

Absolutely — smart is a strong polysemy target because your passage uses it here:

> “...because it combines good products, smart focus, and genuine human connection.”

Here smart means well-judged, strategically sensible, and effective, not simply “intelligent”. But the word also has major meanings involving intelligence, stylish appearance, advanced technology, sharp pain, and brisk/quick action.

Word family: smart / smartly / smartness

Base word: smart

Adverb: smartly

Noun: smartness

Part of speech: adjective (形容詞) / verb (動詞 , 較少見)

Your source phrase:

> “smart focus”

Meaning in your passage: smart = sensible, strategic, and effective — 精明的 ; 明智的 ; 策略得宜的

Here smart means:

> showing good judgement and making effective choices about what to concentrate on.

繁體中文 :

判斷明智、策略清晰，而且能有效把資源集中在最重要事情上的；精明的、明智的

Natural translation:

> “smart focus”

「精明而清晰的定位 / 策略性專注」

So here:

> smart = 策略上明智、有效率的

1. smart = intelligent / mentally quick — 聰明的 ; 頭腦靈活的

The core person-related meaning.

Practice 1

smart = 某個決定、策略或方法判斷得宜，而且很可能帶來好結果

3. smart = efficient / cleverly designed — 巧妙的；高效的

A related product/design sense.

Practice 5

> “The shop uses a smart layout to make good use of the space.”

「這間店採用巧妙高效的佈局來善用空間。」

Practice 6

> “That is a smart solution to a difficult problem.”

「那是一個巧妙而有效的解決方法。」 smart = 設計或方法巧妙，能以較少資源達到良好效果

This overlaps with #2, so conceptually I would merge them rather than over-split.

4. smart = stylish / neat in appearance — 時髦的；整潔俐落的

A major distinct meaning.

Practice 7

> “He wore a smart jacket.”

「他穿著一件俐落時髦的外套。」

Practice 8

「公司遭受了*相當嚴重的損失*。」

Practice 16

> “The team received a smart defeat.”

「球隊遭遇了一場*慘痛的失敗*。」 smart = 程度明顯、強烈，尤其帶痛苦或不利效果

This is less common in everyday modern English, so I would keep it secondary.

9. smart = verb, hurt with a sharp stinging pain — 刺痛；灼痛

A genuinely distinct verb meaning.

Practice 17

> “My eyes smarted from the smoke.”

「我的眼睛被煙弄得刺痛。」

Practice 18

> “The cut smarted when water touched it.”

「傷口碰到水時感到刺痛。」 smart — verb = 產生尖銳、灼熱、刺人的疼痛

This is a high-value contrast because it is completely different from “聰明”.

10. smart = verb, feel emotionally hurt — 感到受傷；耿耿於懷

A figurative extension of physical pain.

Practice 19

> “He was still smarting from the criticism.”

「他仍因那番批評而*感到受傷 / 耿耿於懷*。」

Practice 20

> “The company was smarting from the recent loss.”

Important distinction: smart vs intelligent intelligent focuses primarily on mental ability.

smart

can mean:

- * intelligent;
- * strategically sensible;
- * stylish;

* technologically advanced.

> smart student

> = 聰明學生

> smart decision

> = 明智決定

So smart is much more polysemous.

Important distinction: smart vs clever clever

= mentally quick, inventive, skilful.

smart

= can mean intelligent, but also sensible/effective.

> clever idea

> = 巧妙的想法

> smart business decision

> = 精明的商業決定

In some contexts clever can imply ingenuity, while smart emphasizes judgement.

Important distinction: smart vs wise

= showing deep good judgement based on experience.

smart

= intelligent or strategically effective.

> wise advice

> = 有智慧的建議 > smart move

> = 精明的做法

A smart decision can be tactically effective without being morally or deeply wise.

Important distinction: smart vs sensible sensible

= practical and reasonable.

smart

= sensible plus often strategically clever/effective.

> sensible choice

> = 合理選擇

> smart choice

> = 精明、可能帶來優勢的選擇

Important distinction: smart vs stylish

smart

can mean neat, polished, sophisticated.

stylish specifically emphasizes fashion/style.

> smart suit

> = 整齊得體的西裝 > stylish suit

> = 很時尚的西裝

Close, but not identical.

Important distinction: smart vs formal

smart

= neat and presentable.

formal

= appropriate to an officially formal occasion.

Clothes can be smart without being fully formal.

Important distinction: smart vs casual

In dress contexts:

> smart clothes

> = 整齊得體 > casual clothes

> = 休閒服

Common phrase:

> smart-casual

> = 休閒但整齊得體的穿著

Important distinction: smart vs digital digital

= based on electronic/computer technology.

smart

= digital plus some level of connectivity, automation, sensing, or responsive capability.

> digital clock

> = 數碼鐘

> smart watch

> = 智能手錶

Not every digital device is smart.

Important distinction: smart vs automatic automatic

= operates without constant manual control.

smart

= may automatically respond using sensors, software, connectivity, or data.

An automatic door is not necessarily a smart door.

Important distinction: smart — intelligent vs smart — painful

This is one of the strongest polysemy contrasts.

Adjective:

> “She is smart.”

= 她很聰明。

Verb:

> “My eyes smart.”

= 我的眼睛刺痛。

Completely different meanings.

Important distinction: smarting from criticism

This does not mean:

> “becoming smarter because of criticism.”

It means:

> 仍然因批評而感到受傷 / 難受

Excellent MCQ trap.

Important distinction: smart focus in your passage

Your phrase:

> “smart focus”

does not mean:

> “intelligent concentration” in a purely mental sense.

It means something closer to:

> 把有限資源集中在真正重要的產品和定位上的精明策略

So the best Chinese is:

> 精明的定位 / 策略性專注

rather than simply:

> 「聰明的專注」

Family-extension sweep

After the full audit, the useful modern family includes:

* smart — intelligent = 聰明 / 頭腦靈活的

* smart — strategic/sensible = 精明 / 明智的

* smart — efficient design = 巧妙 / 高效的

* smart — appearance = 時髦 / 俐落的

* smart — dress = 整齊得體的

* smart — technology = 智能的

* smart — quick/brisk = 敏捷 / 迅速的

* smart — severe = 厲害 / 猛烈的

* smart — verb: physical pain = 刺痛 / 灼痛

* smart — verb: emotional pain = 因批評 / 損失而難受

* smartly — intelligently = 精明 / 巧妙地

* smartly — stylishly = 整齊 / 俐落地

* smartly — briskly = 迅速地

* smartness = 聰明 / 精明 ; 俐落感 * smartphone = 智能手機
* smart home = 智能家居
