Passage recap

> “...some people do change—not because time softens them, but because life forces them to confront the truth.”

Here:

force = to make someone do something because circumstances leave little or no genuine choice

Best Traditional Chinese:

* 迫使

* 逼使

* 使.....不得不

Natural contextual translation:

有些人確實會改變——不是因為時間令他們變得柔和，而是因為人生迫使他們直面真相。

Passage MCQ-ready meaning force someone to do something

= to compel someone to do something, often because pressure or circumstances make it unavoidable

迫使某人做某事；使某人不得不做某事

The biggest learner splits are:

> force someone to leave

> → 迫使某人離開

> physical force

> → 力量 / 作用力

> force the door open

> → 強行把門打開

> force a smile

> → 勉強擠出笑容

> force for change

> → 推動改變的力量

> armed forces

> → 武裝部隊

> police force

> → 警隊

> labour force

> → 勞動人口

> rules in force

> → 規則正在生效

> force majeure

> → 不可抗力

And the adjective distinction is especially important:

> forceful speech

> → 強而有力的演說

but:

> forcible entry

> → 強行闖入

So the passage uses the compulsion through circumstances branch: Kelvin's experience did not merely encourage him to think differently—it made avoiding the truth psychologically impossible.
