

Word family: throw / throws / threw / thrown / throwing / thrower

Base word: throw

Forms: throws, threw, thrown, throwing

Related form: thrower

Part of speech: verb (動詞) / noun (名詞)

Your sentence:

> “I can throw it on over a T-shirt, a shirt, or even a simple dress...”

Meaning in this passage

Here, throw on means to put on a piece of clothing quickly and casually, without much preparation or effort.

繁體中文： 隨手穿上；迅速套上；不花太多心思地穿上

中文翻譯：

> “I can throw it on over a T-shirt...”

「我可以隨手把它套在 / 穿在 T 恤外面.....」

Here:

throw on a jacket = 很快、很隨意地把外套穿上

Because throw on is essential to the exact target sentence, it should be mapped explicitly even though phrasal verbs are normally excluded by default.

1. throw = send something through the air with your hand/arm (投 / 扔) — 扔；擲；投

This is the most basic physical meaning.

Meaning: To use your hand or arm to send an object through the air.

Practice 1

> “She threw the ball to me.”

「她把球扔 / 傳給我。」

Practice 2

> “He threw a stone into the water.”

「他把石頭扔進水裡。」

throw = 用手或手臂把物件從一個位置擲向另一個位置

Common:

- * throw a ball
- * throw a stone
- * throw something at someone
- * throw something to someone

2. throw = move/place something suddenly or carelessly (快速放 / 甩) — 隨手放；扔下；猛地放到

Throw can mean putting or moving something somewhere quickly, forcefully, or without much care.

Practice 3

> “He threw his coat over the chair.”

「他隨手把外套扔在 / 搭在椅子上。」

Practice 4

> “She threw the papers onto the desk.”

「她把文件隨手扔到桌上。」

throw = 快速、隨意或帶力度地把某物放到某個位置

This is broader than literally throwing something through the air.

3. throw on = put on clothing quickly/casually (片語) — 隨手穿上；迅速套上

This is the exact construction in your passage.

Practice 5 — Original

> “I can throw it on over a T-shirt.”

「我可以隨手把它套在 T 恤外面。」

Practice 6

> “She threw on a sweater and went outside.”

「她隨手套上一件毛衣便出門了。」

Practice 7

> “Just throw on a jacket.”

「隨便穿件外套就可以了。」

throw on clothes = 不花時間仔細搭配，而是快速、隨意地穿上

This is a phrasal extension of Meaning 2.

4. throw = cause someone/something to move violently or suddenly (猛推 / 甩出) — 猛地推；拋；甩

Throw can describe causing a person or object to move suddenly because of force.

Practice 8

> “The impact threw him to the ground.”

「撞擊把他摔到地上。」

Practice 9

> “The horse threw its rider.”

「那匹馬把騎手甩了下來。」

throw = 用力量使某人 / 某物突然移位、倒下或被甩出去

This is a major physical extension.

5. throw = cause someone/something to enter a state (使陷入) — 使陷入；使進入某種狀態

**

Throw can be causative with abstract states.

Practice 10

> “The news threw everyone into confusion.”

「這個消息令所有人陷入混亂。」

Practice 11

> “The sudden change threw the plan into doubt.”

「突如其來的改變令計劃陷入不確定狀態。」

Common pattern:

> throw someone/something into + state

Examples:

* throw into confusion

* throw into panic

* throw into chaos

* throw into doubt

throw = 突然令某人 / 某事物進入某種通常不穩定的狀態

This is a major figurative branch.

6. throw = direct something quickly/forcefully toward someone (言語 / 目光等) — 拋出 ; 投向

Abstract things can be “thrown” metaphorically.

Practice 12

> “She threw him a quick glance.”

「她迅速瞥了他一眼。」

Practice 13

> “The reporter threw several difficult questions at him.”

「記者向他拋出了幾個難題。」

throw = 把目光、問題、評論等快速而直接地朝某人送出

For strict counting, I would merge this with the broad send/direct sense rather than count it separately.

7. throw = perform a physical action forcefully (動作) — 揮出 ; 打出 ; 做出

Throw combines with certain action nouns.

Practice 14

> “He threw a punch.”

「他揮出一拳。」

Practice 15

> “She threw her arms around him.”

「她一下子張開雙臂抱住他。」

These uses retain the idea of a sudden, forceful movement.

For core counting, they belong under the physical-movement branch.

8. throw = hold/organize a party or event (活動) — 舉辦 ; 辦

A very common idiomatic verb use:

Practice 16

> “They threw a party for her birthday.”

「他們為她生日舉辦了一個派對。」

Practice 17

> “The company threw a celebration after the launch.”

「公司在產品推出後舉辦了慶祝活動。」 throw a party = 舉辦派對

This is established enough to teach explicitly.

9. throw = deliberately lose a game/fight (比賽) — 故意輸掉；放水

Throw can mean intentionally losing a competition, match, fight, etc., usually dishonestly.

Practice 18

> “He was accused of throwing the match.”

「他被指控故意*放水 / 輸掉比賽*。」

Practice 19

> “They suspected that the game had been thrown.”

「他們懷疑那場比賽有人故意*打假 / 放水*。」 throw a game/match = 故意輸掉比賽，而不是正常競爭下落敗

This is a genuinely distinct modern sense.

10. throw = make pottery on a wheel (陶藝) — 拉坯；用陶輪製作

In pottery, throw means shaping clay on a potter's wheel.

Practice 20

> “She learned how to throw a pot.”

「她學會如何用陶輪*拉坯製作陶器*。」

Practice 21

> “The bowls are individually thrown by hand.”

「這些碗都是逐一用手工陶輪*拉坯製成*的。」 throw = 把黏土放在旋轉陶輪上塑造成器皿

This is a genuine specialist sense and should not be omitted in a comprehensive sweep.

11. throw = operate something suddenly, especially a switch/lever (操作) — 扳動 ; 切換

In mechanical/electrical contexts:

Practice 22

> “He threw the switch.”

「他*扳動 / 切換了*開關。」

Practice 23

> “She threw the lever forward.”

「她把控制桿*猛地推向前*。」

throw a switch/lever = 快速移動機械控制裝置，使其切換狀態

This is established but somewhat domain-specific.

For strict counting, it can remain under sudden physical movement.

12. throw = cast/project light, shadow, etc. (投射) — 投射 ; 映出

Throw can mean causing light or shadow to fall somewhere.

Practice 24

> “The lamp threw a soft light across the room.”

「燈光在房間裡*投下*柔和的光。」

Practice 25

> “The tree threw a long shadow.”

「那棵樹*投下*一道長長的影子。」 throw light/shadow = 使光線或影子投射到某處

This is a figurative/visual extension of “send/project.”

13. throw light on something = clarify (固定表達) — 闡明 ; 使更清楚

Practice 26

> “The new evidence throws light on what happened.”

「新證據*闡明了*事情的經過。」

throw light on = 提供資訊 , 令某件事變得更容易理解

This is a fixed figurative expression, not a separate core sense.

14. a throw = act of throwing (名詞) — 一擲 ; 一次投擲

Practice 27

> “He won with his final throw.”

「他憑最後一次*投擲*獲勝。」

Practice 28

> “That was an excellent throw.”

「那是一次出色的*投擲*。」

This is the straightforward noun counterpart of Meaning 1.

15. a throw = distance something is thrown (投擲距離) — 投擲距離

Practice 29

> “It was a record throw.”

「那是一次創紀錄的*投擲成績 / 距離*。」

For strict counting, this remains under the noun physical-throw branch.

16. a throw = roll/cast of dice (骰子) — 一擲；一次擲骰

Practice 30

> “He won on the final throw of the dice.”

「他在最後一次擲骰子時勝出。」

a throw of the dice = 一次擲骰

This is a common noun use.

17. a throw = wrestling move (摔跤) — 摔技；摔倒動作

Practice 31

> “The wrestler won with a powerful throw.”

「摔跤手以一記有力的摔技取勝。」

throw = 把對手摔倒或拋倒的技術動作

This is a sports-domain noun sense.

18. a throw = small decorative blanket (家居) — 小毯子；裝飾毯

This is an important completely different noun sense.

Practice 32

> “There was a soft throw on the sofa.”

「梳化上放着一張柔軟的小毯子 / 裝飾毯。」

Practice 33

> “She bought a wool throw for the bed.”

「她買了一張羊毛披毯放在床上。」 *throw = 放在梳化、床等上面的較小型裝飾 / 保暖毯子

This absolutely deserves a separate noun branch.

19. *throw = mechanical range of movement (機械) — 行程；擺幅

In engineering/mechanics, throw can mean the distance through which a moving part travels.

Examples include crank or lever throw.

繁體中文： 機械部件的行程、偏移量或擺幅

This is a legitimate specialist sense, but lower priority for a general learner database.

Related form: thrower

A thrower is someone or something that throws.

Practice 34

> “He is an excellent discus thrower.”

「他是一名出色的鐵餅*投擲運動員*。」

Other compounds include:

* javelin thrower

* flame-thrower / flamethrower

Important distinction: *throw vs toss

throw

is the broad word and can involve considerable force.

toss

often suggests a lighter, shorter, more casual throw.

> throw a stone

> toss a coin

They overlap, but toss often sounds lighter.

Important distinction: throw vs drop

throw

involves sending/moving something with force.

drop means let something fall downward.

> throw the keys across the room

> drop the keys on the floor

Very different motion.

Important distinction: throw vs cast

cast

is more formal/literary or specialized.

Common:

* cast a fishing line

* cast a shadow

* cast a vote

throw

is the ordinary physical verb.

> throw a ball

They overlap in some figurative contexts.

Important distinction: throw vs put put means place something somewhere neutrally.

throw

can suggest:

- * speed
- * force
- * carelessness

- > put the coat on the chair
- > throw the coat on the chair

The second sounds much more casual.

This distinction helps explain your target throw on a jacket.

Important distinction: throw on vs put on

put on

= neutral verb for dressing

- > “She put on her jacket.”

throw on

= put it on quickly/casually

- > “She threw on her jacket.”

The clothing action is the same, but throw on adds speed and lack of fuss.

Important distinction: throw vs hurl

hurl

means throw with great force, often violently.

throw

is neutral and much broader.

> throw a ball

> hurl a rock

Grammar note: throw is irregular

Present:

> throw / throws

Past:

> threw

Past participle:

> thrown

-ing:

> throwing

So:

> throw → threw → thrown

Grammar note: throw at vs throw to

This is extremely important.

throw something to someone

usually means you want them to catch it.

> "She threw the ball to me."

throw something at someone

usually means the person is the target.

> “She threw the ball at me.”

The second can sound aggressive.

Countability note

As a noun, throw is countable:

> a throw

> three throws

This applies to:

* sports throws

* dice throws

* wrestling throws

* decorative throws

Context distinguishes them.

Family-extension note

The practical modern family includes:

* throw

* throws

* threw

* thrown

* throwing

* thrower

Important target/fixed constructions include:

* throw on

* throw something into a state

* throw a party

* throw a punch

* throw a switch

- * throw light on
- * throw a game
- * throw the dice

Many other phrasal verbs exist—throw away, throw out, throw up, throw off, throw in, throw oneself into, etc.—but under our operating procedure they should not be mechanically added unless individually targeted or necessary for the source sentence.

Master comparison

Form / sense	MCQ-ready Traditional Chinese meaning
-----	-----
throw — physical object	用手 / 手臂把物件擲向另一位置
throw — place suddenly/carelessly	快速、隨意或帶力度地把某物放到某處
throw on — clothing	快速、隨意地把衣服穿上
throw — force someone/object into movement	用力量令某人 / 某物突然移位、倒下或被甩出
throw into a state	突然令某人 / 某事陷入混亂、恐慌等狀態
throw — direct glance/question/etc.	快速而直接地把目光、問題等投向某人
throw a party	舉辦派對 / 活動
throw a game	故意輸掉比賽；放水
throw — pottery	在陶輪上把黏土拉坯塑形
throw a switch/lever	扳動 / 切換機械控制裝置
throw light/shadow	投射光線或影子
a throw — physical/sport	一次投擲；亦可指投擲距離
throw of dice	一次擲骰
throw — wrestling	把對手摔倒的摔技
throw — blanket	放在床或梳化上的小型裝飾 / 保暖毯
throw — mechanics	機械部件的行程 / 擺幅；專門

For your original sentence

> “I can throw it on over a T-shirt, a shirt, or even a simple dress...”

The exact meaning is:

throw on = 很快速、很隨意地把衣服穿上，不需要特別仔細搭配或準備

So:

> throw on a denim jacket

= 隨手套上一件牛仔外套

This reinforces the speaker's point that the jacket is easy to style.

For your database, I would count 8 genuinely useful core meanings/branches for throw:

1. send an object through the air
2. put/move something somewhere suddenly, forcefully, or casually
3. cause someone/something to move or enter a state
4. host/organize an event — throw a party
5. deliberately lose a game/fight
6. form pottery on a wheel
7. noun — an act/result of throwing, including sports/dice/wrestling
8. noun — a small decorative blanket

I would merge throw a glance/question, throw a punch, throw a switch, throw light/shadow into the physical/directive branches where possible, and keep throw on as the essential target phrasal construction rather than inflate the base count.