

Word family: surrender / surrenders / surrendered / surrendering

Base word: surrender

Past tense: surrendered

Past participle: surrendered

 -ing form: surrendering

Major related forms / lexicalized extensions:

* surrender — noun

* surrendered — participial adjective

* surrendering — process/action

* surrender value

* cash surrender value

* surrender charge

* surrender of a lease

* unconditional surrender

* terms of surrender

* instrument of surrender

* surrendered bill of lading

Part of speech: verb (動詞) / noun (名詞)

Your passage:

> “Accept the promotion for now, but treat it not as a surrender of your dream, but as a strategic bridge towards it.”

Meaning in this passage

Here, surrender means giving up, abandoning, or admitting defeat regarding an important hope or ambition.

Kam Chai might fear that accepting the promotion means:

> “I have given up on my café dream.”

The writer says it does not.

繁體中文：

* 放棄

* 屈服

* 認輸

* in this exact sentence: 放棄自己的夢想

A natural translation is:

> “not as a surrender of your dream”

「不要把它看成是放棄自己的夢想」 or:

「不要把接受升職視為向現實屈服、放棄夢想。」

The key metaphor is military:

> an army surrenders when it stops fighting

> → figuratively, a person surrenders a dream when they stop trying to achieve it.

A. MILITARY: STOP FIGHTING AND ACCEPT DEFEAT

1. surrender = stop resisting an enemy and accept defeat (投降) **

This is the central literal sense.

> “The army was forced to surrender.”

「軍隊被迫投降。」

> “The soldiers surrendered after several days.”

「士兵在數日後投降。」

Core concept:

> resistance ends → control is yielded to the opposing side.

2. surrender to someone/an enemy = 向.....投降

> “The troops surrendered to the opposing forces.”

「部隊向對方投降。」

Pattern:

> surrender to + person/group

3. surrender oneself to the enemy = 向敵方投降

More formal/reflexive:

> “The commander surrendered himself to the enemy.”

「指揮官向敵方投降 / 交出自己。」

4. surrender unconditionally = 無條件投降

> “The army surrendered unconditionally.”

「軍隊無條件投降。」

5. unconditional surrender = 無條件投降

A surrender in which the defeated side does not negotiate conditions governing the capitulation itself.

6. conditional surrender = 有條件投降

A surrender made under agreed terms or conditions.

7. terms of surrender = 投降條件

> “The two sides discussed the terms of surrender.”

「雙方商討投降條件。」

8. accept someone's surrender = 接受對方投降

> “The commander accepted their surrender.”

「指揮官接受了他們的投降。」

9. offer one's surrender = 表示願意投降

More formal/historical.

10. demand surrender = 要求投降

> “The attackers demanded the city's surrender.”

「進攻方要求城市投降。」

11. refuse to surrender = 拒絕投降

> “They refused to surrender.”

「他們拒絕投降。」

12. never surrender = 永不投降

A motivational/military-style phrase meaning:

> continue resisting despite adversity.

It is also frequently used figuratively in ordinary life.

B. NOUN: THE ACT OF SURRENDERING

13. surrender = act of admitting defeat (投降) **

> “The surrender ended the battle.”

「這次投降結束了戰鬥。」

Countable or uncountable depending on construction:

> the surrender
> unconditional surrender.

14. formal surrender = 正式投降

15. surrender ceremony = 投降儀式

A formal event marking surrender.

16. instrument of surrender = 投降文書

A formal written document recording surrender terms/status.

Historical/military/legal use.

C. SURRENDER A POSITION / FORTRESS / TERRITORY

17. surrender a place = give control of it to another party (交出 ; 放棄控制) **

> “The defenders surrendered the fortress.”

「守軍交出了堡壘。」

This is transitive:

> surrender + object.

18. surrender territory = 交出領土 / 控制區

> “The losing side surrendered the territory.”

「敗方交出了該地區的控制權。」

19. surrender control = 交出控制權

This bridges literal and figurative uses.

> “He refused to surrender control of the company.”

「他拒絕交出公司的控制權。」

20. surrender power / authority = 交出權力 / 權限

> “The committee was unwilling to surrender its authority.”

「委員會不願放棄 / 交出權力。」

D. POLICE / CRIMINAL JUSTICE: GIVE ONESELF UP

21. surrender to police / authorities = 向警方 / 當局投案

> “The suspect later surrendered to police.”

「疑犯後來向警方投案。」

This means:

> stop avoiding arrest and give oneself into official custody.

22. surrender oneself to the authorities = 向當局自首 / 投案

Formal:

> “He surrendered himself to the authorities.”

「他向當局投案。」

23. voluntary surrender = 自願投案 / 自願交出

Meaning depends on context:

* person gives themselves up;

* property/document is voluntarily handed over.

24. surrender to custody = 交付 / 返回羈押

Legal phrase in some jurisdictions.

Often means:

> place oneself under the lawful control of the relevant authorities.

E. EXTRADITION / TRANSFER OF PERSONS

25. surrender = formally hand a wanted person to another jurisdiction (移交) **

In some cross-border criminal-law systems, surrender is a technical term for transferring a person pursuant to a warrant or comparable legal process.

It may be distinguished technically from extradition under the relevant legal framework.

繁體中文：

* 移交

* 引渡式移交

Specialist legal use.

F. SURRENDER WEAPONS / PROPERTY

26. surrender something = hand it over because required or defeated (交出) **

> “The soldiers surrendered their weapons.”

「士兵交出武器。」

27. surrender one's weapon / arms = 交出武器

Common:

- * surrender weapons
- * surrender arms
- * surrender firearms

The word emphasizes:

> possession/control is given up.

28. surrender property = 交出財物

Formal.

> “The property had to be surrendered.”

「該財物必須交出。」

G. SURRENDER A DOCUMENT / LICENCE / PASSPORT

29. surrender a passport = 交出護照

> “He was required to surrender his passport.”

「他被要求交出護照。」

Common legal/administrative use.

30. surrender a licence/license = 交回牌照

> “The driver voluntarily surrendered his licence.”

「司機自願交回牌照。」

This can mean:

> formally give up one's entitlement rather than wait for it to be revoked.

31. surrender a certificate/permit = 交回證書 / 許可證

Administrative/regulatory use.

H. SURRENDER A RIGHT / CLAIM / PRIVILEGE

32. surrender a right = voluntarily give up a right (放棄權利) **

> “The agreement does not require employees to surrender their rights.”

「協議並不要求員工放棄權利。」

33. surrender a claim = 放棄主張 / 申索

Formal/legal:

> relinquish one's claim.

34. surrender a privilege = 放棄特權

35. surrender ownership = 放棄所有權

Context-sensitive legal/property use.

36. surrender possession = 交回 / 放棄管有

Formal property-law wording.

I. FIGURATIVE: GIVE UP SOMETHING IMPORTANT

37. surrender something = give it up rather than continue defending/pursuing it (放棄) **

This is the exact passage family.

> “Do not surrender your dream.”

「不要放棄你的夢想。」

38. surrender one's dream = 放棄夢想

Your sentence uses the noun:

> a surrender of your dream

= 放棄夢想這件事

39. surrender hope = 放棄希望

> “She refused to surrender hope.”

「她拒絕放棄希望。」

Literary/formal.

More common everyday wording:

> give up hope.

40. surrender one's principles = 放棄原則

> “He would not surrender his principles for money.”

「他不會為了金錢而放棄原則。」

Often implies morally compromising oneself.

41. surrender one's independence = 放棄自主 / 獨立

Directly related to your passage's freedom theme.

42. surrender one's identity = 放棄 / 失去自我

Figurative:

> “She did not want to surrender her identity to the job.”

「她不想因工作而失去自己的身分 / 自我。」

43. surrender freedom = 放棄自由

> “People may surrender some freedom in exchange for convenience.”

「人們可能為了方便而放棄部分自由。」

J. GIVE UP CONTROL TO SOMETHING

44. surrender control = stop controlling and let someone/something else determine events

> “He surrendered control of the project.”

「他交出了項目的控制權。」

45. surrender oneself to something = stop resisting an experience, emotion, influence, etc.

A major figurative construction.

> “She surrendered herself to the music.”

「她完全沉浸於音樂之中 / 不再抗拒感受。」

The metaphor is:

> stop resisting → allow the experience to take over.

K. SURRENDER TO

46. surrender to + force/person = yield to it (屈服於)

> “He refused to surrender to pressure.”

「他拒絕屈服於壓力。」

47. surrender to temptation = 屈服於誘惑

> “She finally surrendered to temptation and bought the cake.”

「她最後還是抵受不住誘惑買了蛋糕。」

Here no literal defeat or capture occurs.

48. surrender to fear = 屈服於恐懼

> “Do not surrender to fear.”

「不要向恐懼屈服。」

49. surrender to despair = 陷入 / 屈服於絕望

> “He refused to surrender to despair.”

「他拒絕向絕望屈服。」

50. surrender to pressure = 向壓力屈服

> “The company eventually surrendered to public pressure.”

「公司最終屈服於外界壓力。」

51. surrender to demands = 屈從要求

> “Management refused to surrender to the demands.”

「管理層拒絕向那些要求屈服。」

L. SURRENDER TO SLEEP

52. surrender to sleep = stop resisting sleep and fall asleep (沉入睡眠) **

Literary:

> “Eventually he surrendered to sleep.”

「最後他終於抵抗不住睡意，沉沉睡去。」

More literary than:

> fall asleep.

M. SURRENDER TO LOVE / DESIRE / EMOTION

53. surrender to love/desire/passion = stop resisting an emotion (任由情感支配) **

Literary/romantic:

> “She surrendered to her feelings.”

「她不再抗拒，任由自己的感情主導。」

54. surrender oneself to pleasure / the moment

> “He surrendered himself to the moment.”

「他完全投入當下，不再克制。」

Literary.

N. SURRENDER TO FATE

55. surrender to fate = stop resisting what one believes is inevitable (向命運屈服) **

> “He surrendered to fate.”

「他向命運低頭 / 認命。」

Close to:

> resign oneself to fate.

But the emotional imagery differs; see distinctions below.

O. SURRENDER VS RESIGN ONESELF

This is particularly relevant because your previous target was resign.

resign oneself to X

= reluctantly accept X as unavoidable.

surrender to X

= stop resisting X and let it prevail/control you.

Compare:

> “She resigned herself to the delay.”

「她無奈接受延誤。」 versus:

> “She surrendered to despair.”

「她向絕望屈服。」

Surrender is more vivid, active, and defeat-like.

P. TOTAL / COMPLETE SURRENDER

56. complete surrender = 完全屈服 / 徹底放棄抵抗

Can be:

* literal military;

* emotional;

* figurative.

57. total surrender = 完全投降 / 全然屈服

58. abject surrender = 卑屈 / 徹底的投降

Formal/literary and negative.

Q. SURRENDER WITHOUT A FIGHT

59. surrender without a fight = 不戰而降

Literal or figurative.

> “He wasn't going to surrender without a fight.”

「他不會*不作抗爭就放棄*。」

Very productive figuratively.

R. NO SURRENDER

60. *no surrender = refusal to yield (絕不投降) ****

A general phrase/slogan expressing determined resistance.

Because it can occur in particular historical or political contexts, its exact connotations depend on where it appears.

S. WHITE FLAG / SURRENDER

A useful distinction:

A white flag conventionally signals a wish to communicate, negotiate, or cease hostilities; it should not automatically be treated as identical in every context to a completed unconditional surrender.

In everyday metaphor, however:

> “wave the white flag”

often means:

> concede / give up.

T. WAVE / RAISE THE WHITE FLAG

61. wave the white flag = admit defeat (認輸 / 投降) **

Figurative idiom:

> “After hours of trying, I finally waved the white flag.”

「試了幾個小時後，我終於認輸了。」

U. INSURANCE: SURRENDER A POLICY

Now a completely distinct specialist branch.

62. surrender an insurance policy = terminate it before its intended maturity and receive any applicable surrender value

Especially:

* permanent life insurance;

* some annuity contracts.

繁體中文：

* 退保

* 解約

> “The policyholder decided to surrender the policy.”

「保單持有人決定退保。」

63. policy surrender = 退保

The act of terminating/surrendering the insurance contract.

64. full surrender = 全部退保

Terminate the whole applicable contract.

65. partial surrender = 部分提取 / 部分退保

Some insurance/annuity products may permit partial withdrawals/surrenders while the remaining contract continues, depending on product terms.

V. SURRENDER VALUE

66. *surrender value = amount payable when an eligible insurance policy is surrendered (退保價值) ****

Especially life insurance.

> “Check the surrender value before cancelling the policy.”

「退保前先查看保單的*退保價值*。」

67. cash surrender value = 現金退保價值

A major insurance term.

Broadly, it is the cash amount available under an eligible policy if it is surrendered, subject to the policy terms and applicable deductions such as policy indebtedness. ([NAIC][1])

Important:

> cash surrender value ≠ death benefit / face amount

They are separate policy values.

W. SURRENDER CHARGE

68. surrender charge = fee/charge imposed for early surrender or withdrawal (退保費 / 解約費) **

Common in some:

- * life insurance products;
- * annuities;
- * investment-linked arrangements.

The charge may decline over time depending on contract terms.

69. surrender period = period during which surrender charges apply

Insurance/annuity terminology.

X. PROPERTY LAW: SURRENDER A LEASE

70. surrender a lease = tenant gives the leasehold interest back to the immediate landlord (交還租約 / 終止租賃權益) **

This is a major property-law term.

Under UK land/property terminology, a lease is surrendered when the tenant disposes of it to the holder of the immediately superior interest; the lease normally merges into that superior interest and ends. ([GOV.UK][2])

繁體中文： **

* 交還租約

* 放棄租賃權益

* 協議終止租約

depending on legal context.

71. surrender of a lease = 租約交還 / 租約終止

> “The landlord agreed to the surrender of the lease.”

「業主同意接受租客交還租約 / 終止租約。」

72. deed of surrender = 租約交還契據

In some property systems, surrender is formally documented through a deed of surrender. UK land-registration guidance recognizes surrender by deed and also surrender by operation of law. ([GOV.UK][3])

73. surrender by operation of law = 依法因雙方行為推定租約已交還

A specialist property concept where the conduct of landlord and tenant is inconsistent with continuation of the existing lease and legally operates as surrender, even without a deed in the relevant circumstances. ([GOV.UK][3])

74. surrender and regrant = 交還舊租約並重新批出租約

A property transaction in which an existing lease is surrendered and a new lease granted.

UK tax guidance explicitly treats certain lease extensions outside original terms as involving surrender of the old lease and grant of a new one. ([GOV.UK][4])

75. premium/payment for surrender of lease

A landlord or tenant may in some circumstances pay consideration to procure a lease surrender. ([GOV.UK][5])

Very specialist.

Y. TENANCY

76. surrender a tenancy = bring a tenancy to an end by yielding it back to landlord

Closely related to lease surrender.

> “The tenant agreed to surrender the tenancy.”

「租戶同意交還租賃權 / 終止租約。」

Legal mechanics vary by jurisdiction.

Z. CORPORATE LAW: SURRENDER OF SHARES

77. surrender shares = give shares back to the company under applicable company-law rules

A specialist corporate-law meaning.

Some company statutes expressly provide for shares to be surrendered back to the company under specified conditions. ([法律網站][6])

繁體中文：  交回股份 / 股份交還

This is not the same as simply selling shares to another investor.

AA. SHIPPING: SURRENDER A BILL OF LADING

78. surrender a bill of lading = return the original bill to the carrier/agent so cargo can be released without presentation of the original at destination

A major logistics/trade term.

In a surrendered bill of lading arrangement, the shipper surrenders the original bill to the carrier or agent at origin, allowing release at destination without the consignee presenting that physical original. ([Freight Academy][7])

79. surrendered bill of lading = 已交回正本提單 / 電放相關提單

Shipping terminology.

Often associated in practice with electronic release instructions.

80. *surrender B/L ****

Industry shorthand:

> surrender bill of lading / surrendered B/L.

81. surrendered B/L vs original B/L

original bill of lading physical original traditionally presented to obtain release.

surrendered B/L

original has been returned at origin, permitting release without physical original presentation at destination under the carrier's instructions. ([貿易金融訓練][8])

AB. BLACKJACK

82. surrender = give up a blackjack hand early and forfeit only part of the wager

A genuine gambling-game sense.

Under common blackjack surrender rules, the player may give up the hand and lose half the wager rather than play the hand to completion; rules distinguish late surrender and, more rarely, early surrender. ([Wizard Of Odds][9])

繁體中文：  投降 / 棄牌退半注 depending on casino terminology.

83. late surrender = 晚投降

Under this rule, surrender is available after the dealer's blackjack check where applicable. ([Wizard Of Odds][9])

84. early surrender = 早投降

A less common rule allowing surrender before the dealer's blackjack check in relevant games. ([Wizard Of Odds][9])

AC. GAMES MORE GENERALLY

85. surrender = concede defeat in a game

> “The player surrendered.”

「玩家投降 / 認輸。」

Depending on game, more conventional verbs may be:

* resign — chess

* concede

* forfeit

* tap out

But many strategy/video games use Surrender as a UI command.

86. surrender vote = 投降投票

In team-based online games, a team may vote to end the match early by conceding.

This is a modern gaming extension.

AD. RELIGIOUS / SPIRITUAL USE

87. surrender to God / divine will = submit one's will to a higher spiritual authority

Religious/spiritual use:

> “She spoke about surrendering to God.”

「她談到把自己的意志交託 / 順服於上帝。」

Translation depends strongly on religious tradition:

* 順服

* 交託

* 全然降服 may all occur.

88. spiritual surrender = 靈性上的降服 / 放下自我控制

In some religious/self-development discourse:

> stop insisting on personal control and accept/submit to a higher order, reality, or process.

This is not necessarily the same as defeat.

AE. THERAPEUTIC / SELF-HELP USE

89. surrender = stop trying to control everything (放下控制)

Modern self-help/therapeutic language may say:

> “Learn to surrender what you cannot control.”

「學會放下那些你無法控制的事情。」

Here surrender can be presented positively as:

> releasing futile resistance.

This differs sharply in emotional tone from:

> surrender to an enemy.

AF. SURRENDER YOURSELF TO AN EXPERIENCE

90. surrender oneself to art/music/nature = allow complete immersion (全然投入)

> “She surrendered herself to the music.”

「她完全沉浸於音樂。」

Literary.

AG. SURRENDER TO THE MOMENT

91. surrender to the moment = stop over-controlling and fully experience the present

> 「放下控制，完全投入當下」

Often literary/self-help language.

AH. SWEET SURRENDER

92. sweet surrender = pleasurable act/state of giving in Poetic/romantic expression.

May refer to:

- * love;
- * pleasure;
- * sleep;
- * emotion.

Not a technical sense.

AI. SURRENDERED AS ADJECTIVAL PARTICIPLE

93. surrendered weapon/property/document = something handed over

> “The surrendered weapons were collected.”

「已交出的武器被集中收走。」

94. surrendered territory = 已交出的領土 / 控制區

95. surrendered policy = 已退保的保單

Insurance.

96. surrendered bill of lading

Shipping, covered above.

AJ. FIXED EXPRESSIONS

97. surrender oneself to X

> fully yield to X.

98. surrender X to Y

> “Surrender the documents to the authorities.”

「把文件交給當局。」

Here:

* X = thing being relinquished

* Y = recipient.

99. surrender to X

> surrender to police

> surrender to pressure

> surrender to sleep.

The object after to can be:

* person;

* force;

* emotion;

* state.

100. surrender without conditions

= 無條件投降 / 放棄抵抗.

101. surrender without a fight

= 不戰而降 / 不作抗爭便放棄.

102. never surrender

= 絕不屈服.

103. refuse to surrender

= 拒絕投降 / 放棄.

AK. IMPORTANT DISTINCTIONS

surrender vs give up give up broad everyday expression.

surrender

stronger, more formal/dramatic; invokes yielding after resistance.

Compare:

> give up a dream

> surrender a dream.

The second sounds much more dramatic:

> defeat has forced you to abandon it.

That is why it works well in your passage.

surrender vs abandon abandon leave something behind/stop pursuing it.

surrender

yield it after pressure, resistance, or conflict.

- > abandon a plan
- > surrender control.

surrender vs resign

Very important because of your previous word.

resign a job

formally leave one's position.

surrender a dream

give it up as if defeated.

resign oneself to X

reluctantly accept X as inevitable.

surrender to X

stop resisting and yield to X.

So in your sentence:

- > “do not resign immediately, but don't treat the promotion as a surrender of your dream” the author intentionally uses two very different semantic families.

surrender vs submit submit accept another person's authority/control or present something formally.

surrender

yield because resistance is ended.

> submit an application ≠ surrender an application.

When describing people:

> submit to authority

> surrender to an enemy

can overlap, but surrender sounds more like defeat/relinquishment.

surrender vs yield yield

give way under pressure; broader and often less final.

surrender

usually more complete/direct cessation of resistance.

> yield ground

> surrender completely.

surrender vs capitulate

capitulate

formally/figuratively cease resistance, often after prolonged pressure.

surrender

more general.

Capitulate is more formal.

surrender vs concede

concede

admit that an argument, point, contest, or opponent is correct/winning.

surrender

give up the struggle/control itself.

One can concede a point without surrendering an entire argument.

surrender vs forfeit

forfeit

lose/give up something as a penalty or consequence.

surrender

deliberately yield it.

> forfeit a deposit

> surrender a passport.

In blackjack, surrender involves intentionally giving up the hand and forfeiting part of the bet.

surrender vs relinquish

relinquish

formal neutral word for voluntarily giving up:

* possession;

* right;

* control.

surrender

often carries stronger pressure/defeat imagery.

> relinquish ownership

> surrender control.

surrender vs waive waive voluntarily give up a legal right/requirement.

surrender

broader relinquishment.

> waive a right is often more precise legal English than:

> surrender a right.

surrender vs cede

cede

formally transfer territory, rights, or control to another entity.

surrender

give up control, often because of pressure/defeat.

> cede territory by treaty > surrender territory after defeat.

surrender vs transfer transfer neutral movement of ownership/control from A to B.

surrender

emphasizes giving up the transferor's interest/control.

surrender vs hand over hand over ordinary phrase for physically or officially giving something to someone.

surrender

adds relinquishment, authority, pressure, or legal finality.

> hand over a file > surrender a weapon.

surrender vs sacrifice

sacrifice

give something valuable up to achieve/protect something else.

surrender

yield it.

Kam Chai could:

> sacrifice short-term comfort for his dream without:

> surrendering the dream.

surrender vs compromise

compromise

accept partial concession or middle ground.

surrender

give up resistance/control much more completely.

surrender vs succumb succumb to fail to resist:

* illness

* pressure

* temptation.

surrender to also yield, but more voluntary/active imagery.

> succumb to illness

> surrender to temptation.

surrender vs accept accept neutral recognition/taking of reality.

surrender

suggests previous resistance has ended.

surrender vs release — insurance

surrender a policy

policyholder voluntarily ends the eligible contract.

release broader legal/contract word and not the normal core insurance term for obtaining cash surrender value.

surrender vs cancel — insurance cancel

broad termination of policy by insurer or policyholder under applicable terms.

surrender

especially policyholder voluntarily terminating a cash-value life/annuity-type contract in exchange for any applicable surrender value.

Not all insurance cancellations are “surrenders.”

surrender value vs face value face amount/death benefit specified insurance amount payable on the covered event under terms.

cash surrender value

amount available if an eligible policy is surrendered.

They can differ substantially.

surrender of lease vs assignment

Critical property distinction.

surrender

tenant gives lease back to the holder of the immediate superior interest.

assignment

tenant transfers the lease to another party who takes over the tenant's interest.

UK HMRC guidance explicitly distinguishes a surrender to the immediately superior interest from a disposal to another party that would instead constitute an assignment. ([GOV.UK][2]) surrender vs eviction

surrender

tenant yields tenancy/lease, generally consensually or by legally recognized conduct.

eviction

landlord/legal process removes tenant/recovers possession.

Not synonymous.

surrender vs resign — chess

In chess, the conventional verb is:

> resign

rather than surrender, although ordinary speakers may understand “surrender.”

In many video/strategy games:

> surrender

is conventional UI vocabulary.

AL. GRAMMAR

104. surrender — intransitive

> “The soldiers surrendered.”

No object required.

105. surrender to + person/group

> surrender to the enemy

> surrender to police.

106. surrender to + abstract force

- > surrender to pressure
- > surrender to fear
- > surrender to temptation.

107. surrender + direct object

- > surrender weapons
- > surrender control
- > surrender a lease
- > surrender a policy.

108. surrender X to Y

- > “Surrender the passport to the authorities.”

「把護照交給當局。」

109. surrender oneself to X

Literal:

- > surrender oneself to police

Figurative:

- > surrender oneself to music.

Same structure, very different semantic tone.

110. surrender of + noun

- > surrender of control
- > surrender of rights
- > surrender of a lease
- > surrender of a dream.

This is your passage pattern.

111. surrender to + noun

As noun:

> “Their surrender to the enemy...”

= 他們向敵方投降.

AM. COUNTABILITY

surrender — military act

Can be countable:

> a surrender

> several surrenders

though mass-style use is also common:

> unconditional surrender.

surrender — abstract yielding

Often uncountable:

> total surrender

> emotional surrender.

surrender — legal/insurance act

Countable in context:

> a policy surrender

> a lease surrender.

AN. FAMILY MAP

For your original passage

> “Accept the promotion for now, but treat it not as a surrender of your dream, but as a strategic bridge towards it.”

The exact meaning is:

> accepting the promotion should not be interpreted as admitting defeat and abandoning the café ambition.

The military metaphor is important.

The writer frames two possible interpretations:

> surrender

> “I accepted the corporate promotion, therefore my café dream has lost.”

versus:

> strategic bridge

> “I accepted the promotion temporarily so I can gain money, skills, and time that help me reach the café later.”

So the sentence deliberately turns:

> temporary postponement into something very different from:

> permanent abandonment.

A strong Traditional Chinese rendering would be:

> 「暫時接受升職，不代表你向現實投降、放棄咖啡店夢想；你可以把它視為通往夢想的策略性橋樑。」

For your core database, I would keep 7 principal semantic branches:

1. military/general defeat — stop resisting and submit
2. give oneself up to police/authorities
3. hand over possession, territory, weapons, documents, rights, or control
4. figuratively abandon a dream, principle, hope, independence, etc.
5. surrender to an emotion/pressure/temptation/state — stop resisting it
6. specialist legal/commercial surrender — insurance policy, lease, shares, shipping document
7. games — concede or abandon a hand/match, especially blackjack and modern game interfaces

The distinction most worth preserving is:

> surrender does not merely mean “stop.”

It usually contains the deeper conceptual image:

> there was resistance, possession, control, or commitment — and that resistance/control is now being yielded.
