

Absolutely — blur is a strong polysemy target because your passage uses it here:

> “...the blurred reflections...”

Here blurred means not sharply defined or clearly focused, especially visually. But blur also extends to unclear memory, indistinct boundaries, confused distinctions, fast movement, and figurative mixing, plus the noun a blur.

Word family: blur / blurred / blurry / blurriness

Base word: blur

Verb forms: blur, blurs, blurred, blurring

Related adjective: blurry

Related noun: blurriness

Part of speech: noun (名詞) / verb (動詞) / adjective-related forms (相關形容詞)

Your source phrase:

> “...the blurred reflections...”

Meaning in your passage: blurred = visually unclear / not sharply defined — 模糊的；朦朧的

Here blurred reflections means:

> reflections whose outlines and details are soft, unclear, or not sharply focused.

繁體中文：

輪廓、細節或邊界不清楚，看起來柔和、朦朧、不銳利的

Natural translation:

> “the blurred reflections”

「那些模糊 / 朦朧的倒影」

So here:

> blurred = 視覺上不清晰、不銳利

1. blur = make something visually unclear — 使模糊；使失焦

> “Apply a Gaussian blur to soften the background.”

「套用*高斯模糊*來柔化背景。」

Practice 28

> “Digital blur can hide identifying details.”

「數碼模糊處理可以遮蓋可識別細節。」

blur — digital = 使用影像演算法降低邊緣和細節清晰度

This is technical/secondary, but common enough to flag.

15. blurriness = quality of being blurry — 模糊程度；模糊感

Practice 29

> “The blurriness of the image made the text hard to read.”

「影像的模糊程度令文字很難閱讀。」

Practice 30

> “Some blurriness was caused by camera movement.”

「部分模糊是由相機移動造成的。」

blurriness = 影像、視線或輪廓缺乏清晰度的狀態 / 程度

Important distinction: blur vs blurry

blur

noun/verb:

> “The image began to blur.”

> “There is a blur in the background.”

blurry

adjective:

> “The image is blurry.”

So:

> blur = 模糊 / 使模糊

> blurry = 模糊的

Important distinction: blurred vs blurry

They overlap strongly.

often emphasizes:

> something has been made or has become unclear.

> blurred reflection

> = 模糊的倒影

blurry

often simply describes appearance:

> blurry photo

> = 模糊照片

In many everyday contexts either can work, but blurred is especially natural when describing an effect/result.

Important distinction: blur vs fade

You already have fade mapped.

blur

= lose sharpness/detail/boundaries.

= lose colour, brightness, strength, or visibility gradually.

> blurred image

> = 輪廓不清 > faded image

> = 顏色 / 亮度變淡

A picture can be both blurred and faded, but for different reasons.

Important distinction: blur vs dim

You already have dim mapped.

blur

= unclear in detail/focus.

dim

= low in brightness/light.

> blurry reflection

> = 模糊倒影 > dim reflection

> = 昏暗倒影

Different visual properties.

Important distinction: blur vs vague

blur

often visual, or figuratively unclear boundaries/memory.

vague

means not precise or clearly expressed/thought.

> blurry photograph

> = 模糊照片

> vague explanation

> = 含糊解釋

For memory:

* blurred memory

* vague memory

can overlap, but blurred suggests loss of distinct detail.

Important distinction: blur vs obscure

blur

= make details/edges less clear.

obscure

= hide, block, or make difficult to perceive/understand.

> fog blurred the view

> = 霧令景物輪廓模糊

> a wall obscured the view

> = 牆擋住視線

Different mechanism.

Important distinction: blur vs distort

blur

= reduce sharpness.

distort

= alter shape, sound, meaning, or proportion inaccurately.

A blurred photo may still preserve correct shapes generally; a distorted image changes them.

Important distinction: blur vs blend

blur

= boundaries/details become unclear.

blend

= elements combine smoothly.

In art:

> colours blend

> = 顏色自然融合 > edges blur

> = 邊界變模糊

They can happen together but are not identical.

Important distinction: blur the line vs cross the line

blur the line between A and B

= make the distinction less clear.

cross the line

= go beyond an acceptable boundary.

Example:

> “The film blurs the line between fact and fiction.”

= 電影模糊事實與虛構界線。

> “His comment crossed the line.”

= 他的評論越界 / 過分了。

Very different idioms.

Important distinction: a blur vs a mess

a blur

= experience/details difficult to distinguish or remember.

a mess

= disorder/problematic state.

> “The week was a blur.”

= 那星期忙亂得記不清。

> “The week was a mess.”

= 那星期一團糟。

The first emphasizes memory/indistinctness, the second disorder.

Family-extension sweep

After the full audit, the useful modern family includes:

* blur — make visually unclear = 使模糊 / 失焦
* blur — become unclear = 變模糊
* blurred = 模糊 / 朦朧的
* blurry = 模糊 / 失焦的
* a blur — image = 模糊影像 / 模糊一片
* blur — memory = 使記憶模糊
* blur — boundary/distinction = 模糊界線 / 區別
* blur together = 混在一起、難以區分
* blur — fast motion = 因高速移動而模糊
* a blur — experience = 忙亂得記不清的一段經歷
* blur — privacy/media = 模糊處理 / 遮蓋
* blur effect = 模糊效果
* motion blur = 動態模糊
* digital/Gaussian blur = 數碼 / 高斯模糊
* blurriness = 模糊程度 / 模糊感

For your original phrase

> “...the blurred reflections...”

The exact meaning is:

blurred = 倒影的輪廓和細節並不清楚銳利，而是柔和、朦朧、像彼此融在水面上

So naturally:

> 「那些朦朧模糊的倒影」

The highest-value contrasts are:

- > blurred reflection → 模糊 / 朦朧倒影
- > blurry photo → 失焦照片
- > blur a face → 把臉部模糊處理
- > blur a memory → 令記憶模糊
- > blur the line → 模糊界線
- > blur together → 混在一起、分不清
- > a blur → 模糊一片 / 忙亂得記不清的一段經歷
- > motion blur → 動態模糊
