1. There is no need to rehearse all the arguments again.
沒有必要再次重述所有論點。
2. The report rehearses the familiar criticisms.
報告再次列舉那些耳熟能詳的批評。

Formal and less common than the performance sense.

DS. REHEARSE THE FACTS

139. rehearse the facts

Formal:

= recount/review facts

重述事實; 逐一回顧事實

Practice

1. The introduction briefly rehearses the facts of the case.
導言簡要重述案件事實。

DT. REHEARSE AN ARGUMENT — FORMAL RECOUNTING

140. rehearse an argument

Can mean:

A. practise an argument before presenting it

預演／準備論點

B. formally repeat/restate an argument

重述論點

Context decides.

DU. REHEARSE FAMILIAR ARGUMENTS

141. rehearse familiar arguments

= repeat arguments that have already often been made 重複老生常談的論點

Often mildly critical:

“The article merely rehearses familiar arguments.”

= 文章只是在重彈舊調／重複常見論點。

DV. REHEARSE A HISTORY / STORY

142. rehearse the history of something

Formal/literary:

= recount its history
回顧／重述歷史

第一章回顧了這場爭議的歷史。

DW. REHEARSE DETAILS

143. rehearse details

Formal:

= recount details, often unnecessarily or at length 重述細節

DX. REHEARSE GRIEVANCES

144. rehearse grievances

Formal:

= repeatedly recount complaints/resentments 反覆訴說不滿／舊怨

Practice

1. The meeting became an occasion to rehearse old grievances.
會議變成了反覆重提舊怨の場合。

Useful literary/formal extension.

DY. REHEARSE OLD ARGUMENTS / COMPLAINTS

145. rehearse old arguments

= repeat arguments already heard many times 重提舊論點

146. rehearse old complaints

= repeat familiar complaints 重提舊抱怨

DZ. REHEARSED — FORMULAIC / PREPARED APPEARANCE

147. rehearsed

Figurative/pragmatic:

= appearing planned, practised, or formulaic rather than spontaneous
事先準備好的; 像背好的

Practice

1. His apology sounded rehearsed.
他的道歉聽起來像是事先背好的。
 2. The exchange felt too rehearsed to be spontaneous.
那段對話感覺太像事先排練過, 不像即興發生。

EA. REHEARSED APOLOGY

148. rehearsed apology

= apology that appears prepared in advance 事先準備好的道歉

Can imply insincerity depending on tone.

EB. REHEARSED ANSWER

149. rehearsed answer

= answer practised beforehand 事先練好的答案

EC. REHEARSED LINE

150. rehearsed line

= line practised in advance; figuratively a stock phrase 預先練好的說辭／台詞

ED. REHEARSED STORY

151. rehearsed story

= account apparently practised beforehand 事先排練過的說法

Depending on context, may imply suspicion that speakers coordinated their story.

EE. UNREHEARSED REMARK

152. unrehearsed remark

= spontaneous comment not prepared beforehand 即興說話；未預先準備的言論

EF. IMPROMPTU vs UNREHEARSED

153. impromptu

= done without advance preparation 即興的

154. unrehearsed

= specifically not rehearsed beforehand 未排練的

Close but not always identical.

Something may be planned yet unrehearsed.

EG. SPONTANEOUS vs REHEARSED

155. spontaneous

= natural/unplanned
自發的; 即興的

156. rehearsed

= practised/prepared 排練過的

EH. REHEARSE vs SCRIPT

157. script — verb

= plan/write exact wording in advance
預先寫好台詞／安排內容

158. rehearse

= practise what will be said/done
排練

A speech can be:

- scripted but unrehearsed,
- rehearsed but not fully scripted,

- both.

Important distinction.

EI. REHEARSE vs COACH

159. coach someone

= train/advise them to improve performance
指導; 訓練

160. rehearse someone

= lead them through actual rehearsal 帶領某人排練

A director can both coach and rehearse actors.

EJ. REHEARSE vs DIRECT

161. direct

Theatre/film:
= oversee artistic interpretation and staging
導演; 指導

162. rehearse

= practise the performance
排練

A director directs a production and rehearses the cast.

EK. REHEARSE vs BLOCK

163. block a scene

Theatre:

= plan actors' positions/movements
設計／安排走位

164. rehearse a scene

= practise the full scene
排練場景

Blocking is one part of rehearsal.

EL. REHEARSE vs IMPROVISE

165. rehearse

= practise beforehand 預先排練

166. improvise

= create/perform without fully predetermined wording/actions 即興創作／表演

Direct contrast.

EM. REHEARSAL vs PERFORMANCE

167. rehearsal

= preparation
排練

168. performance

= actual presentation to audience 表演

EN. REHEARSAL vs PREVIEW

169. rehearsal

= practice before public presentation
排練

170. preview

= advance public/semi-public showing before full official release/opening 預演／試映／預覽場

A preview is not simply a rehearsal because an audience may be present and it may count as a real performance.

EO. REHEARSAL vs DRESS REHEARSAL

171. rehearsal

= any practice session
排練

172. dress rehearsal

= near-final rehearsal under realistic performance conditions 總彩排

EP. DRESS REHEARSAL vs DRY RUN

173. dress rehearsal

= full realistic rehearsal, originally performance-related 總彩排

174. dry run

= test/practice of almost any process/event 試行／預演

The second is broader in general business/technical contexts.

EQ. REHEARSAL vs SIMULATION

175. simulation

= representation/imitation of real-world conditions 模擬

176. rehearsal

= practice of what participants will do 演練

A simulation provides the environment; rehearsal describes participants practising responses within it.

ER. REHEARSAL vs ROLE-PLAY

177. role-play

= assume roles to explore/practise a situation

角色扮演

178. rehearsal

= prepare a planned performance

排練

In the passage, the same role-play can itself be rehearsed repeatedly.

ES. REHEARSAL vs REVIEW — MEMORY

179. review

= look over material again

複習

180. rehearsal

Psychology:

= deliberate repetition to maintain/strengthen memory

複誦

Review is broader.

ET. REHEARSAL vs RETRIEVAL PRACTICE

181. rehearsal

= repeat/review information

複誦

182. retrieval practice

= actively try to recall information from memory

提取練習; 回憶練習

Educational psychology distinguishes these.

Simply rereading/repeating material is not necessarily retrieval practice.

EU. REHEARSAL vs ROTE LEARNING

183. rote learning

= learning mainly through repetition, often with limited emphasis on meaning

死記硬背; 機械式學習

184. rehearsal

= repetition process that may be mechanical or elaborative depending on type

複誦; 反覆練習

Not every rehearsal is rote learning.

EV. PASSAGE CONNECTION — REHEARSAL AS LEARNING

The passage uses rehearsal in a particularly rich way.

The students are not merely trying to produce a polished performance.

By repeatedly rehearsing, they have to reconsider:

- why a character says something,
- whether silence communicates something,
- how a victim might interpret a joke,
- whether a bystander should speak,

- what tone is appropriate,
- what gesture changes the meaning.

So rehearsal becomes a form of:

repeated interpretation and decision-making not merely:

memorizing lines.

EW. REHEARSE vs MEMORIZE LINES

185. memorize lines

= commit words to memory

背熟台詞

186. rehearse lines/a scene

= practise delivery, timing, movement, interpretation, etc.

排練台詞／場景

A performer may know every line but still need extensive rehearsal.

EX. REHEARSAL CAN CHANGE INTERPRETATION

In drama:

first reading

→ tentative interpretation

rehearsal

→ repeated experimentation

performance
→ selected realization

Thus rehearse can involve discovering meaning, not simply reproducing something already fixed.

This nuance is highly relevant to the passage.

EY. KEY GRAMMAR — REHEARSE + OBJECT

187. rehearse + performance item

rehearse the play
排練戲劇 rehearse the speech 預演演說

rehearse the scene
排練場景

EZ. REHEARSE + PERSON/GROUP

188. rehearse the actors/orchestra

= lead them through rehearsal
帶領演員／樂團排練

FA. REHEARSE FOR + EVENT

189. rehearse for something rehearse for the concert 為音樂會排練

FB. REHEARSE WITH + PERSON/GROUP

190. rehearse with someone rehearse with the cast 與演員一起排練

FC. REHEARSE IN + PLACE

191. rehearse in a room/studio

rehearse in the hall 在禮堂排練

FD. REHEARSE WHAT / HOW

192. rehearse what to say

預演要說的內容

193. rehearse how to respond

演練如何回應

FE. REHEARSE + -ING? USAGE NOTE

English usually prefers:

rehearse what you will say or:

rehearse giving the presentation

depending on context.

But the simplest learner patterns remain:

- rehearse a speech
 - rehearse a scene
 - rehearse a response

FF. REHEARSAL OF + NOUN

194. rehearsal of a scene

= practice performance of it 場景排練

195. rehearsal of emergency procedures

排練服裝

FU. REHEARSAL DINNER vs DRESS REHEARSAL

211. rehearsal dinner

= wedding-related meal

婚禮彩排晚宴

212. dress rehearsal

= full practice performance

總彩排

They share the word rehearsal but refer to very different events.

FV. FORMAL “REHEARSE” vs “REHEARSE FOR”

213. rehearse an argument

may mean:

- practise it,
- or formally repeat/restate it.

214. rehearse for a debate

almost certainly means:

- practise before the debate.

The preposition helps disambiguate.

FW. “REHEARSE THE FACTS” vs “REHEARSE A PLAY”

215. rehearse the facts

= 重述／回顧事實

216. rehearse a play

= 排練戲劇

This is one of the clearest genuine polysemy contrasts.

FX. “REHEARSED” POSITIVE vs NEGATIVE CONNOTATION

217. positive/neutral

a well-rehearsed performance 排練充分的表演 suggests preparation and competence.

218. negative

a rehearsed apology 像背好一樣的道歉 may suggest:

- artificiality,
- lack of spontaneity,
- insincerity.

Context determines evaluation.

FY. REHEARSE vs PREMEDITATE — CAUTION

Premeditate means:

= plan an action beforehand, especially something harmful or legally significant 預謀

It is not a synonym for ordinary rehearse.

FZ. REHEARSE vs SCRIPTED — AUTHENTICITY

219. scripted

= exact content planned/written beforehand
有腳本的; 預先寫好的

220. rehearsed

= practised beforehand
排練過的

A performance can be:

- scripted and rehearsed,

排練

GB. REHEARSE vs STAGE

223. stage — verb

= arrange/present a performance or event

上演; 安排舞台呈現

224. rehearse

= practise before staging it publicly

排練

GC. REHEARSE vs RECYCLE AN ARGUMENT — FORMAL

When critics say a writer:

rehearses familiar arguments

they may mean:

the writer repeats material already heard many times.

Chinese can naturally be:

- 重述
- 重提
- 重彈舊調 (more evaluative)

Do not translate this as literal 排練論點 unless the context really involves preparation.

GD. FAMILY SWEEP

225. rehearse — performance

= practise a play, scene, speech, music, etc. before the real performance 排練; 預演

226. rehearse — procedure/event

= practise a planned sequence before it is needed

234. well-rehearsed

= thoroughly practised

排練充分的

235. over-rehearsed

= practised to the point of sounding unnatural

排練過度的

236. unrehearsed

= not practised beforehand

未經排練的; 即興的

GE. SEMANTIC MAP

The central concept of REHEARSE is:

go through something repeatedly before or instead of the final real occurrence

From this develop several branches.

A. Drama/performance

Passage

rehearse the role-play → 排練角色扮演

Also:

rehearse a scene
→ 排練場景

rehearse lines → 練習台詞

rehearse music → 排練音樂

B. Public communication

rehearse a speech
→ 預演演說

rehearse a presentation → 預演簡報

rehearse an answer → 預先練習答案

C. Real-world procedures

rehearse an evacuation → 演練疏散程序 rehearse an emergency response

→ 演練緊急應變

The “performance” is now a real procedure rather than theatre.

D. Mental preparation

mentally rehearse the conversation

→ 在腦中預演對話

No physical performance is necessary.

E. Memory

rehearse a phone number

→ 反覆默念電話號碼

The repeated sequence is kept active in memory.

F. Formal repetition of information

rehearse familiar arguments

→ 重述熟悉的論點

The sense shifts from “practise by repetition” to simply “repeat/recount.”

The semantic progression is:

repeat before performing → practise before doing → mentally repeat → repeat information or arguments.

GH. PASSAGE RECAP

“The more we rehearsed, the more we realised that words such as ‘respect’, ‘responsibility’ and ‘empathy’ were not empty slogans in a textbook, but choices people make in real situations.”

Here:

rehearse

= to practise a scene or performance repeatedly before presenting it

Best Traditional Chinese:

- 排練
- 反覆演練
- contextually: 反覆排練角色扮演場景

Natural contextual translation:

我們排練得越多，就越明白「尊重」、「責任」和「同理心」這些詞並不是教科書裡空洞的口號，而是人們在真實情境中作出的選擇。

Passage MCQ-ready meaning

rehearse

= to practise a performance, speech, sequence, or planned action before doing it for real

排練；預演；演練

The major learner branches are:

rehearse a scene

→ 排練場景

rehearse one's lines

→ 練習台詞

rehearse a presentation

→ 預演簡報

rehearse an emergency response

→ 演練緊急應變

mentally rehearse a conversation

→ 在腦中預演對話

Psychology adds:

maintenance rehearsal

→ 維持性複誦

elaborative rehearsal

→ 精緻化複誦

A less common but genuinely distinct formal meaning is:

rehearse the familiar arguments

→ 重述那些熟悉的論點

The adjective family is also useful:

well-rehearsed

→ 排練充分的

unrehearsed

→ 未排練的／即興的

a rehearsed answer

→ 事先練好的答案

and that last expression can be mildly negative if the answer sounds artificial or insincere.

The most useful semantic shortcut is:

REHEARSE = go through something before the real occasion—or repeat it deliberately until it is ready for use.

In the passage, rehearsal is more than polishing a performance. Every repetition forces students to test how a character speaks, reacts, hesitates, stays silent, or chooses to intervene. Through that repeated enactment, abstract ideas such as respect and responsibility become concrete decisions—which is exactly why the writer treats drama as learning rather than merely entertainment.
