

I'll keep the same "full family + established constructions + specialist branches + distinctions + master comparison" standard from the new reference.

Word family: appropriate / appropriately / appropriateness / inappropriate / inappropriately / inappropriateness / appropriate / appropriated / appropriating / appropriation / appropriator

Target word: appropriate

Adjective: appropriate

Comparative: more appropriate

Superlative: most appropriate

Verb: appropriate

Past tense: appropriated

Past participle: appropriated

-ing* form: appropriating

Major related forms:

* appropriately

* appropriateness

* inappropriate

* inappropriately

* inappropriateness

* appropriation

* appropriator

Useful specialist/extended forms:

* appropriated funds

* appropriation bill

* government appropriation

* cultural appropriation

* artistic appropriation * appropriation art

* appropriated retained earnings

* age-appropriate

* developmentally appropriate

* clinically appropriate

* context-appropriate

Part of speech: adjective (形容詞) / verb (動詞)

Your sentence:

> "...tutorial centres should rent appropriate premises..."

Meaning in this passage

Here, appropriate means suitable and proper for the particular purpose or situation.

The writer means that tutorial centres should rent premises actually suited to teaching, rather than using restaurant tables as unofficial classrooms.

繁體中文： 合適的；適當的；適合某種特定用途、情況或需要的

中文翻譯：

> “...rent appropriate premises...”

「.....租用合適的場所 / 適當的處所.....」

Here:

appropriate premises = 在空間、用途、設備、管理等方面適合進行補習活動的場所

A. ADJECTIVE: SUITABLE FOR A PURPOSE

1. appropriate = suitable for a particular purpose (合適) — 合適的；適當的

This is the exact passage sense.

Practice 1 — Original

> “Tutorial centres should rent appropriate premises.”

「補習中心應租用合適的場所。」

Practice 2

> “Wear appropriate clothing for the weather.”

「請穿着適合天氣的衣服。」

Practice 3

> “We need an appropriate venue for the meeting.”

「我們需要一個適合開會的場地。」 appropriate = 某物的性質、條件或功能與特定目的相配

Common:

- * appropriate venue
- * appropriate clothing
- * appropriate equipment
- * appropriate method
- * appropriate response
- * appropriate solution

2. *appropriate for + purpose/person/situation (適合.....) ****

Practice 4

> “This book is appropriate for younger students.”

「這本書*適合*年紀較小的學生。」

Practice 5

> “The room is not appropriate for large classes.”

「這個房間並不*適合*大型班別。」

appropriate for X = 對 X 的用途 / 人士而言合適

3. appropriate to + situation/context (與.....相符) — 適合；切合

Practice 6

> “The response should be appropriate to the seriousness of the problem.”

「回應應該與問題的嚴重程度*相稱 / 合適*。」

Practice 7

> “Choose language appropriate to the audience.”

「選擇*適合該聽眾*的語言。」

appropriate to X often emphasizes:

> fitting or matching X.

4. appropriate in the circumstances = suitable given the particular situation (在當時情況下合適) **

Practice 8

> “The action was appropriate in the circumstances.”

「在當時情況下，那項行動是合適的。」

Very common in:

- * formal reports
- * professional judgment
- * law
- * medicine
- * ethics

B. ADJECTIVE: PROPER / CORRECT ACCORDING TO RULES OR SOCIAL EXPECTATIONS

5. appropriate = proper according to social/professional standards (得體) — 得體的；恰當的 **

Practice 9

> “That joke was not appropriate for the occasion.”

「那個笑話在那個場合並不恰當 / 得體。」

Practice 10

> “Please behave in an appropriate manner.”

「請以恰當 / 合宜的方式行事。」

Here the focus is not usefulness but:

> what is considered proper in that social or institutional setting

6. appropriate behaviour = behaviour fitting the situation (恰當行為) **

> “Students are expected to display appropriate behaviour.”

「學生應表現出恰當的行為。」

What counts as appropriate depends on:

- * context
- * institution
- * age
- * culture
- * norms

7. appropriate language = language suitable/proper for audience/context (恰當用語) **

Practice 11

> “Use appropriate language in formal correspondence.”

「正式通信應使用恰當的語言。」

This may involve:

- * register
- * politeness
- * technical level
- * cultural context

8. appropriate dress / attire = suitable clothing (合宜衣着) **

> “Business attire is appropriate for the event.”

「商務服裝適合這個場合。」

C. ADJECTIVE: PROPORTIONATE / COMMENSURATE

9. appropriate response = response proportionate to the situation (合度的回應) **

Practice 12

> “The organization must make an appropriate response to the risk.”

「機構必須對風險作出恰當的回應。」

Here appropriate often means:

> neither excessive nor insufficient.

10. appropriate level/degree = suitable amount or intensity (適當程度)

> “Use an appropriate level of supervision.”

「使用適當程度的監督。」

11. appropriate penalty/sanction = punishment fitting the offence (適當處分)

A formal/legal/professional application:

> “The panel considered the appropriate sanction.”

「小組考慮甚麼才是適當的處分。」

This does not say what sanction is substantively correct; it describes the suitability/proportionality judgment.

D. AGE / DEVELOPMENT

12. age-appropriate = suitable for a particular age group (適齡)

Practice 13

> “The programme uses age-appropriate materials.”

「這個計劃使用適合該年齡層的材料。」

Common in:

* education

- * child development
- * entertainment
- * healthcare
- * parenting

13. developmentally appropriate = suitable for developmental stage (符合發展階段) **

Practice 14

> “Teachers should provide developmentally appropriate activities.”

「教師應提供符合兒童發展階段的活動。」

This considers more than chronological age; it may include:

- * cognitive development
- * language
- * motor skills
- * social development

14. age-appropriate content = 適齡內容

Often used in:

- * media
- * games
- * educational materials
- * online safety

Meaning:

> content judged suitable for people of a certain age.

E. EDUCATION

15. appropriate teaching method = suitable method for learner/context (合適教學法) **

> “Teachers should select appropriate teaching methods.”

「教師應選擇合適的教學方法。」

16. appropriate learning objectives/materials = 合適學習目標 / 教材

The same general adjective sense, but educationally important.

17. appropriate educational provision = suitable support/service (合適教育安排) **

Used especially in:

- * special education

- * policy

- * professional assessments

The exact legal meaning of phrases such as appropriate education can vary by jurisdiction and should not be inferred from the ordinary adjective alone.

F. MEDICINE / HEALTHCARE

18. appropriate treatment = medically suitable treatment (適當治療) **

Practice 15

> “The patient should receive appropriate treatment.”

「病人應接受適當的治療。」

Here appropriate may involve:

- * indication

- * risks

- * benefits

- * patient condition

- * alternatives

19. clinically appropriate = suitable according to clinical circumstances (臨床上適當) **

> “The test should only be ordered when clinically appropriate.”

「只有在臨床上適當時才應安排該檢查。」

A professional/domain application.

20. appropriate use = correct/suitable medical use (適當使用) **

Examples:

- * appropriate antibiotic use
- * appropriate imaging
- * appropriate prescribing

Opposite:

> inappropriate use.

21. appropriateness criteria = criteria judging suitability (適當性準則) **

Used in some medical/professional settings to assess whether:

- * a test
- * treatment
- * procedure

is suitable for a specific indication.

G. LEGAL / PROFESSIONAL JUDGMENT

22. appropriate = legally/procedurally suitable (法律上適當) **

Practice 16

> “The court considered the appropriate remedy.”

「法院考慮甚麼才是適當的補救 / 救濟方式。」

Common legal collocations:

- * appropriate remedy
- * appropriate relief

- * appropriate forum
- * appropriate procedure
- * appropriate standard

The exact legal test depends on jurisdiction.

23. appropriate authority/body = competent/relevant institution (適當主管機關) **

> “The matter should be referred to the appropriate authority.”

「事件應轉交給適當的主管機關。」

Here appropriate means:

> the authority properly responsible for that matter.

24. appropriate jurisdiction/forum = suitable legal venue/body

A specialist application of “proper for the case.”

H. BUSINESS / PROFESSIONAL COMMUNICATION

25. appropriate action = suitable action under circumstances (適當行動) **

> “Management will take appropriate action.”

「管理層會採取適當行動。」

This phrase is deliberately broad and does not specify what action will be taken.

26. take appropriate measures/steps = 採取適當措施

Very common formal phrase:

> “Appropriate measures will be taken.”

「將採取適當措施。」

27. where appropriate = where it is suitable/relevant (在適當情況下) **

Practice 17

> “Include supporting evidence where appropriate.”

「在適當情況下加入支持證據。」

Very common in:

- * instructions
- * policies
- * academic writing
- * reports

28. if appropriate = 如果合適 / 如適用

> “Consult a specialist if appropriate.”

「如適合 / 有需要，請諮詢專科人士。」

29. as appropriate = in whatever way is suitable (酌情；按適當方式) **

Practice 18

> “The information will be updated as appropriate.”

「資料將按需要 / 酌情更新。」

Formal.

I. APPROPRIATELY

30. appropriately = in a suitable/proper way (適當地) **

Practice 19

> “Staff should respond appropriately.”

「員工應作出適當回應。」

Practice 20

> “She was dressed appropriately for the occasion.”

「她的衣着很適合那個場合。」

31. appropriately enough = fittingly (恰如其分地) **

Example:

> “The restaurant, appropriately enough, is named after its founder.”

「很恰如其分地，這間餐廳以創辦人的名字命名。」

Lower-priority literary/discourse use.

J. APPROPRIATENESS

32. appropriateness = quality of being suitable/proper (適當性) **

Practice 21

> “The committee questioned the appropriateness of the location.”

「委員會質疑這個地點的適當性。」

Practice 22

> “We need to assess the appropriateness of the response.”

「我們需要評估這項回應是否恰當。」

Common:

- * appropriateness of treatment
- * appropriateness of language
- * cultural appropriateness
- * clinical appropriateness

K. INAPPROPRIATE

33. *inappropriate = unsuitable for purpose/situation (不合適) ****

Practice 23

> “A restaurant may be an inappropriate place for a long tutorial lesson.”

「餐廳可能並不是長時間補習的*合適場所*。」

34. *inappropriate = socially/professionally improper (不得體) ****

Practice 24

> “His remark was inappropriate.”

「他的說話很*不得體 / 不恰當*。」

This can imply:

- * offensive
- * badly timed
- * unprofessional
- * unsuitable

depending on context.

35. inappropriate behaviour/conduct = 不當行為

> “The complaint concerned inappropriate conduct.”

「投訴涉及*不當行為*。」

This phrase is broad and should not automatically be interpreted as one particular type of misconduct without context.

36. *inappropriate use = unsuitable/incorrect use (不當使用) ****

Common in:

- * medicine
- * technology
- * resources
- * facilities

Example:

> inappropriate antibiotic use

= 抗生素不當使用

37. inappropriate for/to

- > inappropriate for children
- > inappropriate to the situation

same broad grammatical patterns as appropriate.

L. INAPPROPRIATELY / INAPPROPRIATENESS

38. inappropriately = in an unsuitable/improper manner (不恰當地) **

Practice 25

> “He responded inappropriately.”

「他的回應方式不恰當。」

39. inappropriateness = lack of suitability/propriety (不適當性) **

> “The review examined the inappropriateness of the arrangement.”

「檢討研究了這項安排的不適當之處。」

Valid but less common than:

> the arrangement was inappropriate.

M. VERB APPROPRIATE — TAKE FOR ONE'S OWN USE

Now we move to a completely different verb meaning.

40. appropriate something = take it for one's own use, often without permission (擅取) — 擅自佔用 ; 挪用 ; 據為己有

Practice 26

> “He was accused of appropriating company property.”

「他被指控擅自佔用 / 挪用公司財物。」

Practice 27

> “The group appropriated the building for its own use.”

「該團體把建築物據為己用 / 佔作己用。」

appropriate = 把不一定屬於自己的東西拿來作自己用途

This verb is formal.

41. appropriate money/funds for personal use = 挪用資金

> “The official was accused of appropriating public money.”

「該人員被指挪用公款。」

Be careful:

*appropriate funds can also mean officially allocate funds, discussed below.

The same words can therefore have nearly opposite connotations depending on context.

42. appropriate someone's property = take possession/control (佔有財產) **

Formal/legal-like use:

> “The property was appropriated for private use.”

Could mean:

- * taken over;
- * used as one's own.

Exact legal characterization depends on circumstances.

N. VERB APPROPRIATE — ADOPT / TAKE OVER AN IDEA, STYLE, SYMBOL, ETC.

43. *appropriate an idea/style/symbol = take and use it in a new context (挪用 ; 借用) ****

Practice 28

> “The artist appropriated images from advertising.”

「藝術家*挪用 / 借用*了廣告中的圖像。」

This is especially common in:

- * art
- * cultural criticism
- * media studies
- * literature

44. appropriate language/imagery/style from another source = 借用 / 挪用

The action may be:

- * neutral/descriptive;
- * creative;
- * controversial;

depending on context.

The verb itself does not always imply illegality.

O. CULTURAL APPROPRIATION

45. *cultural appropriation = adoption/use of elements from another culture, especially in contested power contexts (文化挪用) **

A major modern term.

It generally refers to adopting or using:

- * clothing
- * symbols
- * music
- * art
- * religious practices
- * language
- * styles

from another culture, particularly where critics see problems involving:

- * power imbalance
- * exploitation
- * stereotyping
- * commercialization
- * lack of context/credit

繁體中文：  文化挪用

This is a contested evaluative concept; whether a particular act counts as cultural appropriation can depend on definitions and context.

46. cultural appreciation vs cultural appropriation

A useful distinction:

cultural appreciation

respectful engagement/learning/recognition.

cultural appropriation

a critical term for certain forms of taking/using cultural elements.

The boundary is context-dependent, not a simple dictionary rule.

P. ART / VISUAL CULTURE

47. appropriation art = art using pre-existing images/objects (挪用藝術) **

An established art-history term.

Artists deliberately reuse:

- * existing images
- * objects
- * advertisements
- * photographs
- * artworks

to create a new work/context.

48. artistic appropriation = artistic reuse/recontextualization (藝術挪用) **

Broader than the named movement/style.

49. appropriation = act of taking/reusing existing cultural/artistic material (挪用) **

A neutral or critical interpretation depends on field/context.

Q. VERB APPROPRIATE — ALLOCATE MONEY FOR AN OFFICIAL PURPOSE

50. appropriate money/funds = officially set aside for a specified purpose (撥款) — 撥出；批撥；指定用途

A major government/public-finance meaning.

Practice 29

> “The legislature appropriated funds for the project.”

「立法機關為這個項目撥款。」

Practice 30

> “Money was appropriated for school construction.”

「資金被*撥作*興建學校之用。」

appropriate funds = 正式批准 / 指定一筆資金用於特定目的

This is completely different from:

> appropriate funds for oneself

= 挪用資金.

51. *appropriated funds = money officially allocated (已撥款項) ****

> “The agency may spend only appropriated funds.”

「該機構只能使用已*獲批撥的資金*。」

Specialist public-finance terminology.

R. APPROPRIATION — GOVERNMENT FINANCE

52. *appropriation = official allocation/authorization of public money (撥款) ****

Practice 31

> “The department received an annual appropriation.”

「該部門獲得年度*撥款*。」

In public finance, an appropriation generally authorizes or sets aside money for specified governmental purposes under the applicable system.

Exact constitutional/budgetary mechanics vary by jurisdiction.

53. *appropriation bill = legislation authorizing government spending (撥款法案) ****

繁體中文：  撥款法案

The exact legislative process depends on jurisdiction.

54. appropriations act = 撥款法

A law authorizing specified government expenditure.

55. appropriations committee = government-budget legislative committee (撥款委員會) **

Institutional term in systems using such committees.

56. supplemental appropriation = additional later funding (追加撥款) **

Specialist public-budget term.

57. appropriation authority = legal authority to spend specified funds (撥款授權) **

Used in public finance/accounting.

S. APPROPRIATION — TAKING / CONVERSION

58. appropriation = taking something for one's own use (佔用 ; 挪用) **

Practice 32

> “The unauthorized appropriation of company assets was investigated.”

「公司資產遭未經授權挪用 / 佔用一事受到調查。」

General formal noun from the taking sense.

59. misappropriation = wrongful/unauthorized taking or use (侵吞 / 挪用) **

Although misappropriation is morphologically a related derivative of appropriation, it is common enough to surface.

Common:

- * misappropriation of funds
- * misappropriation of property
- * misappropriation of confidential information

繁體中文： 挪用；侵吞；不當使用

Exact legal meanings vary by jurisdiction.

60. *misappropriate = wrongfully take/use (挪用；侵吞) ****

> “He was accused of misappropriating funds.”

「他被指控*挪用資金*。」

Important because ordinary appropriate can be neutral/formal, whereas misappropriate explicitly marks the action as improper.

T. CRIMINAL / PROPERTY LAW

61. *appropriation — theft law (法律，部分普通法制度) ****

In some criminal-law systems, particularly English theft terminology, appropriation can have a technical meaning related to assuming rights of an owner.

The exact statutory definition and relationship to theft are jurisdiction-specific.

Do not treat ordinary:

> take for one's own use

as a complete legal definition.

62. appropriation of property = acquisition/use under legal doctrine

Could mean different things in:

- * criminal law
- * property law
- * constitutional law
- * government acquisition

Context is essential.

U. CONSTITUTIONAL / GOVERNMENT PROPERTY USE

63. appropriate property for public use = take/designate property for governmental use (正式) **

In some legal/historical usage:

> property is appropriated to a public purpose

= property is assigned/devoted to that use.

This may overlap with:

- * acquisition
- * requisition
- * expropriation

but those are not automatically synonymous.

V. ACCOUNTING: PROFIT APPROPRIATION

64. appropriation of profit = allocation of profit for specified purposes (利潤分配 / 撥用) **

In accounting/business contexts, appropriation may refer to allocating profit among uses such as:

- * dividends
- * reserves
- * retained earnings

depending on accounting system/terminology.

65. appropriation account = account showing allocation of profit (利潤分配帳) **

Especially in some accounting traditions:

> profit and loss appropriation account

shows how profit is distributed/appropriated after calculation.

Terminology varies across accounting standards and educational systems.

66. appropriated retained earnings = retained earnings designated for a particular purpose (指定用途的保留盈餘)

Accounting terminology historically/currently used in some contexts.

It means management/board has designated part of retained earnings for a specified purpose.

This designation generally does not itself mean the cash is physically separated.

67. unappropriated retained earnings = 未指定用途保留盈餘

Opposite accounting category where that terminology is used.

W. APPROPRIATE TECHNOLOGY

68. appropriate technology = technology suited to local social/economic/environmental conditions (適用技術)

An established development/economics concept.

Typically emphasizes technology that is:

- * affordable
- * maintainable
- * suited to local resources
- * compatible with local needs
- * often relatively small-scale

繁體中文：  適用技術 / 適當技術

This uses the adjective sense, not the taking/allocating verb.

X. RESEARCH / ETHICS

69. appropriate methodology = method suited to research question (合適研究方法) **

> “The researcher selected an appropriate methodology.”

「研究人員選擇了合適的研究方法。」

70. appropriate sample / statistical test = suitable for analysis (適用的樣本 / 統計檢驗) **

Examples:

> appropriate statistical test

> appropriate model

> appropriate controls

These are domain applications of suitability.

71. appropriate ethical safeguards = 適當倫理保障

Formal research/governance collocation.

Y. LANGUAGE / PRAGMATICS

72. contextually appropriate language = language fitting context (語境恰當) **

Practice 33

> “Students need to learn when a phrase is contextually appropriate.”

「學生需要學習某個詞語在甚麼語境下才使用得恰當。」

73. pragmatically appropriate = 語用上恰當

In linguistics/pragmatics:

> an utterance may be grammatically correct but pragmatically inappropriate.

For example:

- * wrong level of politeness
- * wrong register
- * unsuitable speech act

74. appropriateness — pragmatics (語用適切性) **

A technical concept referring to whether linguistic behaviour fits:

- * social relationship
- * context
- * purpose
- * cultural norms

Z. CULTURAL / SOCIAL APPROPRIATENESS

75. culturally appropriate = suitable/respectful within cultural context (文化上合宜) **

Practice 34

> “The materials should be culturally appropriate.”

「材料應該在文化上合宜 / 適切。」

Often used in:

- * healthcare
- * education
- * communication
- * social services

76. socially appropriate = socially acceptable/fitting (社交上合宜) **

> “The behaviour may be appropriate in one setting but not another.”

「某種行為在一個場合可能合宜，在另一個場合則未必。」

AA. APPROPRIATOR

77. appropriator = person/entity that appropriates something (挪用者 / 撥款者) **

A relatively low-frequency noun.

Meaning depends on branch:

Taking

someone who appropriates something.

Allocation

institution/body allocating resources.

Not common in ordinary learner English.

AB. PRONUNCIATION / WORD-CLASS DISTINCTION

A useful special feature:

Adjective appropriate

typically pronounced approximately:

> ə-PROH-pree-it

Verb appropriate

typically:

> ə-PROH-pree-ate

So the spelling is the same, but the ending differs:

* adjective ends like -pri-it

* verb ends like -pri-ate

This is an important word-class cue.

AC. IMPORTANT FIXED CONSTRUCTIONS

78. if appropriate = 如適合 / 如有需要

> “Further tests may be arranged if appropriate.”

「如有需要，可安排進一步檢查。」

79. where appropriate = 在適當情況下

> “Examples should be included where appropriate.”

「在適當情況下應加入例子。」

80. as appropriate = 酌情 / 按需要

> “Consult other departments as appropriate.”

「按需要 / 酌情諮詢其他部門。」

81. deem appropriate = consider suitable (認為適當) **

Formal:

> “The authority may take any action it deems appropriate.”

「主管機關可採取其認為適當的任何行動。」

Common legal/administrative phrasing.

82. consider appropriate = 認為適當

> “We will respond in whatever manner we consider appropriate.”

「我們會以認為適當的方式回應。」

83. appropriate to the circumstances = 與情況相稱

Important professional phrase.

AD. IMPORTANT DISTINCTIONS

appropriate vs suitable

suitable

= good/right for a purpose.

appropriate

= suitable and often proper given the context.

Compare:

- > suitable shoes for hiking
- > appropriate behaviour at a funeral

There is substantial overlap.

appropriate vs proper proper

often emphasizes rules, correctness, or accepted standards.

appropriate

emphasizes fit to the particular situation.

- > proper procedure
- > appropriate response

appropriate vs correct

correct

= factually/procedurally right.

appropriate

= suitable for circumstances.

Something can be technically correct but socially inappropriate.

Example:

> a grammatically correct but inappropriate remark.

appropriate vs right

right

is very broad:

- * correct
- * suitable
- * morally right

appropriate

is narrower:

> fitting/suitable for this context.

appropriate vs relevant relevant

= directly related to the matter.

appropriate

= suitable/proper.

- > relevant evidence
- > appropriate response

Evidence can be relevant but obtained/used in an inappropriate way.

appropriate vs applicable

applicable

= capable of applying to a particular case.

appropriate

= suitable to use.

A rule may be applicable but applying it may still not be the most appropriate response.

appropriate vs adequate

adequate

= sufficient/minimally acceptable.

appropriate

= fitting/suitable.

A room may be large enough (adequate) but poorly designed for teaching (inappropriate).

appropriate vs ideal

Very relevant to your earlier target.

appropriate

= suitable/proper.

ideal

= exceptionally or optimally suitable.

So:

> an appropriate venue

may be perfectly acceptable.

> an ideal venue

suggests close to the best possible choice.

appropriate vs reasonable reasonable

= sensible, fair, not excessive.

appropriate

= suitable to circumstances.

A response can be reasonable but still not be the most appropriate one.

appropriate vs proportionate proportionate

= of suitable magnitude relative to something.

appropriate

= broader suitability.

> proportionate penalty

> appropriate penalty

The second includes more than just severity.

appropriate vs fitting fitting

= especially suitable or symbolically apt.

appropriate

= general suitable/proper.

> a fitting tribute

> an appropriate response

appropriate vs acceptable

acceptable

= good enough / permitted.

appropriate

= particularly suitable.

Something can be acceptable but not especially appropriate.

appropriate vs convenient

This matters in your passage.

convenient

= easy/useful for someone.

appropriate

= suitable/proper for the context.

A restaurant may be:

> convenient for tutoring

but not:

> appropriate as a tutorial venue.

That distinction is central to the writer's argument.

appropriate vs allocate — verb

allocate

= assign resources for a purpose.

appropriate funds

= formally authorize/set aside money, especially public funds.

Appropriate is more formal and institutional.

appropriate vs assign assign

= designate responsibility/resource to someone/purpose.

appropriate

in public finance emphasizes formal setting aside/authorization.

appropriate vs take take

is broad.

appropriate something

often implies:

- * take possession/use of it;
- * formal;
- * sometimes unauthorized.

> appropriate someone else's property is much stronger/more formal than simply:

> take it.

appropriate vs steal

steal

explicitly means unlawfully/dishonestly take property.

appropriate

can mean take for one's own use, but does not by itself establish every element of theft.

It can even be neutral in:

- * art criticism
- * cultural analysis
- * official allocation.

So:

> appropriate $\neq$ automatically steal.

appropriate vs misappropriate

appropriate

can be neutral or context-dependent.

misappropriate

explicitly means improperly/wrongfully take or use.

- > appropriate funds = may mean allocate officially
- > misappropriate funds = wrongfully use/steal funds

Very important distinction.

appropriation vs allocation

allocation

general distribution/assignment of resources.

appropriation

especially in government finance:

> formal authorization/designation of funds.

But appropriation also has the completely different taking/reuse branch.

appropriation vs expropriation

appropriation

is broader and can mean:

- * taking/use
- * allocation
- * cultural/artistic reuse

expropriation

usually refers more specifically to compulsory taking of property, often by a state/public authority, subject to the relevant legal framework.

Not interchangeable.

appropriation vs acquisition

acquisition

= obtaining/coming into possession of something, often lawfully.

appropriation

may emphasize taking over/use or assigning for a purpose.

cultural appropriation vs plagiarism

plagiarism

= presenting another person's words/ideas/work as one's own without appropriate acknowledgement, under academic/professional norms.

cultural appropriation

= broader social/cultural concept involving use of cultural elements.

They can overlap in some factual situations but are not synonymous.

appropriation art vs plagiarism

Appropriation art often deliberately makes the reuse visible and uses recontextualization as part of the artistic concept.

Whether particular use is lawful, ethical, transformative, or infringing is a separate contextual/legal question.

appropriateness vs correctness

correctness

= being right according to fact/rules.

appropriateness

= fitting the social/contextual purpose.

Especially important in language learning:

> grammatically correct

> pragmatically appropriate are two different judgments.

AE. GRAMMAR

84. appropriate + noun

Adjective:

> appropriate venue

> appropriate response
> appropriate behaviour

85. be appropriate for + person/purpose

> “The film is appropriate for children.”

86. be appropriate to + circumstances/context

> “The response was appropriate to the situation.”

87. it is appropriate to + verb

Practice 35

> “It may be appropriate to seek further advice.”

「尋求進一步意見可能是合適的。」

Formal.

88. it is appropriate that + clause

> “It is appropriate that the issue be reviewed.”

「對該問題進行檢討是合適的。」

Formal construction.

89. where/if/as appropriate

Highly productive adverbial constructions.

90. appropriate + direct object — verb

- > appropriate property
- > appropriate funds
- > appropriate imagery

The object/context tells you whether it means:

- * take;
- * reuse;
- * allocate.

91. appropriate X for/to a purpose

Formal allocation:

- > “Funds were appropriated for education.”

「資金被撥作教育用途。」

92. appropriate X to oneself / for one's own use

Taking:

- > “He appropriated the resources to himself.”

Very formal/rare.

More natural:

- > “He appropriated the resources for his own use.”

= 他把資源據為己用。

AF. COUNTABILITY

appropriateness

Usually uncountable:

- > question the appropriateness of the decision.

appropriation — government funding

Can be countable:

- > an appropriation
- > annual appropriations

appropriation — act/process of taking/reuse

Can be countable or uncountable depending on context:

- > cultural appropriation
- > several artistic appropriations

appropriator

Countable:

- > an appropriator

but low frequency.

AG. FAMILY MAP

Family member	Main modern meanings
-----	-----
appropriate — adjective	suitable/proper for a particular purpose, person, situation, or standard
appropriately	in a suitable/proper manner
appropriateness	degree/quality of suitability or propriety
inappropriate	unsuitable or improper
inappropriately	in an unsuitable/improper way
appropriate — verb: take	take/use something as one's own appropriate — verb: reuse	adopt/recontextualize ideas, images, styles, cultural elements
appropriate — verb: funds	officially authorize/set aside funds for a purpose

appropriation — taking	act of taking/using something appropriation — art/culture	reuse/adoption of existing cultural/artistic material
appropriation — government finance	official allocation/authorization of public money appropriation — accounting	allocation/designation of profit/retained earnings
misappropriate	improperly/wrongfully take or use
appropriator	person/entity that appropriates; low-frequency

Master comparison

Form / sense	MCQ-ready Traditional Chinese meaning
-----	-----
appropriate — suitable	對特定用途、人士或情況而言合適的
appropriate — proper	符合社會、專業、制度或場合要求而恰當 / 得體的
appropriate for X	適合 X 使用 / 適合某類人
appropriate to X	與某情況、程度或語境相稱 / 切合
appropriate response/action	與情況相稱、既不過度亦不不足的恰當回應 / 行動
appropriate premises	在用途、環境、設施等方面適合某項活動的處所
age-appropriate	適合特定年齡層的
developmentally appropriate	符合特定發展階段需要 / 能力的
clinically appropriate	按病人情況和臨床判斷屬合適的
culturally appropriate	在特定文化背景中合宜 / 合適的
pragmatically appropriate	語言在社交 / 語用情境中使用得恰當的
where appropriate	在適當情況下
if appropriate	如適合 / 如有需要
as appropriate	按情況需要 / 酌情
deem appropriate	正式判斷某事為合適
appropriately	以符合目的 / 場合的適當方式
appropriateness	是否合適、合宜、得體的程度 / 適當性
inappropriate	不適合某用途 / 場合，或不符合社交 / 專業規範的
inappropriate behaviour	不符合情況 / 規範的不當行為
inappropriately	不恰當地 / 不得體地
appropriate — take	把某物拿來作自己用途；擅自佔用 / 據為己有
appropriate property/assets	把財物 / 資產據為己用或取得控制
appropriate an image/style	借用、挪用並放入新的藝術 / 文化語境
cultural appropriation	在特定社會權力 / 文化語境下對其他文化元素的挪用
appropriation art	有意使用 / 重新置入既有圖像、物件或作品的挪用藝術
appropriate funds — public finance	正式撥出 / 授權一筆資金用於指定目的
appropriation — government finance	正式批准 / 指定的政府公共撥款
appropriation bill	批准公共支出的撥款法案
supplemental appropriation	原預算以外的追加撥款
appropriation — taking	取得、佔用或使用某物的行為
misappropriation	未經授權或不正當地挪用 / 侵吞財物、資金等

misappropriate	不當 / 違法地挪用或使用
appropriation of profit	把利潤分配 / 指定用於股息、儲備等用途
appropriation account	顯示利潤如何分配 / 撥用的會計帳
appropriated retained earnings	已指定特定用途的保留盈餘
appropriate technology	按地方資源、成本、環境和社會條件設計的適用技術

For your original sentence

> "...tutorial centres should rent appropriate premises..."

The exact meaning is:

appropriate = 真正適合進行補習活動的場所，在用途、空間、設施、管理和對其他使用者的影響方面都比較合宜

So:

> appropriate premises

= 合適的補習處所 / 適合進行教學活動的場所

The word is stronger than merely:

> available premises

because an available place may exist but still be unsuitable.

And it differs from:

> convenient premises

because a place may be convenient for the tutor while being inappropriate for the activity.

That contrast is especially relevant to the editorial:

> a restaurant may be convenient,

> but the writer argues it is not necessarily appropriate as a classroom.

For the core database, I would keep 4 major semantic branches for appropriate:

1. adjective — suitable for a purpose/person
2. adjective — proper, fitting, or socially/professionally acceptable
3. verb — take/adopt something for one's own use, including artistic/cultural appropriation
4. verb — formally allocate/set aside funds or resources for a specified purpose

Then the family should explicitly index appropriately, appropriateness, inappropriate, appropriation, misappropriation, because appropriation in particular has developed three independently important modern networks:

* taking/reuse

* cultural/artistic appropriation * government/public-finance allocation.