

I'll keep substitute at the same "whole family + all established constructions + specialist branches + final core merge" standard from the reference example.

Word family: substitute / substitutes / substituted / substituting / substitution / substitutable / substitutability / substitutive / substitutional / substituent / substituted / unsubstituted

Base word: substitute

Past tense: substituted

Past participle: substituted

-ing form: substituting

Major related forms:

- * substitution
- * substitutable
- * substitutability
- * substitutive
- * substitutional
- * substituent — especially chemistry
- * substituted / unsubstituted — especially chemistry

Important compounds/constructions:

- * substitute A for B
- * substitute for
- * substitute X with Y
- * a substitute for
- * no substitute for
- * substitute teacher
- * substitute player
- * sugar substitute
- * meat/milk substitute
- * substitute product
- * substitute goods
- * substitution effect
- * import substitution
- * currency substitution
- * substitution method
- * variable substitution
- * trigonometric substitution
- * substitution cipher
- * substitution reaction
- * nucleophilic/electrophilic substitution
- * base/amino-acid substitution
- * substitution matrix
- * substituted service

* substitution of counsel

Your sentence:

> "...a corner table and a cheap drink are an acceptable substitute for a real classroom."

Meaning in this passage

Here, substitute is a noun meaning:

> something used instead of the normal, proper, or preferred thing

The writer argues that a restaurant table may temporarily perform some functions of a classroom, but it is not an acceptable replacement for a proper teaching space.

繁體中文：

* 替代品

* 代替物

* 替代方案

A natural translation is:

> "...an acceptable substitute for a real classroom."

「.....可以接受的真正課室替代品 / 替代方案。」

The rhetorical implication is:

> restaurant table ≠ proper classroom

It can perhaps replace it temporarily in function, but the writer rejects it as an adequate substitute.

A. NOUN: A THING USED IN PLACE OF ANOTHER

1. substitute = thing used instead of another thing (替代品) **

Practice 1

> "This material can be used as a substitute for wood."

「這種材料可以用作木材的替代品。」

Practice 2

> “There is no simple substitute for experience.”

「經驗沒有簡單的替代品。」

Core idea:

> original/preferred thing is unavailable, unsuitable, expensive, etc. → another thing takes its place.

2. a substitute for X = something replacing X (X 的替代品) **

This is the exact passage construction.

Practice 3

> “Online videos are useful, but they are not always a substitute for direct instruction.”

「網上影片很有用，但並不一定能完全代替直接教學。」

3. use X as a substitute for Y

> “Some students use cafés as a substitute for study rooms.”

「有些學生把咖啡店當作自修室的替代場所。」

4. serve as a substitute for X

> “The temporary room served as a substitute for the damaged classroom.”

「臨時房間充當受損課室的替代場所。」

B. NO SUBSTITUTE FOR

5. there is no substitute for X = nothing adequately replaces X (X 無可取代) **

A very common fixed expression.

Practice 4

> “There is no substitute for careful preparation.”

「充分準備是無可取代的。」

Practice 5

> “There is no substitute for a proper classroom.”

「真正合適的課室是沒有替代品的 / 無可取代的。」

Usually emphasizes:

> alternatives may exist, but none provides the same quality/value.

6. X is no substitute for Y = X is inadequate as a replacement

Practice 6

> “Convenience is no substitute for safety.”

「方便不能代替安全。」

Strong evaluative construction.

C. GOOD / POOR / ADEQUATE SUBSTITUTE

7. good substitute = good replacement (良好替代品) **

> “Yogurt can be a good substitute for cream in some recipes.”

「在某些食譜中，乳酪可以成為忌廉的良好替代品。」

8. poor substitute = inferior replacement (差劣替代品) **

Practice 7

> “A rushed online meeting was a poor substitute for face-to-face discussion.”

「匆忙的網上會議只是面談的一個很差替代方案。」

9. adequate / acceptable substitute = sufficiently good replacement

Your passage uses:

> acceptable substitute

= 可以接受的替代物

The writer says restaurant tables are not one.

10. direct substitute = something performing very similar function

> “The two products are close direct substitutes.”

「兩種產品是非常接近的直接替代品。」

Especially business/economics.

11. functional substitute = thing performing the same function despite being different in form

> “The software acts as a functional substitute for the older hardware.”

「該軟件在功能上可以替代舊硬件。」

D. NOUN: PERSON REPLACING ANOTHER PERSON

12. substitute = person temporarily taking another person's place (替補 / 代替者)

Practice 8

> “A substitute was called in when the regular worker was absent.”

「正式員工缺勤時找來了一名代替人員。」

13. a substitute for someone = replacement person

> “They found a substitute for the absent instructor.”

「他們找來一名代課 / 代替人員。」

E. SUBSTITUTE TEACHER

14. substitute teacher = teacher temporarily replacing another teacher (代課老師) **

Especially common in AmE.

Practice 9

> “A substitute teacher took the class.”

「一名代課老師負責那堂課。」

BrE may also use:

* supply teacher

depending on context.

15. substitute teaching

= temporary teaching in place of absent regular teachers.

F. WORKPLACE REPLACEMENTS

16. substitute worker / replacement worker

A person temporarily or permanently taking another's duties.

Substitute tends to emphasize:

> performing in place of someone else,

while replacement may suggest a more permanent succession.

17. stand-in = informal temporary substitute

Compare:

> substitute teacher

> stand-in presenter

stand-in is more informal and usually temporary.

G. SPORTS

18. substitute = player brought on to replace another player (後備 / 替補球員) **

Practice 10

> “The coach brought on a substitute in the second half.”

「教練下半場換入一名後備球員。」

19. sub = informal sports shortening

> “He came on as a sub.”

「他以後備球員身分入替。」

Very common in sports.

20. substitution = act of replacing one player with another (換人) **

> “The manager made three substitutions.”

「領隊作出了三次換人調動。」

21. make a substitution = 作出換人

22. substitute bench

Informally:

> bench where substitutes sit.

More often simply:

> the bench.

23. substitute goalkeeper/player

A player available to replace the starting player.

24. substitution rules

Rules governing:

* number of replacements;

* timing;

* re-entry,

depending on sport.

H. VERB: SUBSTITUTE A FOR B

25. *substitute A for B = use A instead of B (用 A 代替 B) ****

This is the most important grammar pattern.

Practice 11

> “You can substitute yogurt for cream.”

「你可以用乳酪*代替*忌廉。」

Structure:

> substitute NEW thing for OLD thing

So:

> substitute A for B

> = A replaces B.

This direction is extremely important.

26. substitute one ingredient for another

> “Substitute olive oil for butter.”

「用橄欖油*代替*牛油。」

Again:

> olive oil = new replacement

> butter = thing being replaced.

I. VERB: SUBSTITUTE FOR

27. *substitute for someone/something = act as the replacement (代替) ****

Practice 12

> “She substituted for the regular teacher.”

「她*代替*正式老師上課。」

Practice 13

> “Nothing can fully substitute for practical experience.”

「沒有任何東西可以完全*代替*實際經驗。」

Here substitute for X means:

> take X's place.

J. BE SUBSTITUTED FOR

28. A is substituted for B = A is used instead of B

> “A cheaper material was substituted for steel.”

「較便宜的材料被用來代替鋼材。」

Again:

> A replaces B.

K. SUBSTITUTE X WITH Y

29. substitute X with Y = replace X by Y

Modern usage commonly allows:

> “Substitute butter with olive oil.”

= 「把牛油換成橄欖油。」

Notice the direction differs from:

> substitute olive oil for butter.

So:

Pattern 1

substitute NEW for OLD

Pattern 2

substitute OLD with NEW

This is a major learner trap.

30. replace X with Y

Usually clearer than substitute X with Y.

> replace butter with oil.

Because the direction is immediately obvious.

L. VERB: PERSON

31. substitute for someone = perform their role temporarily

> “I substituted for my colleague while she was away.”

「她不在時我代她工作。」

32. substitute someone for someone else = put one person in another's place

> “The coach substituted a younger player for the injured defender.”

「教練用較年輕球員替換受傷後衛。」

M. FOOD / COOKING

33. substitute ingredient = 替代食材

Practice 14

> “Use this as a substitute ingredient if eggs are unavailable.”

「如果沒有雞蛋，可以使用這種替代食材。」

34. ingredient substitution = 食材替換

Common in recipes for reasons such as:

- * allergy;
- * availability;
- * diet;
- * taste.

35. sugar substitute = 代糖 / 糖替代品

A product used to provide sweetness instead of ordinary sugar.

Can include different classes of sweeteners.

36. salt substitute = 代鹽 / 鹽替代品

A formulation intended to replace some or all ordinary table salt.

Exact composition varies.

37. fat substitute = 脂肪替代物

Food-technology term.

38. egg substitute = 雞蛋替代品

May serve:

- * binding
- * leavening
- * moisture
- * emulsification

depending on product/recipe.

N. MILK / MEAT / FOOD REPLACEMENT

39. milk substitute = 代乳品 / 牛奶替代品

Depending on context:

- * plant-based beverage;
- * infant feeding product;
- * animal-rearing product.

So Chinese translation should follow domain.

40. meat substitute = 肉類替代品

Food designed to perform some culinary/nutritional roles of meat.

41. meal substitute / meal replacement

English usually prefers:

> meal replacement

rather than meal substitute for commercial nutrition products.

O. MEDICINE / BIOMATERIALS

42. blood substitute = blood-replacement product (血液替代物) **

A biomedical term for products intended to perform particular functions normally provided by blood, especially oxygen transport or volume functions depending on product.

It does not generally mean a complete functional replacement for whole blood.

43. bone graft substitute = 骨移植替代材料

A material used instead of or alongside bone grafts for certain procedures.

44. skin substitute = 皮膚替代物 / 替代材料

Biomedical/wound-care term.

May refer to biological or synthetic products intended to support wound closure/healing.

45. substitute decision-maker = 替代決策者

Healthcare/legal terminology in some jurisdictions.

A person authorized to make certain decisions for someone lacking relevant decision-making capacity.

Exact legal status varies by jurisdiction.

P. CHEMISTRY — SUBSTITUTION REACTION

46. substitution reaction = one atom/group replaces another (取代反應)

A major chemistry sense.

Concept

schematically.

One atom/group is substituted for another.

繁體中文： 取代反應

47. nucleophilic substitution = 親核取代反應

A nucleophile replaces another atom/group, usually a leaving group, under the relevant reaction mechanism.

48. SN1 substitution

Unimolecular nucleophilic substitution mechanism under standard organic-chemistry classification.

49. SN2 substitution

Bimolecular nucleophilic substitution mechanism.

50. electrophilic substitution = 親電取代反應

An electrophile replaces an atom/group, especially familiar in aromatic chemistry.

51. electrophilic aromatic substitution = 芳香族親電取代

Important organic-chemistry class.

52. radical substitution = 自由基取代反應

A radical mechanism replaces an atom/group.

Q. SUBSTITUENT

53. substituent = atom/group replacing another atom/group in a molecule (取代基) **

Practice 15

> “The methyl group is a substituent on the ring.”

「甲基是環上的一個取代基。」

This is an independently important chemistry noun.

54. substituted compound = substituted molecule (取代化合物) **

A molecule in which one or more positions bear substituents.

55. substituted benzene = 取代苯

Benzene in which one or more hydrogens have been replaced by another atom/group.

56. monosubstituted / disubstituted / polysubstituted

* monosubstituted = 單取代
* disubstituted = 二取代
* polysubstituted = 多取代

57. unsubstituted = 未取代的

> unsubstituted benzene

= ordinary benzene with no replacement substituent beyond hydrogen pattern.

R. GENETICS / MOLECULAR BIOLOGY

58. base substitution = one nucleotide base replaced by another (鹼基置換) **

A major mutation type.

59. substitution mutation = 置換突變

A mutation in which one nucleotide/base is replaced by another.

60. single-base substitution = 單鹼基置換

61. transition substitution

A purine replaces a purine or pyrimidine replaces a pyrimidine.

62. transversion substitution

A purine and pyrimidine replace one another.

Specialist genetics.

63. amino-acid substitution = 胺基酸置換

A protein has one amino acid replaced by another, usually as a result of a genetic sequence change.

64. conservative substitution = 保守性置換

Replacement by an amino acid with broadly similar properties.

65. non-conservative substitution = 非保守性置換

Replacement by an amino acid with substantially different properties.

66. synonymous substitution

Nucleotide substitution that does not change the encoded amino acid under the relevant coding context.

67. nonsynonymous substitution

A substitution changing the encoded amino acid or otherwise altering protein sequence depending on classification.

S. BIOINFORMATICS

68. substitution matrix = 置換矩陣

A scoring matrix used in sequence alignment to assign scores to possible substitutions.

Examples include:

* BLOSUM

* PAM

69. substitution score = 置換分數

Score given to aligning one residue with another.

T. MATHEMATICS — SUBSTITUTE A VALUE

70. substitute a value into an equation = put that value in place of a variable (代入) **

Practice 16

> “Substitute $x=3$ into the equation.”

「把 $x=3$ 代入方程式。」

This is one of the most important academic senses.

71. substitution = replacing a variable/expression with an equivalent/value (代入 / 代換) **

> “After substitution, the equation becomes...”

「代入後，方程式變成……」

72. direct substitution = 直接代入

Common in:

* algebra

* calculus

* numerical calculation

U. SYSTEMS OF EQUATIONS

73. substitution method = 代入法

A method for solving simultaneous equations:

1. express one variable in terms of another;
2. substitute that expression into another equation.

74. solve by substitution = 用代入法求解

V. CALCULUS

75. u-substitution = u 代換 / 換元積分法

A method for transforming an integral by introducing a new variable.

Example conceptually:

> let $(u=g(x))$

and rewrite the integral.

76. change of variables / substitution

In calculus:

> substitution

is a type of change of variables.

77. trigonometric substitution = 三角代換

Use trigonometric functions to simplify particular integrals involving expressions such as square roots of quadratic forms.

78. Weierstrass substitution / tangent half-angle substitution

Specialist calculus technique.

W. ALGEBRA / LOGIC

79. *substitution rule = rule allowing replacement of variables/expressions (代換規則) ****

Used in:

- * algebra
- * logic
- * formal systems

Exact meaning varies by discipline.

80. substitute equals for equals = 等量代換

If two expressions are equal, one may be replaced by the other in appropriate contexts.

81. uniform substitution = 一致代換

Formal logic/modal logic terminology in some systems.

X. LOGIC / FORMAL LANGUAGES

82. *substitution = mapping variables to terms/formulas (代換) ****

A formal operation replacing variables with:

- * terms
- * formulas

subject to the rules of the formal language.

83. substitution instance = 代換實例

Formula obtained by systematically substituting expressions for variables.

84. capture-avoiding substitution — lambda calculus/computer science

When replacing variables inside expressions, substitutions may need to avoid accidental variable capture.

Highly specialist.

Y. COMPUTER SCIENCE / PROGRAMMING

85. string substitution = 字串替換

Replacing one substring/token with another.

86. variable substitution = 變數代換 / 替換

A variable placeholder is replaced with its value.

Related to the expansion family you just curated, though terminology depends on system.

87. command substitution = 命令替換

In shell programming, the output of a command is substituted into another command/expression.

88. text substitution = 文字替換

89. macro substitution = 巨集替換

A macro name is replaced with its definition/generated text under preprocessing rules.

Z. CRYPTOGRAPHY

90. substitution cipher = 替換式密碼 / 代換密碼

A cipher where units of plaintext are systematically replaced with other symbols/units.

91. simple substitution cipher = 單表替換密碼

Each plaintext symbol is replaced according to a fixed mapping.

92. monoalphabetic substitution = 單字母替換

93. polyalphabetic substitution = 多表替換

Different substitution alphabets/mappings are used under the cipher scheme.

AA. LINGUISTICS / GRAMMAR

94. *substitution = one linguistic item replaces another (替代) ****

In grammar/discourse, a word or form may replace an earlier linguistic unit to avoid repetition.

95. substitution — cohesion

In systemic-functional/discourse analysis, substitution can be treated as a cohesive device.

Example:

> “I need a pen. Do you have one?”

one substitutes for:

> a pen.

96. nominal substitution = 名詞替代

Example:

> “I prefer the red one.”

one substitutes for a noun phrase/head.

97. verbal substitution = 動詞替代

Forms such as:

> do / do so

can substitute for a previously mentioned verb phrase in certain grammatical analyses.

98. clausal substitution = 子句替代

Forms such as:

> so / not

may substitute for a clause in some grammatical frameworks:

> “Will it rain?”

> “I think so.”

AB. LANGUAGE TEACHING

99. substitution drill = 替換操練

A traditional language-teaching exercise.

Students repeat a sentence pattern while substituting specified:

* words

* phrases

* grammatical elements.

Example:

> I like tea.

> coffee → I like coffee.

AC. ECONOMICS — SUBSTITUTE GOODS

100. substitute goods = goods satisfying similar needs so demand shifts between them (替代 品) **

Practice 17

> “Tea and coffee may act as substitute goods for some consumers.”

「對某些消費者來說，茶和咖啡可以是替代商品。」

If the price of one rises, demand for the other may increase, all else equal, under standard economic analysis.

101. substitutes = competing alternative goods/services

Economists may simply say:

> “The two products are substitutes.”

= 兩種產品是替代品。

102. close substitutes = 高度相近的替代品

103. perfect substitutes = 完全替代品

In microeconomic models, goods a consumer is willing to substitute at a constant rate under the specified preferences.

This is an idealized model concept.

104. imperfect substitutes = 不完全替代品

Goods can replace one another only to some degree.

AD. CROSS-PRICE RELATIONSHIP

105. substitute relationship

In basic consumer theory, substitute goods tend to have positive cross-price responsiveness under standard definitions.

This is an economic property, not a new lexical meaning.

AE. SUBSTITUTION EFFECT

106. substitution effect = 替代效應

In consumer economics, when relative prices change, consumers alter consumption toward relatively cheaper goods while conceptually separating this response from the income/purchasing-power effect under a specified decomposition.

A major economics term.

107. income effect vs substitution effect

substitution effect

response to changed relative prices.

income effect

response associated with changed real purchasing power.

Exact decomposition depends on economic framework.

AF. PRODUCTION ECONOMICS

108. factor substitution = 生產要素替代

Firms may substitute between production inputs such as:

- * labour
- * capital
- * energy

depending on technology/costs.

109. capital-labour substitution = 資本—勞動替代

Use more machinery/capital and less labour, or vice versa.

110. elasticity of substitution = 替代彈性

Measure describing how readily one input/good is substituted for another in a specified economic model.

AG. IMPORT SUBSTITUTION

111. import substitution = 進口替代

Economic-development/industrial-policy strategy aimed at replacing imported goods with domestic production.

112. import-substitution industrialization (ISI) = 進口替代工業化

A historically important development-economics strategy.

This is an economic-policy term; its historical effects depend on country/time period.

AH. CURRENCY SUBSTITUTION

113. currency substitution = 貨幣替代

Use of a foreign currency instead of, or alongside, domestic currency for functions such as:

- * transactions

- * savings

- * pricing

depending on context.

114. dollarization as a form of currency substitution

In some contexts, substantial use/adoption of the U.S. dollar or another foreign currency is described through currency-substitution/dollarization terminology.

Not all forms are identical.

AI. FINANCE — ASSET SUBSTITUTION

115. asset substitution = 資產替代

A corporate-finance/agency-theory concept in which incentives may lead equity holders/managers to replace lower-risk assets/projects with higher-risk ones, affecting creditors.

Highly specialist.

AJ. LAW — SUBSTITUTION OF PARTIES

116. substitution of parties = replacing one party in legal proceedings (當事人替換) **

May occur because of circumstances such as:

- * death

- * transfer of interest

- * change in capacity

depending on procedural law.

Exact rules are jurisdiction-specific.

117. substitute party = replacement party

A party replacing another in proceedings.

AK. LAW — SUBSTITUTION OF COUNSEL

118. substitution of counsel = replacement of one lawyer by another (更換律師) **

A formal procedural term.

119. substitution of attorney

Common variant, especially in U.S. legal usage.

AL. LAW — SUBSTITUTED SERVICE

120. *substituted service = alternative legally authorized method of serving documents (替代送達) ****

When ordinary/personal service cannot be achieved under applicable rules, a court or legal system may permit a different method.

Possible methods vary by jurisdiction.

繁體中文：  替代送達

121. substituted service ≠ substitute service

The established legal phrase is generally:

> substituted service

not simply substitute service.

AM. LEGAL / HEALTHCARE DECISION MAKING

122. *substituted judgment = substituted-judgment standard (替代判斷) ****

A legal/ethical decision-making standard in some jurisdictions/settings.

Broadly asks:

> what decision would this person have made if capable,
rather than simply what another person personally prefers.

Exact doctrine varies by jurisdiction.

123. substitute decision-maker

As above:

> legally or institutionally authorized replacement decision-maker.

AN. PHARMACY / MEDICINE — DRUG SUBSTITUTION

124. generic substitution = 以學名藥替代品牌藥

Dispensing an approved generic equivalent in place of a brand product where permitted/appropriate.

Exact substitution laws/regulations vary.

125. therapeutic substitution = 治療性替代

Replacing a medicine with a different drug expected to achieve a similar therapeutic objective.

This is distinct from generic substitution.

126. drug substitution

Broad umbrella phrase.

127. substitution therapy / replacement therapy

Specific medical contexts may use either phrase.

For many established therapies, replacement therapy is more common, e.g.:

> hormone replacement therapy.

So do not automatically create substitution therapy as a synonym everywhere.

AO. ADDICTION MEDICINE

128. opioid substitution therapy / treatment

An established term in some healthcare systems for treatment using prescribed opioid medicines to replace illicit/problematic opioid use under medical management.

Other terminology such as:

> opioid agonist treatment

is also common.

Specialist medical use.

AP. THEOLOGY — SUBSTITUTIONARY

129. substitutionary = involving substitution (代替性的) **

A relatively specialist derivative.

Most familiar in Christian theology:

> substitutionary atonement

theories in which Christ's atoning role is understood in some sense as acting/suffering in place of others.

繁體中文: 代贖性的 / 替代性贖罪論 depending on theological tradition.

This is a genuine family extension but low priority for general learners.

AQ. LOGIC OF SUBSTITUTE VS REPLACE

130. substitute and replace overlap but focus differently

replace X with Y

focuses on X being removed and Y taking its place.

substitute Y for X

focuses on Y being used instead of X.

Compare:

> Replace butter with oil.

> Substitute oil for butter.

Same practical result, reversed grammar.

AR. IMPORTANT DISTINCTIONS

substitute vs replacement

replacement

thing/person that takes the place of another.

substitute

thing/person specifically used instead of another, often temporarily or functionally.

A new permanent employee may be a replacement.

A teacher covering one day is a substitute.

But overlap is extensive.

substitute vs alternative

alternative

another possible choice.

substitute

something actually capable of taking the place/function of the original.

Example:

> walking is an alternative to driving.

It is not necessarily a direct substitute in every journey.

substitute vs option

option

one of several choices.

substitute

replacement for a specific thing.

substitute vs equivalent

equivalent

equal/similar in value, function, effect, etc.

substitute

used in place of another.

A substitute does not have to be fully equivalent.

This is very relevant to your passage:

> restaurant table can function as a substitute

> without being equivalent to a classroom.

substitute vs surrogate

surrogate

one thing/person serving in place of another, often in a more specialized representational/biological sense.

Examples:

- * surrogate marker
- * surrogate parent
- * surrogate endpoint

substitute

broader everyday term.

substitute vs proxy

proxy

person/value authorized or used to represent another.

substitute

actually takes its place/function.

- > proxy measure
- > substitute product

substitute vs stand-in stand-in

temporary person replacing another, especially informal/media/work.

substitute

broader and more formal.

substitute vs understudy

understudy

performer specifically prepared to replace an actor if necessary.

substitute

any replacement person.

substitute vs deputy

deputy

person formally authorized to act for a superior.

substitute

replacement role, often temporary, without necessarily holding continuing delegated authority.

substitute vs reserve — sports

reserve

player kept available.

substitute

player available for or actually used in replacement.

Depending on sport, terminology differs.

substitute vs exchange

exchange

two-way giving/swapping.

substitute

one item replaces another in a role.

substitute vs switch

switch

change from one thing/person to another.

substitute

specifies replacement relation.

substitute vs compensate for

substitute for

take the place of.

compensate for

offset a weakness/loss without necessarily replacing it.

Extra lighting may compensate for poor natural light but does not literally substitute for a window in every function.

substitute vs supplement

Critical distinction.

substitute

replaces.

supplement

adds to.

> supplements should not be confused with substitutes.

A second resource can supplement a classroom without replacing it.

substitute vs complement

substitute

one can take the other's place.

complement

two things work better together.

This distinction is especially important in economics.

AS. ECONOMICS: SUBSTITUTE VS COMPLEMENT

substitutes

consumers may switch between them.

complements

they are often used together.

Classic abstract examples:

- > tea and coffee — possible substitutes
- > printers and ink — complements

The relationship depends on actual consumer behavior/context.

AT. SUBSTITUTABLE

131. substitutable = capable of being replaced by another thing (可替代的)

Practice 18

> “The two materials are not fully substitutable.”

「兩種材料並不能完全互相替代。」

132. mutually substitutable = 可互相替代的

133. easily / highly substitutable

Used especially in:

- * economics
- * engineering
- * materials
- * production

AU. SUBSTITUTABILITY

134. *substitutability = degree to which one thing can replace another (可替代性) ****

> “The study examines the substitutability of labour and capital.”

「研究探討勞動與資本之間的*可替代性*。」

Common especially in economics.

135. low/high substitutability

= 替代性低 / 高.

AV. SUBSTITUTIVE

136. *substitutive = functioning by substitution / having replacement function (替代性的) ****

A valid but specialist adjective.

Used in fields such as:

- * linguistics
- * logic
- * philosophy

Example:

> substitutive expression/function.

Priority: low-to-medium technical.

137. substitutive use — linguistics/logic

Can describe an expression operating as a substitute for another element under a particular analysis.

AW. SUBSTITUTIONAL

138. *substitutional = relating to substitution (代換的 ; 替代的) ****

Technical adjective.

Examples:

* substitutional analysis

* substitutional position

* substitutional impurity

AX. MATERIALS SCIENCE

139. *substitutional impurity = substitutional atom replacing host atom (置換型雜質) ****

In crystals, an impurity atom occupies a lattice site normally occupied by a host atom.

繁體中文 :  置換型雜質

140. substitutional solid solution = 置換型固溶體

Atoms of one element substitute for atoms of another in lattice sites.

141. interstitial vs substitutional

substitutional

foreign atom replaces host atom at lattice site.

interstitial

foreign atom occupies space between normal lattice sites.

Important materials-science distinction.

AY. HIGH-VALUE COLLOCATIONS

Noun

- * substitute for
- * acceptable substitute
- * poor substitute
- * direct substitute
- * temporary substitute
- * sugar substitute
- * substitute teacher
- * substitute player

- * substitute for X
- * substitute X with Y
- * be substituted for
- * substitute one ingredient for another

Noun substitution

- * make a substitution
- * substitution effect
- * substitution method
- * substitution reaction
- * base substitution
- * substitution cipher

AZ. GRAMMAR — CRITICAL DIRECTIONAL PATTERNS

142. substitute A for B

> A replaces B.

Example:

> substitute water for milk

= 用水代替牛奶.

143. substitute B with A

> B is replaced by A.

Example:

For your original sentence

> “...a corner table and a cheap drink are an acceptable substitute for a real classroom.”

The exact meaning is:

*substitute = 一個被拿來代替真正課室、試圖履行課室某些功能的替代場所***

The sentence is deliberately evaluative:

> a restaurant table may function as a substitute,

> but the writer says it is not an acceptable substitute.

That distinction matters:

substitute

does not mean the replacement is equally good.

It only means:

> it is being used in place of the original thing.

So:

> cheap café table = possible substitute

> proper classroom = original/preferred facility

> equivalence? No assumption of equivalence.

For your core database, I would keep 6 major base branches:

1. noun: thing used in place of another thing
2. noun: person temporarily replacing another person
3. verb: use A instead of B / act in another's place
4. sports: substitute player and substitution
5. academic/technical replacement or variable substitution
6. science: chemical/genetic substitution

Then separately index the strongly lexicalized specialist branches substitute goods / substitution effect, substitution cipher, substituted service, generic substitution, substituent, substitution matrix, substitutional materials terminology, because those meanings are too established to hide under a generic 「代替」 entry.
