

Word family: DIARY / DIARIES / DIARIST / DIARISTS / DIARY-LIKE / DIARISTIC / DIARISTICALLY / DIARISE / DIARIZE

Base word: diary

Plural: diaries

Person noun: diarist

Related adjective: diaristic

Rare/regional verb: diarise / diarize

Part of speech: mainly noun (名詞)

Central semantic idea

DIARY = a continuing record organized around days, dates, or successive experiences

That record may be:

- personal and private,
- reflective,
- factual,
- professional,
- medical,
- educational,
- research-based,
- travel-related,
- or, especially in British English, a schedule of appointments and future commitments.

A. PASSAGE SENSE — PERSONAL/REFLECTIVE WRITING

1. diary = a record in which someone writes about experiences, thoughts, feelings, and events — 日記; 日誌

Passage anchor

“Students can be asked to write a diary entry after a role-play, compare their performance with the original text, or explain what their character’s choices reveal.”

Meaning

Here, diary means:

a personal written record of events, thoughts, and feelings, usually organized by date

日記; 個人日誌

In this lesson, students might write as if they were the character they had played.

The task therefore combines:

- character perspective,
- reflection,
- emotional understanding,
- narrative writing,
- interpretation.

日誌；記錄

Compare:

personal diary

個人日記 system log

系統日誌

EI. DIARY vs LOGBOOK

145. logbook

= formal/systematic book recording activities, journeys, measurements, hours, etc.
記錄簿; 航行日誌

Usually more operational and less personal than a diary.

EJ. DIARY vs NOTEBOOK

146. notebook

= book/file of blank pages for arbitrary notes 筆記本

147. diary

= organized chronological record
日記／行事簿

A notebook does not inherently organize entries by date.

EK. DIARY vs PLANNER

148. diary — BrE schedule sense

= records appointments and future commitments
行事曆／記事簿

149. planner

= tool for planning dates, tasks, goals, schedules
計畫簿；行程規劃本

There is significant overlap.

EL. DIARY vs CALENDAR

150. calendar

= system/display of dates plus scheduled events 日曆；行事曆

151. diary — BrE

= personal appointment schedule
行事簿；日程表

Digital English increasingly uses calendar internationally.

EM. DIARY vs SCHEDULE

152. schedule

= organized plan of appointments, tasks, times, etc.
時間表；日程

153. diary — BrE

= record/tool containing those scheduled commitments 行事曆

Compare:

My schedule is full.
我的行程很滿。

My diary is full.
我的行事曆排滿了。

EN. DIARY vs AGENDA

154. agenda

Can mean:

A. list of items to discuss at a meeting

議程

B. less commonly in some varieties, diary/planner book

行事簿

For international learner English, do not equate agenda automatically with diary.

EO. DIARY vs MEMOIR

155. diary

= written progressively as events occur
日記

156. memoir

= retrospective account written later about past experiences 回憶錄

Critical distinction.

A diary says:

“Today this happened.”

A memoir looks back:

“Years later, I remember...”

EP. DIARY vs AUTOBIOGRAPHY

157. autobiography

= structured account of one's life written by oneself 自傳

158. diary

= ongoing dated record written during life events
日記

EQ. DIARY vs BIOGRAPHY

159. biography

= account of someone's life written by another person 傳記

160. diary

= first-person chronological personal record
日記

ER. DIARY vs CHRONICLE

161. chronicle

= chronological account of events, often historical/public 編年記錄; 紀事

162. diary

= usually more personal and day-by-day
日記

ES. DIARY vs RECORD

163. record

= broad preserved account of information/events 記錄

164. diary

= specifically chronological recurring record
日記／日誌

All diaries are records, but not all records are diaries.

ET. DIARY vs REFLECTION

165. reflection

= thoughtful consideration of experience 反思

166. diary

= format/container in which such reflection may be written 日誌／日記

A diary entry can be reflective, but a diary does not have to contain deep reflection.

EU. DIARY vs ENTRY

167. diary

= the whole continuing record
整本／整份日記

168. diary entry

= one individual dated record within it 一篇／一則日記

Critical passage distinction.

EV. DIARY vs DAYBOOK

169. daybook

Older/specialized:

= book recording daily events, transactions, or appointments
日記簿；日記帳

In accounting, daybook can have specialized bookkeeping meanings.

Much less common than diary in general learner English.

EW. DIARY vs DATEBOOK

170. datebook

Especially AmE:

= small book used to record appointments

行事簿

Comparable to BrE scheduling diary.

EX. DIARY vs APPOINTMENT BOOK

171. appointment book

= book/calendar used to record appointments

預約簿; 行事簿

More transparent AmE equivalent of BrE scheduling diary.

EY. DIARY vs JOURNAL — PRIVACY NUANCE

Diary often carries a stronger traditional association with:

- private thoughts,
- emotions,
- day-to-day personal life.

Journal can sound:

- more reflective,
- academic,
- professional,
- or intentionally structured.

But this is a tendency, not a hard rule.

EZ. KEEP A DIARY vs JOURNAL

172. keep a diary

= maintain chronological personal record

寫日記

173. keep a journal

= maintain reflective/personal/professional record

寫日誌／寫日記

FA. READ SOMEONE'S DIARY

174. read someone's diary

= read their personal diary

看某人的日記

Often carries privacy implications.

FB. FIND / DISCOVER A DIARY

175. find a diary

= discover someone's diary or historical diary 發現一本日記

FC. PUBLISH A DIARY

176. publish a diary

= make diary writings publicly available as a publication 出版日記

FD. EDIT A DIARY FOR PUBLICATION

177. edit a diary

= prepare diary records for publication/research use 編輯日記

FE. DIARY EXTRACT

178. diary extract

= short section taken from a diary 日記摘錄

Practice

1. Read the following diary extract.
閱讀以下日記摘錄。

Common examination/literature phrase.

FF. DIARY EXCERPT

179. diary excerpt

= selected portion of diary writing

日記節錄

AmE often uses excerpt; BrE commonly uses extract.

FG. DIARY ACCOUNT

180. diary account

= account of events contained in a diary

日記記述

FH. DIARY RECORD OF EVENTS

181. diary record

= diary-based chronological record

日記記錄

FI. DIARY MATERIAL / DIARY EVIDENCE

182. diary material

= material drawn from diaries 日記材料

183. diary evidence

= evidence contained in diaries
日記證據／史料

Used in historical/research writing.

FJ. CONTEMPORARY DIARY

184. contemporary diary

= diary written at the time the events occurred 同時代日記；當時寫下的日記

Important historical-source distinction from later memoir.

FK. DIARY SOURCE

185. diary source

= diary used as a research/historical source 日記史料／日記資料來源

FL. FICTIONALIZED / FICTIONALISED DIARY

186. fictionalized diary

= diary-style narrative based partly on fiction or reconstructed material 小說化日記; 虛構化日記

FM. DIARY FORMAT IN EDUCATION

A diary-writing task often expects:

- first-person voice,
- personal reaction,
- date/time if appropriate,
- thoughts and feelings,
- events viewed from the writer's perspective.

These are genre conventions, not separate meanings of diary.

FN. DIARY ENTRY — PERSPECTIVE WRITING

187. diary entry as perspective-writing task

= school task requiring learner to inhabit a character/person's viewpoint 角色代入式日記寫作

Practice

1. Write a diary entry explaining how the bystander felt after the incident.
寫一篇日記，說明旁觀者在事件後的感受。

Directly relevant to the passage.

FO. DIARY ENTRY — NOT NECESSARILY FACTUAL

A diary entry may be:

- genuinely autobiographical,
- fictional,
- role-based,
- educational.

So in the passage, the student does not necessarily record something that happened to them personally.

They may write:

as the victim
as the bystander as the parent
as the teacher.

FP. DIARY — COUNTABILITY

188. a diary

= one diary/book/record
一本／一份日記

189. diaries

= several diaries 多本／多份日記

FQ. DIARY — CONCRETE OBJECT vs CONTENT

190. diary = physical/digital container

She locked her diary in a drawer.
她把日記本鎖在抽屜裡。

191. diary = content/record itself

Her diary describes life during the war.
她的日記描述戰時生活。

Same noun, with a concrete-container vs content distinction.

FR. DIARY BOOK

192. diary book

Possible but usually unnecessary.

English generally says simply:

diary

if it is clear that the physical book is meant.

FS. LOCKABLE DIARY

193. lockable diary

= personal diary designed with a lock 有鎖日記本

Common product term, especially children's diaries.

FT. DIARY APP

194. diary app

= application used for diary/journal entries

日記 App／日誌應用程式

Depending on product, it may instead be:

- journal app,
 - calendar app,
 - symptom-tracking app.

FU. DIARY SOFTWARE

195. diary software

= software for maintaining diary records or schedules

日記／日程管理軟體

Context determines which branch.

FV. DIARY DATABASE

196. diary database

Research/digital context:

= database storing diary entries

日誌資料庫

FW. SEARCHABLE DIARY

197. searchable diary

= digital diary whose past entries can be searched 可搜尋日記

FX. DIARY ARCHIVE

198. diary archive

= collection/archive of diaries 日記檔案庫；日記收藏

Historical/library use.

FY. DIARY COLLECTION

199. diary collection

= collection of one or more people's diaries 日記合集／日記收藏

FZ. DIARISE / DIARIZE — REGIONAL/FORMAL

200. diarise / diarize

Regional business English, especially in some Commonwealth varieties:

= put an event/date into one's diary/calendar
記入行事曆；排入日程

Practice

1. Please diarise the meeting for next Thursday.
請把會議記入下星期四的行事曆。

This is not universal everyday English.

Internationally clearer alternatives are:

- schedule
 - put in the calendar
 - put in the diary

GA. DIARISE A DATE

201. diarise a date

= record it in one's appointment diary 把日期記入行事曆

Regional.

GB. DIARISE A REMINDER

202. diarise a reminder

= schedule a reminder in one's diary/calendar 設定日程提醒

Regional/business use.

GC. DIARIZATION / DIARISATION? — CAUTION

Do not confuse diary-related diarise with computing/speech diarization.

In speech technology:

speaker diarization

means:

determining “who spoke when” in an audio recording

說話者分離／說話者分段標註

Despite the similar spelling, this technical word is historically/technically used around segmenting speakers, and learners should not infer that it means writing a diary.

GD. SPEAKER DIARIZATION — TECHNICAL HOMOGRAPH-LIKE TRAP

203. speaker diarization

Speech processing:

= partitioning audio into segments according to speaker identity; answering roughly “who spoke when?”

說話者分離；說話者分段標註

This is an important modern technical term but is not a normal semantic extension of diary-writing for learners.

Treat it as a specialist technical term.

GE. KEY GRAMMAR — KEEP + DIARY

204. keep a diary

She keeps a diary.
她有寫日記的習慣。

GF. WRITE IN + DIARY

205. write in one's diary

He wrote in his diary every evening.
他每天晚上寫日記。

GG. ENTRY IN + DIARY

206. an entry in a diary

I found an old entry in her diary.
我在她日記裡找到一篇舊日記記錄。

GH. DIARY OF + PERSON/PERIOD

207. diary of someone

= diary written by/about the experiences of that person 某人的日記

208. diary of a period/journey

= chronological diary documenting that period
某段時期／旅程的日記

GI. DIARY FROM + PERIOD

209. diary from the war / 1990s

= diary dating from that time 來自某時期的日記

GJ. DIARY FOR + PURPOSE

210. diary for symptoms/food/etc.

= diary used to track that category
用於記錄.....的日誌

Example:

a diary for recording headaches 頭痛記錄日誌

GK. IN ONE'S DIARY — PERSONAL

211. record something in one's diary

= write it as a diary record 把某事寫進日記

GL. IN ONE'S DIARY — SCHEDULING

212. have a date in one's diary

BrE:

= have an appointment scheduled 行程表中已有安排

Same grammar, different branch.

GM. PASSAGE GRAMMAR — WRITE A DIARY ENTRY

The passage does not say:

write a diary

because students are not necessarily maintaining a diary over many days.

It says:

write a diary entry

because they produce one individual piece of diary-style writing.

This is an important usage distinction.

GN. DIARY ENTRY vs REFLECTIVE PARAGRAPH

213. diary entry

= written in a diary persona/format 日記式寫作

214. reflective paragraph

= direct reflective prose without necessarily using diary conventions 反思段落

A teacher may choose either, but they train somewhat different writing modes.

GO. DIARY ENTRY vs LETTER

215. diary entry

= private/self-addressed record
日記

216. letter

= communication addressed to another recipient 書信

A fictional-character task may use either form, but the audience relationship changes.

GP. DIARY ENTRY vs MONOLOGUE

217. diary entry

= written internal/personal record
日記

218. monologue

= extended speech by one speaker 獨白

Both can reveal inner thoughts, but the medium differs.

GQ. DIARY ENTRY vs FIRST-PERSON NARRATIVE

219. first-person narrative

= narrative using “I/we” from narrator’s perspective 第一人稱敘事

220. diary entry

= one specific first-person diary genre 日記體記錄

Most diary entries are first-person, but not all first-person writing is diary writing.

GR. DIARY vs JOURNAL — EDUCATION

In classroom settings:

learning journal / reflective journal often sounds more academic.

diary
often sounds more personal and day-by-day.

But educators may use the terms differently.

GS. DIARY vs PORTFOLIO

221. diary

= chronological reflection/record 日誌

222. portfolio

= curated collection of work/evidence

作品集

A portfolio may include diary entries, but is much broader.

GT. DIARY vs TRACKER

223. tracker

= tool focused on recording measurable variables over time

追蹤記錄工具

224. diary

= may include narrative, context, feelings, and events

日誌

Example:

mood tracker

情緒追蹤器 mood diary

情緒日誌

The latter may contain richer written reflection.

GU. DIARY vs CHECKLIST

225. checklist

= list of items to confirm/complete

核對表

226. diary

= chronological record

日誌

GV. DIARY vs PLANNER — PAST vs FUTURE TENDENCY

A useful—but not absolute—contrast:

personal diary

often records:

what has happened

whereas a scheduling planner/BrE diary records:

what will happen

This explains why diary can appear to have almost opposite time orientations in different contexts.

GW. PRIVATE DIARY vs PUBLIC BLOG

227. private diary

= intended primarily for oneself

私人日記

228. public blog

= written for an audience

公開網誌

An online diary can occupy either position.

GX. DIARY ENTRY vs LOG ENTRY

229. diary entry

typically emphasizes:

- personal perspective,
- feelings,
- reflection.

日記記錄

230. log entry

typically emphasizes:

- factual event,
- timestamp,
- operational record.

日誌記錄

GY. DIARY ENTRY vs CASE NOTE

231. case note

Professional:

= formal record of work involving a client/patient/case

個案記錄

232. diary entry

= personal/chronological record

日記／日誌

Professionals should not assume a personal diary is equivalent to a formal case record.

GZ. DIARY — PRIVACY CONNOTATION

Because personal diaries are commonly private, phrases such as:

read someone's diary

can imply intrusion into privacy.

However, diary itself does not necessarily mean "secret."

A diary may be:

- private,
 - shared,
 - published,
 - assigned for school,
 - collected for research.

HA. DIARY — CHRONOLOGICAL ORGANIZATION

A defining practical feature of most diary senses is:

entries are associated with dates or successive periods/events.

That separates a diary from an ordinary unordered notebook.

HB. DIARY — RETROSPECTIVE DEPTH

A diary entry can range from:

factual

“Met Sarah at 3 p.m.”

to:

reflective

“I realized today why I stayed silent.”

The passage deliberately encourages the second, reflective form.

HC. DIARY — AUTHENTIC vs FICTIONAL VOICE

233. authentic diary

= writer records their own experiences

真實個人日記

234. fictional diary

= invented writer/character voice

虛構日記

The passage’s task is likely fictional/role-based, not autobiographical.

HD. DIARY AS CHARACTERIZATION TOOL

In literature/drama education, writing a character diary can reveal:

- motive,
- hidden feelings,
- conflict,
- interpretation of events,
- relationships,
- moral choices.

This is a pedagogical use of the ordinary diary genre, not a new dictionary sense.

HE. WORD-FAMILY SWEEP

235. diary — personal record

= dated personal record of events/thoughts/feelings

日記

236. diary — reflective/educational record

= continuing learning/reflection record

反思日誌; 學習日誌

237. diary — specialized tracking record

= repeated record of symptoms, food, sleep, activities, etc.

記錄日誌

238. diary — research instrument

= systematic repeated record used to collect research data

日誌研究記錄

239. diary — BrE schedule

= appointment book/calendar

行事曆; 日程表

240. diarist

= person who writes a diary

日記作者

241. diaristic

= characteristic of diary writing 日記式的

242. diary-like

= resembling a diary 像日記的

243. diarise / diarize

= regional: put something into a diary/calendar 記入行程

HF. SEMANTIC MAP

The central concept of DIARY is:

a dated or sequential record maintained over time

That develops into several major branches.

A. Personal experience

Passage family

diary
→ 日記

diary entry → 一篇日記

keep a diary
→ 寫日記

B. Reflection and education

reflective diary

→ 反思日誌

learning diary

→ 學習日誌

character diary

→ 角色日記

This is especially close to the passage.

C. Monitoring

food diary

→ 飲食日誌 symptom diary

→ 症狀日誌

sleep diary

→ 睡眠日誌

mood diary

→ 情緒日誌

The “daily personal story” becomes a systematic tracking record.

D. Research

diary study

→ 日誌研究

diary data

→ 日誌資料

Researchers use repeated diary records as data.

E. Travel / professional records

travel diary
→ 旅行日記

field diary → 田野日誌 research diary

→ 研究日誌

F. Scheduling — especially BrE

check my diary
→ 查看行程

put the meeting in the diary
→ 把會議排進日程

Here the diary records future appointments rather than past experiences.

The common semantic thread is:

DIARY = information organized around successive dates/times.

What changes is what the dates contain:

- memories,
 - feelings,
 - observations,
 - symptoms,
 - activities,
 - or future appointments.

HI. PASSAGE RECAP

“Students can be asked to write a diary entry after a role-play, compare their performance with the original text, or explain what their character's choices reveal.”

Here:

diary

= a personal chronological record of events, thoughts, and feelings

Best Traditional Chinese:

- 日記
- 日誌
- in this classroom task: 角色日記／反思日記

And:

diary entry

= one individual piece of writing within a diary

Best Traditional Chinese:

- 一篇日記
- 一則日記記錄

Natural contextual translation:

學生可以在角色扮演後寫一篇日記，把自己的表演與原文比較，或解釋角色的選擇反映了甚麼。

Passage MCQ-ready meaning

diary

= a usually dated record in which someone writes about events, experiences, thoughts, or feelings

日記; 日誌

The biggest learner branches are:

keep a diary

→ 寫日記

diary entry

→ 一篇日記

reflective diary

→ 反思日誌

travel diary

→ 旅行日記

food diary

→ 飲食日誌

symptom diary

→ 症狀日誌

sleep diary

→ 睡眠日誌

research diary

→ 研究日誌

Research methodology then gives:

diary study

→ 日誌研究

A major British-English branch is completely different in practical function:

check my diary

→ 查看我的行程

put the meeting in the diary

→ 把會議排進行程

Here diary means:

appointment calendar / schedule

rather than a record of private thoughts.

The person noun is:

diarist

→ 日記作者／寫日記的人

and literary analysis gives:

diaristic style

→ 日記式風格

One particularly important distinction is:

diary

= the whole continuing record versus:

diary entry

= one individual piece inside that record.

That is why the passage says:

write a diary entry

rather than requiring students to maintain an entire diary.

The strongest semantic shortcut is:

DIARY = a record organized through successive dates or periods.

Those dates can contain:

1. past experiences and feelings → personal diary
2. learning reflection → reflective/learning diary
3. symptoms or behavior → medical/research diary
4. travel or field observations → travel/field diary
5. future appointments → BrE scheduling diary

In the passage, the diary task is pedagogically important because it asks students to move from acting as a character to writing from inside that character's perspective. Instead of merely describing what happened, the student may have to articulate what the character noticed, feared, regretted, misunderstood, or wished someone else had done. That makes the diary entry a bridge from performance to reflection.
