

Absolutely — season is a strong target because your passage uses it here:

> “She wants to grow more seasonal vegetables...”

Your source actually contains seasonal, not bare season, so I'll curate the whole family around that use. The exact source meaning is vegetables associated with or naturally available in a particular season of the year.

Word family: season / seasonal / seasonally / seasoning / seasoned

Base word: season

Plural: seasons

Verb forms: season, seasons, seasoned, seasoning

Related forms: seasonal, seasonally, seasoned, seasoning

Part of speech: noun (名詞) / verb (動詞) / adjective-related forms (相關形容詞)

Your sentence:

> “She says she wants to grow more seasonal vegetables...”

Meaning in your passage: seasonal = available/grown in a particular season — 當季的；時令的

Here seasonal vegetables means:

> vegetables that naturally grow, are harvested, or are especially available during a particular part of the year.

繁體中文：

在特定季節自然生長、採收或特別盛產的；當季的、時令的

Natural translation:

> “She wants to grow more seasonal vegetables.”

「她想種更多當季 / 時令蔬菜。」

So here:

> seasonal vegetables = 時令蔬菜 / 當季蔬菜

Important distinction: season vs weather

season

= recurring part of the year.

weather

= atmospheric conditions at a particular time.

> winter is a season

> snow is weather

So:

> season = 季節

> weather = 天氣

Important distinction: season vs climate

season

= part of a year.

climate

= long-term pattern of weather in a region.

> dry season

> = 旱季

> dry climate

> = 乾燥氣候

Not the same.

Important distinction: season vs period

period

very broad:

any length of time.

season

usually implies:

- * recurring yearly cycle;

- * a recognized activity cycle;

- * a sports/media/cultural cycle.

Not every period is a season.

Important distinction: seasonal vs temporary

seasonal

= occurs regularly because of a particular time of year.

temporary

= lasts only a limited time, for any reason.

A seasonal job returns at certain times each year.

A temporary job may have nothing to do with seasons.

Important distinction: seasonal vs local

seasonal food

= food naturally available/harvested at that time of year.

local food

= food produced nearby.

Food can be:

- * seasonal but not local;
- * local but out of season;
- * both.

Important distinction: seasonal vs fresh

seasonal

describes timing of natural availability.

fresh

describes recent harvest/preparation and condition.

A seasonal vegetable is often fresh, but the concepts are different.

Important distinction: season vs seasonings

season

noun:

= 季節

season

verb:

= 調味

seasoning

noun:

= 調味料 / 調味

This is one of the strongest lexical contrasts in the family.

Important distinction: seasoned person vs seasoned food

seasoned gardener

= 經驗豐富的園藝者

seasoned vegetables

= 調過味的蔬菜

Same word, completely different interpretation.

Excellent MCQ material.

Important distinction: seasoned vs experienced experienced

neutral and broad.

seasoned

suggests substantial practical experience over time; slightly more vivid/formal.

> seasoned professional

> = 經驗老到的專業人士

Important distinction: seasoned wood vs green wood

You curated green earlier.

green wood

= freshly cut, still moist.

seasoned wood

= properly dried for use.

So:

> green wood ↔ seasoned wood

is an especially useful contrast.

Family-extension sweep

After the full audit, the useful modern family includes:
