

Absolutely — screen is an excellent Tier 1 polysemy target because your passage uses it here:

> “For a few stunned seconds, I simply stared at the screen...”

Here screen means the display surface of a phone/device on which images and text appear. But screen also has major meanings involving cinema/TV, physical barriers, privacy/protection, medical/security checking, filtering candidates, hiding something from view, and showing a film.

Word family: screen / screening / screened

Base word: screen

Part of speech: noun (名詞) / verb (動詞)

Related noun: screening

Meaning in your passage: screen = electronic display — 螢幕 ; 屏幕

Your sentence:

Practice 41

> “Her real name is different from her screen name.”

「她的真實姓名和網名不同。」

screen name = 在網絡平台上顯示、代替真名使用的名稱

Important distinction: screen vs monitor

screen

= the display surface itself.

monitor

= the whole display device, especially for a computer.

> cracked screen

> = 裂掉的螢幕表面

> computer monitor

> = 電腦顯示器

In casual speech they can overlap, but they are not exactly identical.

Important distinction: screen vs display

screen

= physical surface/device.

display

can mean:

* the visual information shown;

* the device;

* an arrangement shown publicly.

> phone screen

> = 手機螢幕

> digital display

> = 數碼顯示 / 顯示器

Important distinction: screen vs projection

screen

= surface onto which image appears.

projection

= image/process of projecting.

> cinema screen

> = 電影銀幕

> projection on the screen

> = 投射在銀幕上的影像

Important distinction: screen vs barrier

barrier broad:

anything preventing passage/contact.

screen

often specifically:

blocks sight, light, particles, insects, etc., while sometimes allowing air/light through.

> privacy screen

> = 私隱屏風

> concrete barrier

> = 混凝土障礙物

Important distinction: screen — display vs screen — barrier

Electronic:

> “Look at the screen.”

= 看螢幕。

Physical barrier:

> “Put up a screen.”

= 放一道屏風 / 隔板。

Excellent MCQ contrast.

Important distinction: screen — medical vs screen — recruitment

Medical:

> “screen for cancer”

= 做癌症篩查

Recruitment:

> “screen applicants”

= 篩選申請人

Same underlying concept:

> check systematically to identify/remove certain cases

Different domain.

Important distinction: screen for vs screen out

screen for + condition

= 尋找某個疾病 / 特徵

> screen for diabetes

> = 篩查糖尿病

screen out + unwanted item/person

= 排除不需要 / 不合資格者

> screen out unsuitable candidates

> = 篩走不適合的人

Very useful grammar contrast.

Important distinction: screening — medical vs cinema

This is one of the strongest polysemy contrasts.

Medical:

> “cancer screening”

= 癌症篩查

Cinema:

> “film screening”

= 電影放映

Same noun, completely different domain.

Excellent MCQ material.

Important distinction: screen = show a film vs screen = check people

Media:

> “They screened the documentary.”

= 他們放映了紀錄片。

Security:

> “They screened the passengers.”

= 他們檢查了乘客。

Same verb, completely different action.

Important distinction: on screen vs on the screen

on the screen

usually literal:

> 顯示在某個螢幕上 on screen

can mean:

> 出現在電影 / 電視畫面中

Example:

> “She appears on screen for only a minute.”

「她只在畫面 / 銀幕上出現一分鐘。」

Important distinction: screen time — device vs acting

There is another established sense:

Digital-life sense:

> screen time

> = 使用電子螢幕的時間

Film/TV production sense:

> screen time

> = 演員 / 角色實際出現在畫面上的時間

Example:

> “The supporting actor gets very little screen time.”

「那位配角在畫面上出現的時間很少。」

This is a useful double meaning inside the same compound.

Important distinction: screen name vs real name

screen name

= online/display identity

real name

= actual legal/personal name

This is relevant to online culture.

Family-extension sweep

After the full audit, the useful modern inventory includes:

* screen — electronic display = 螢幕 / 屏幕
* screen — cinema surface = 銀幕
* the screen — film/TV medium = 影視界 / 銀幕 * screen — divider = 屏風 / 隔板 * screen — mesh/protection = 網罩 / 防護網 * screen — verb: hide = 遮蔽 / 遮擋
* screen X from Y = 隔開 / 保護免受.....
