

Absolutely — thrive is a strong secondary polysemy/family target because your passage uses it here:

> “...I think it will continue to thrive.”

Here thrive means to continue doing very well, growing strongly, and succeeding over time. The word is not highly polysemous, but it has a few important senses across business, people, plants/animals, and conditions that support growth.

Word family: thrive / thriving

Base verb: thrive

Verb forms: thrive, thrives, thrived, thriving

Related adjective/participle: thriving

Part of speech: verb (動詞)

Meaning in your passage: thrive = prosper and continue doing very well — 蓬勃發展；興旺；茁壯發展

Your sentence:

> “...I think it will continue to thrive.”

Here thrive means:

> to continue developing successfully, attracting customers, and remaining strong as a business.

繁體中文：

Important distinction: thrive vs survive

You already have survive mapped.

survive

= continue existing despite difficulty.

thrive

= do more than survive; grow and do very well.

> “The bakery survived.”

> = 麵包店撐過去了 / 存活下來。

> “The bakery thrived.”

> = 麵包店不但撐過去，還蓬勃發展。

This is one of the highest-value contrasts.

Important distinction: thrive vs succeed

You already curated successful / succeed.

succeed

= achieve a goal.

thrive

= continue growing, prospering, and doing very well over time.

> succeed in opening a shop

> = 成功開店

> thrive as a business

> = 作為生意持續興旺發展

Thrive strongly suggests ongoing vitality.

Important distinction: thrive vs grow

grow

= become larger, greater, or more developed.

thrive

= grow/develop well and healthily.

> sales grew

> = 銷售增加了

> the business thrived

> = 生意整體發展得很好

Growth can happen without overall thriving.

Important distinction: thrive vs flourish

flourish

= grow/develop successfully and often impressively.

thrive

= be healthy, strong, and successful.

They overlap strongly.

> thriving business

> = 興旺的生意

> flourishing arts scene

> = 蓬勃發展的藝術圈

Flourish can sound slightly more literary/formal.

Important distinction: thrive vs prosper

prosper

= become financially successful or wealthy.

thrive

= broader:

business, people, plants, communities, systems.

> prosperous company

> = 財務上興旺的公司

> thriving child

> = 健康成長的孩子

You would not normally say a child “prosper” in the same way.

Important distinction: thrive vs bloom

bloom

literally:

= produce flowers

figuratively:

= develop beautifully/confidently

thrive

= grow strongly and successfully

> flowers bloom

> = 花盛開

> plants thrive

> = 植物茁壯生長

Important distinction: thrive in vs thrive on

thrive in + environment

= 在某環境中發展得好

> thrive in warm climates

thrive on + source/condition

= 靠某條件 / 刺激而表現得更好

> thrive on challenge

This is a useful grammar distinction.

Important distinction: thrive does not simply mean become bigger

A business can expand rapidly but still not thrive if:

- * profits fall,
- * customers leave,
- * quality drops,
- * operations become unstable.

So thrive implies:

> healthy, successful overall development

not merely size increase.

Family-extension sweep

After the full audit, the useful modern inventory includes:

- * thrive — business = 興旺 / 蓬勃發展
- * thrive — biological = 茁壯生長
- * thrive — person = 健康發展 / 適應得很好
- * thrive in + environment = 在某環境中發展良好
- * thrive on + condition = 因某條件 / 刺激而表現特別好
- * thriving — business/community = 興旺 / 蓬勃的
- * thriving — biological = 生長茂盛 / 健康的
