Important distinction 1: capture vs catch catch

very broad:

* catch a ball

* catch a bus

* catch a thief

capture

often implies gaining control and preventing escape, or preserving something in recorded form.

> catch a dog

抓到一隻狗

> capture a wild animal

捕獲野生動物

Capture is often more deliberate/formal.

Important distinction 2: capture vs arrest

capture

physically catch someone.

arrest

formally take someone into legal custody.

A suspect may first be captured, then arrested.

Important distinction 3: capture vs record

record

broadly preserve information, sound, image, or events.

capture

often emphasizes successfully getting something fleeting, difficult, or characteristic.

> record a meeting

記錄會議 > capture a moment

捕捉一刻

That nuance is exactly why capture works so well in your scrapbook passage.

Important distinction 4: capture vs photograph

photograph

specifically take a photo.

capture

broader:

- * photograph
- * film
- * record sound
- * preserve a moment
- * represent a mood

> The photo captures her expression.

照片捕捉了她的表情。

The photo itself can capture something even though the photographer photographed it.

Important distinction 5: capture vs preserve

capture

get/record something successfully.

preserve

keep it from being lost, damaged, or forgotten.

In your passage, capture implies both:

1. record the memory,
2. thereby help preserve it.

But the verbs are not identical.

Important distinction 6: capture a moment vs remember a moment

remember the memory exists in your mind.

capture

put the moment into some record or representation.

A photo album can capture a moment; a person can remember it.

Important distinction 7: capture attention vs get attention

get attention

very broad.

capture attention

stronger and more vivid:

= attract and hold attention.

> The headline got my attention.

那個標題引起我注意。

> The image captured my attention.

那幅圖牢牢吸引了我。

Important distinction 8: capture attention vs attract attention

Very close.

attract attention

draw attention toward something.

capture attention

often suggests grabbing and holding it.

So capture can sound slightly stronger.

Important distinction 9: capture the mood vs create the mood

capture the mood

represent an existing mood accurately.

create the mood

produce or establish the mood.

> The photo captures the mood.

照片把氣氛呈現出來。

> The lighting creates the mood.

燈光營造氣氛。

Important distinction 10: capture the essence vs summarize summarize

state the main points briefly.

capture the essence

convey the core nature or spirit.

A painting can capture the essence of a place without summarizing anything verbally.

Important distinction 11: capture data vs collect data

collect data

broad process of gathering data.

capture data

often emphasizes recording it into a usable digital/system format.

The two overlap strongly in business/IT contexts.

Important distinction 12: capture = physical control vs figurative attraction

Physical

> capture a prisoner

俘虜

Figurative

> capture attention

吸引注意

The metaphor is clear:

> hold a person physically → hold someone's attention mentally

Important distinction 13: captive vs captured captured

describes the event/result of being caught.

captive

describes the state of being held.

> The animal was captured yesterday.

昨天被捕獲。

> The animal remains captive.

仍被圈養 / 囚禁。

Important distinction 14: captor vs captive

Easy learner trap:

captor

捕人的人

captive

被捕的人 / 動物

They point in opposite directions.

Important distinction 15: capture noun countability

the capture of X

usually uncountable/event noun:

> the capture of the city

攻佔城市

In technical contexts, a capture can refer to a specific recorded image/data capture:

> a screen capture

一張螢幕截圖 / 一次螢幕擷取

Family-extension note

Capture has several strong modern branches:

1. physically catch/control

* capture a suspect

* capture an animal

* capture a city

2. record

- * capture an image
- * capture sound
- * capture data

3. preserve fleeting experience

- * capture a moment
- * capture a memory

4. represent accurately

- * capture the mood
- * capture the essence

5. attract and hold

- * capture attention
- * capture imagination

6. gain control/share

- * capture market share
- * capture value

7. technical collection

- * screen capture
- * motion capture
- * carbon capture

8. family extensions

- * captor
- * captive
- * captivity

The semantic thread is surprisingly consistent:

get hold of something and keep/control/preserve it

That “something” can be:

- * a person,

- * a place,
- * an image,
- * a moment,
- * attention,
- * data,
- * market share,
- * carbon.

For your original sentence

> Page by page, it captured small moments that might otherwise have slipped through the cracks.

Here:

captured = 把短暫、容易被遺忘的家庭片段記錄並保存下來

A natural Traditional Chinese rendering is:

> 一頁一頁翻下去，它記錄並留住了一些如果不特別保存，就很容易從生活縫隙中溜走的小片段。

The nicest nuance here is that capture is stronger than simple record. It suggests the scrapbook managed to catch something fleeting before it disappeared—which connects beautifully with the next phrase slipped through the cracks.
