

Word family: part / parts / partly / partial / partially / partition / participate / participant / participation

Base word: part

Plural: parts

Related forms: partly, partial, partially

Broader lexical relatives: partition, participate, participant, participation

Part of speech: noun (名詞) / verb (動詞 , 部分用法) / adverb and adjective family forms (相關副詞及形容詞)

Your sentence:

> "...he was fun to be with, kind at heart, and a huge part of what made my childhood so memorable."

Meaning in this passage

Here, part means "one important element or component within a larger whole".

Ryan was one of the major things that contributed to making the speaker's childhood memorable.

繁體中文： 構成較大整體的其中一個部分、元素或因素

中文翻譯：

> "...a huge part of what made my childhood so memorable."

「.....他是令我的童年如此難忘的一個非常重要的部分 / 因素。」

Here:

a huge part of what made my childhood memorable = 構成這段難忘童年經歷的一個非常重要因素

1. part = one piece/component of a whole (組成部分) — 部分 ; 一部分

This is the meaning used in your passage.

Meaning: One of the pieces, elements, or sections that together form a larger whole.

Practice 1 — Original

> "He was a huge part of what made my childhood so memorable."

「他是令我的童年如此難忘的一個非常重要的部分。」

Practice 2

> “Exercise is an important part of a healthy lifestyle.”

「運動是健康生活方式的重要一部分。」

Practice 3

> “This chapter is only one part of the book.”

「這一章只是這本書的其中一個部分。」 part = 構成一個較大整體的其中一個部分、元素或成分

Common:

- * part of a story
- * part of a system
- * part of life
- * part of a problem
- * an important part

These belong to one central component-of-a-whole sense.

2. part = a section/area of something (區域 / 段落) — 部位 ; 部分 ; 地區

Part can refer to a particular section or area of a place, object, body, text, etc.

Practice 4

> “This part of the city is very quiet.”

「城市的這個*地區 / 部分*很安靜。」

Practice 5

> “The damaged part of the machine needs replacing.”

「機器受損的*部件 / 部分*需要更換。」 part = 一個較大地方、物件或結構中的特定區域 / 部位

For strict counting, I would merge this with Meaning 1. The underlying idea is still:

> one section of a larger whole

The Golden Manual says not to split senses merely because the whole changes from a machine to a city, book, body, or life.

3. part = role in an activity/situation (角色 / 作用) — 角色 ; 作用 ; 份

Part can mean the role, function, or contribution someone or something has in an event or situation.

Practice 6

> “Everyone played a part in the project.”

「每個人都在項目中發揮了自己的作用 / 角色。」

Practice 7

> “Luck played a small part in their success.”

「運氣在他們的成功中只佔了一小部分作用 / 因素。」 part = 某人或某事物在一件事情中所起的作用、貢獻或角色

Common:

- * play a part in
- * have a part in
- * take part in

The first two belong to this role/contribution sense.

4. part = role played by an actor (戲劇 / 表演) — 角色

A part can specifically mean a character or role performed by an actor.

Practice 8

> “She got the part of the queen.”

「她獲得了皇后的角色。」

Practice 9

> “He learned his part before rehearsal.”

「他在綵排前已經熟記自己的角色 / 台詞部分。」 *part = 演員在戲劇、電影或其他表演中扮演的角色

This develops from the broader role meaning, so for core counting I would usually merge it with Meaning 3.

5. *part = share/portion belonging to someone (份額) — 一份 ; 份額

Part can mean the portion of something assigned, owned, or contributed by a person.

Practice 10

> “I’ve done my part.”

「我已經盡了自己的一份力 / 本分。」

Practice 11

> “Each person paid their part of the cost.”

「每個人都支付了自己那一份費用。」 *part = 某人應負責、承擔、獲得或貢獻的一份

This is closely related to the component/role senses but learner-wise useful to show explicitly.

6. *part = side in an agreement/dispute (立場 / 一方) — 一方 ; 一邊

In formal contexts, part can refer to one side involved in something.

Practice 12

> “There was no dishonesty on her part.”

「就她那一方 / 她本人而言，沒有不誠實的行為。」

Practice 13

> “The mistake was partly on my part.”

「這個錯誤我自己也要負一部分責任。」 on someone's part = 就某人而言；由某人所做 / 負責的

This is a common fixed construction built from the idea of one person's share or side.

7. part = separate / move away from someone or something (動詞) — 分開；分離

As a verb, part means to separate or go away from each other.

Practice 14

> “The two friends parted at the station.”

「兩位朋友在車站分開 / 道別。」

Practice 15

> “The curtains parted slowly.”

「窗簾慢慢分開。」 part = 原本在一起的人或物分離、分開或向不同方向移動

This is a genuinely distinct verb meaning.

8. part with something (捨棄 / 交出) — 放棄；割捨

This is a phrasal verb, so under your operating procedure it would normally be excluded from the core entry unless specifically requested.

For reference only:

> part with something = reluctantly give up or hand over something

Example:

> “He refused to part with the old watch.”

「他不肯割捨 / 交出那隻舊手錶。」

I would keep this outside the core count.

9. part = leave / separate from someone (較文學 / 正式) — 分手 ; 分離

This is essentially the same verb sense as #7 but can have emotional or formal overtones.

Practice 16

> “They parted as friends.”

「他們以朋友身分分開 / 道別。」

Practice 17

> “The couple parted after many years together.”

「那對伴侶相處多年後分開了。」

For core counting, this stays under the general separate verb sense.

Related form: partly

Partly means not completely; to some degree.

Practice 18

> “The delay was partly caused by bad weather.”

「延誤部分是由惡劣天氣造成的。」

Practice 19

> “I agree with you partly, but not completely.”

「我部分同意你，但不是完全同意。」 partly = 只有一部分 ; 在某種程度上，但並非完全

Related form: partial

Partial has two important modern meanings.

partial = incomplete / only part of something (部分的)

Practice 20

> “We only have partial information.”

「我們只有部分資料。」

Practice 21

> “The road was reopened after a partial repair.”

「道路經過局部修復後重新開放。」 partial = 只包括整體的一部分，而不是全部的

partial = biased / favouring one side (偏袒的)

Practice 22

> “A judge must not be partial.”

「法官不應該偏袒任何一方。」

Practice 23

> “The report was criticized for being partial.”

「該報告被批評過於偏頗 / 偏袒一方。」 partial = 對其中一方有偏好，因此不能完全公平中立的

This is a genuinely distinct family meaning.

Related form: partially

Practice 24

> “The building was partially damaged.”

「這座建築物部分受損。」

Practice 25

> “I only partially understood the explanation.”

「我只部分理解那個解釋。」 partially = 只在部分程度上；不完全地

Related form: participate

Participate means to take part in an activity.

Practice 26

> “Many students participated in the competition.”

「很多學生參加了比賽。」

Practice 27

> “Everyone is encouraged to participate.”

「鼓勵每個人都參與。」 participate = 參與某項活動、事件或過程

This is historically and morphologically related to part, but modern learners should treat it as its own lexical item rather than another meaning of part.

Related form: participant

Practice 28

> “Each participant received a certificate.”

「每位參加者都獲得一張證書。」 participant = 參與某項活動的人

Important distinction: part vs piece

part

is broad and means one component of a larger whole.

piece

often means a physically separate portion.

> part of a machine

> piece of cake

A part does not need to be physically detached.

Important distinction: part vs section

section

usually suggests a clearly defined or organized subdivision.

part

is more general.

> a section of the report

> part of the report

Both are possible, but section sounds more formally divided.

Important distinction: part vs role

part

can mean someone's contribution or function.

role

more directly means the function or expected behaviour someone has.

> “She played an important part in the project.”

≈

> “She had an important role in the project.”

But part also has many physical meanings that role does not.

Important distinction: part vs share

These overlap when referring to a portion.

part

= any component/portion of a whole share

often emphasizes the amount belonging to, allocated to, or contributed by someone > part of the cake

> my share of the cake

So share is more ownership/distribution-oriented.

Important distinction: part vs partly

part

noun:

> “This is part of the problem.”

partly

adverb:

> “This is partly true.”

So:

part = 部分

partly = 部分地 / 某程度上

Important distinction: partly vs partially

These often overlap.

partly

is very common in general speech.

partially

often sounds slightly more formal or technical.

> partly true

> partially damaged

Both can mean:

> not completely

Important distinction: partial vs partly partial

adjective:

> “a partial answer”

partly

adverb:

> “partly correct”

Different grammatical roles.

Also, partial can mean biased, whereas partly cannot.

Useful expression: play a part in — 發揮作用

Practice 29

> “Family support played an important part in his recovery.”

「家庭支持在他的康復過程中發揮了重要作用。」

Practice 30

> “Several factors played a part in the decision.”

「幾個因素都在這項決定中發揮了作用。」 play a part in something = 對某件事情的發展或結果產生作用 / 影響

Useful expression: take part in — 參加；參與

Practice 31

> “She took part in the competition.”

「她參加了比賽。」

Practice 32

> “More than 200 people took part in the survey.”

「超過二百人參與了調查。」

take part in = 參與某項活動

This is a fixed expression rather than a separate meaning of bare part.

Useful expression: for my part — 就我而言

Practice 33

> “For my part, I would rather stay home.”

「就我而言，我寧願留在家。」

for my/your/his part = 就某人的立場、意見或行動而言

Useful expression: in part — 部分地

Practice 34

> “The success was due in part to good timing.”

「成功部分歸功於時機良好。」

in part = partly ; 在某種程度上

Countability note

Part is usually countable when it means a component:

> a part

> two parts

But in some fixed expressions it appears without an article:

* in part

* for the most part

* take part in

This is worth learning as construction-level behaviour rather than treating each as a new lexical sense.

Family-extension note

The practical modern family includes:

* part

* parts

* parted

* parting

* partly

* partial

* partially

Useful lexical relatives include:

* participate
* participant
* participation * partition

These related forms develop from the idea of division, portion, or taking a share, but modern learners should not mechanically treat them all as grammatical forms of part.

The Golden Manual asks for a broad family sweep while keeping lexical-family extensions separate from actual base-word senses.

Master comparison

Form / sense	MCQ-ready Traditional Chinese meaning
-----	-----
part — component of a whole	構成較大整體的其中一個部分、元素、區域或成分
part — role/contribution	某人或某事物在事件、活動或結果中所起的作用、角色或貢獻
part — actor's role	演員在戲劇、電影或表演中扮演的角色；與 role 義相關
part — share/portion	某人應得、承擔、負責或貢獻的一份
part — verb	原本在一起的人或物分離、分開或向不同方向移動
partly	只有一部分；某種程度上但並非完全
partial — incomplete	只包括整體的一部分，而不是全部
partial — biased	對某一方有偏好，因此不能完全公平中立
participate	參與某項活動；相關詞但應作獨立詞彙處理

For your original sentence

> "...a huge part of what made my childhood so memorable."

The exact meaning is:

part = 構成一個較大整體的其中一個重要元素或因素

Here, the larger whole is:

> what made the speaker's childhood memorable and Ryan was one major component of that.

So:

> a huge part of what made my childhood so memorable

= 令我的童年如此難忘的一個非常重要部分 / 因素

For your database, I would count 4 genuinely useful core meanings for part:

1. a component, section, or portion of a larger whole
2. a role, function, or contribution in something
3. a person's share or allocated portion
4. verb — separate / move apart

I would merge physical parts, parts of a city, parts of a book under #1, merge an actor's part into #2, and keep take part in, play a part in, in part, for my part, and part with as fixed constructions rather than inflate the core count.