Passage recap

> “...I was feeling both relieved and uncertain about what would come next.”

Here:

uncertain = not sure what the future would bring or what decision to make next

Best Traditional Chinese:

* 不確定的

* 沒有把握的

* contextually: 對未來感到迷惘的

Natural contextual translation:

*當時的我一方面鬆了一口氣，但另一方面也對接下來會發生甚麼感到不確定。 ****

Passage MCQ-ready meaning

uncertain

= not sure about what will happen, what is true, or what should be done

不確定的；沒有把握的

The key contrast in the sentence is especially useful:

> relieved

> → 壓力剛剛解除

> uncertain

> → 未來仍然未知

So the speaker simultaneously feels:

“Thank goodness that part is over.”

and:

“But I don’t know what comes next.”

That emotional combination is exactly what relieved and uncertain expresses.
