> 對某人的信任與肯定

36. vote of confidence vs compliment

compliment

= verbal expression of praise

稱讚

vote of confidence

= action or decision demonstrating trust

信任表示

In the passage, the gift is not merely praise. It symbolizes the sister's belief in the speaker's ability to move forward.

Meaning map

The central concept of vote is:

formally express a choice

From this develop:

Single choice

a vote

→ 一票

Process

hold a vote

→ 投票 / 表決

Verb

vote for/against

→ 投票支持 / 反對

Selection

vote someone in/out

→ 選上 / 罷免

Approval

vote something through

→ 表決通過

Rejection

vote something down

→ 表決否決

The formal-choice concept then becomes figurative:

Support

a vote for something

→ 對某事的支持

Passage

vote of confidence

→ 信任與肯定

And informally:

Preference

I vote for pizza

→ 我選 / 我贊成披薩

Passage recap

> “...the gift felt like more than a present; it felt like a quiet vote of confidence.”

Here:

vote of confidence = an action showing that someone believes in and trusts another person

Best Traditional Chinese:

* 信任的表示

* 一份肯定

* 支持與信任

* figuratively: 一張無聲的信任票

Natural contextual translation:

那份禮物不只是禮物，更像是一種安靜而有力的信任與肯定。

Passage MCQ-ready meaning

vote of confidence

= an expression or action showing trust in someone’s ability, judgment, or future success

信任的表示；支持與肯定

The metaphor is:

> literal vote

> → 我正式選擇支持你

then:

> figurative vote of confidence

> → 我的行動表示「我相信你」

So in the passage, the sister does not literally cast a ballot. The gift itself functions symbolically as a quiet expression of belief in the speaker.
