.

Verb:

She resolved to continue.

Adjective:

She remained resolute.

All concern determination, not problem-solving.

Important distinction 19: resolve to vs decide to decide to neutral.

resolve to stronger and more formal:

make a firm decision and intend to stick to it.

I decided to exercise more.

我決定多做運動。

I resolved to exercise every day.

我下定決心每天運動。

Important distinction 20: New Year's resolution vs goal goal

desired result.

resolution

personal commitment/decision to change behaviour.

goal: lose 5 kg

resolution: exercise three times a week

They can overlap, but the emphasis differs.

Important distinction 21: formal resolution vs ordinary decision

decision

any choice/conclusion.

resolution

formally proposed/adopted decision of a:

- board,
- committee,
- meeting,
- organisation.

So:

board decision
broad

board resolution
formal corporate/governance instrument.

Important distinction 22: resolution vs motion

In meeting procedure:

motion

proposal formally put before the meeting.

resolution

what the meeting formally adopts/passes.

In practice, terminology sometimes overlaps.

Simplified sequence:

motion proposed → discussed/voted → if adopted, becomes resolution.

Important distinction 23: resolution vs policy

resolution

formal decision/statement.

policy

ongoing rule or approach guiding future action.

A resolution can create or approve a policy.

Important distinction 24: image resolution vs image quality

resolution

level of spatial detail/pixel representation.

image quality

broader:

- resolution,
- noise,
- sharpness,
- colour,
- compression,
- dynamic range, etc.

High resolution does not guarantee high overall quality.

Important distinction 25: resolution vs sharpness

resolution

ability/data to distinguish detail.

sharpness

how crisp edges/details appear.

They influence each other but are not identical.

Important distinction 26: resolution vs size

A large image dimension can mean more pixels, but:

larger dimensions $\neq$ automatically more genuine detail.

Upscaling can increase pixel dimensions without recovering missing original detail.

Important distinction 27: high-resolution vs high-definition

They overlap in everyday use.

high-resolution

general term for high level of detail.

high-definition / HD

often refers to particular video/display standards or broadly to clearer video.

Not perfect synonyms.

Important distinction 28: technical resolve = distinguish

Compare:

resolve a conflict

化解衝突

microscope resolves two points

顯微鏡分辨開兩個點

Same verb, completely different technical branch.

Important distinction 29: medical resolve

When doctors say:

symptoms resolved

they mean:

the symptoms disappeared/subsided

not:

someone “solved” the symptoms.

Important distinction 30: resolution vs recovery

resolution

particular symptom/lesion disappears.

recovery

person returns toward health/function more generally.

A symptom may resolve before full recovery.

Important distinction 31: narrative resolution vs ending ending

simply final part.

resolution

part where conflicts/questions are settled.

A story can end without resolution.

That creates an:

open / unresolved ending.

Important distinction 32: musical resolution

This is not merely:

“the music ends.”

A musical phrase can resolve in the middle of a piece whenever harmonic tension moves to greater stability.

Important distinction 33: resolve into components vs reduce

From your earlier reduce family:

resolve into components

analytically split into components.

reduce

make smaller/simpler.

Resolving a force into components does not reduce its underlying physical effect; it represents the same force differently.

Important distinction 34: DNS resolution

This does not mean:

fixing a DNS problem.

It means:

translating/mapping a domain or host name to the network information required to reach it

A:

DNS-resolution problem

is a problem occurring during that lookup process.

Important distinction 35: resolution in your passage

The exact expression is:

training in conflict resolution

The writer does not simply mean:

training people not to disagree.

In fact, disagreement can be useful.

The intended skill is:

how to prevent disagreement from becoming destructive interpersonal conflict, and how to bring existing conflict back toward productive cooperation

That fits the paragraph's whole logic:

different temperaments

→ tension

→ contest of egos

→ damaged trust

but with:

respectful leadership

- emotional intelligence
- conflict resolution

the same differences can instead become:

constructive diversity.

Family-extension note

The resolve / resolution family has several major modern branches:

1. interpersonal conflict

- conflict resolution
- resolve a conflict

2. formal disputes

- dispute resolution
- ADR

- resolve a vector into components

22. network computing

- DNS/name resolution

23. software

- dependency/conflict resolution

For your original sentence

In addition, workplaces should provide training in conflict resolution and emotional intelligence, since technical skills alone do not guarantee productive collaboration.

Here:

conflict resolution = 教員工如何找出衝突根源、控制情緒、聆聽不同立場、澄清誤會、協商差異，並把人際對抗轉化成可以繼續合作的解決結果

A natural Traditional Chinese rendering is:

此外，工作場所應提供衝突處理／衝突化解和情緒智商方面的培訓，因為單靠技術技能並不能保證有效合作。

The cleanest learner contrast is:

conflict = 衝突本身

conflict management = 控制衝突，不讓它失控

conflict resolution = 進一步處理根源，希望真正化解衝突

mediation = 由中立第三方協助雙方處理衝突

compromise = 雙方各自讓步

settlement = 爭議達成正式／實際和解

reconciliation = 關係得到修復

solution = 解決問題的方法

resolution = 問題／衝突最後被處理、化解的過程或結果

And within the wider family, three meanings must stay sharply separate:

conflict resolution = 衝突化解

board resolution = 董事會決議

screen resolution = 螢幕解像度／解析度

Same word, three completely different modern semantic branches.
