

Word family: company / companies / company's / company-wide

Base word: company

Plural: companies

Possessive: company's / companies'

Useful extensions/constructions: company event, company policy, company culture, company-wide, keep someone company, have company, enjoy someone's company, in company, good/bad company, keep company with, part company, theatre/dance company, military company

Part of speech: mainly noun (名詞) / noun used attributively in compounds (名詞作修飾語)

Your passage contains:

> “One of the most challenging things I have ever done was giving a formal presentation in English at a company event last year.”

Here, company means:

a business organization that employs people and provides goods or services.

Meaning in this passage

In:

> “a company event”

company refers to the business organization where people work.

The event was organized by, connected with, or held for that organization and its employees.

Meaning: A commercial or professional organization that employs people and carries out business activities.

繁體中文: 從事商業或專業活動、僱用員工並提供產品或服務的企業／公司機構

中文翻譯:

> “One of the most challenging things I have ever done was giving a formal presentation in English at a company event last year.”

「我做過其中一件最具挑戰性的事情，就是去年在一個公司活動上用英文作正式簡報。」

So:

company event = 由公司舉辦、與公司員工或業務有關的活動

Here:

company = 公司／企業機構

1. company = business organization (商業機構) — 公司; 企業

This is the exact core meaning used in your passage.

Meaning: An organization that sells goods or services, employs people, and carries out business activities.

Practice 1 — Original

> “I gave a formal presentation at a company event.”

「我在一個*公司*活動上作正式簡報。」

Practice 2

> “She works for an international technology company.”

「她在一家國際科技*公司*工作。」

Practice 3

> “The company employs more than five thousand people.”

「這家*公司*僱用了五千多名員工。」 company = 從事商業活動、僱用員工並提供產品或服務的企業組織

Common:

* technology company

* insurance company

* construction company

* private company

* international company

* multinational company

2. company + noun (公司相關) — 公司的; 企業內部的

Company is very frequently used before another noun to show that something belongs to, is organized by, or relates to a business organization.

Practice 4

> “We discussed the new company policy.”

「我們討論了新的公司政策。」

Practice 5

> “The presentation took place at a company event.”

「簡報在一個公司活動上進行。」

Common:

* company event = 公司活動

* company policy = 公司政策

* company culture = 公司文化

* company rules = 公司規則

* company website = 公司網站

* company headquarters = 公司總部

* company employees = 公司員工 company + noun = 與某家公司、其業務、員工、政策或活動有關的

This is not a separate lexical meaning of company, but it is a highly productive pattern.

3. company = particular business entity (特定企業) — 該公司; 公司方面

Once the organization has already been identified, the company can refer collectively to the organization itself.

Practice 6

> “The company announced a new strategy.”

「公司方面公布了一項新策略。」

Practice 7

> “The company plans to hire more staff next year.”

「該公司計劃明年增聘員工。」

the company = 語境中已經知道的那家企業／商業機構

In English, a company is often treated as one organizational entity even though many people work within it.

4. company = people working for or representing a business collectively (公司人員／機構整體) — 公司方面; 公司人員

Sometimes company refers not merely to a legal organization but collectively to the people acting for it.

Practice 8

> “The company welcomed the visitors at the entrance.”

「公司方面／公司人員在入口迎接訪客。」

Practice 9

> “The company thanked employees for their hard work.”

「公司方面感謝員工的辛勤工作。」 company = 代表企業作出決定、行動或溝通的管理層／組織整體

This normally does not require a separate dictionary sense from #1, but the Chinese expression often changes naturally to:

* 公司方面

* 公司管理層

* 公司

depending on context.

5. company = companionship / being with other people (陪伴) — 陪伴; 有人作伴

This is a genuinely different meaning.

Here company is normally uncountable.

Meaning: The state of being with another person or other people, especially so that someone is not alone.

Practice 10

> “I was glad to have some company on the long journey.”

「漫長旅程中有人陪伴／作伴，我很高興。」

Practice 11

> “She enjoys his company.”

「她很享受和他相處／有他陪伴。」 company = 與另一個人相處、有人陪伴而不獨處的狀態

This has nothing to do with a business organization.

6. enjoy someone's company (喜歡和某人相處) — 喜歡某人的陪伴

A very common construction.

Practice 12

> “I really enjoy her company.”

「我真的很喜歡跟她相處／享受她的陪伴。」

Practice 13

> “He is quiet, but I always enjoy his company.”

「他雖然很安靜，但我一直都很喜歡和他相處。」 enjoy someone's company = 覺得跟某人相處愉快、舒服或有趣

Notice:

> company

here means companionship, not 「公司」.

7. *keep someone company(陪伴某人) — 陪某人; 給某人作伴***

One of the most important fixed expressions in the family.

Practice 14

> “I stayed to keep her company while she waited.”

「她等候期間, 我留下來*陪她／給她作伴*。」

Practice 15

> “Would you like me to keep you company?”

「你想不想我*陪你一下／給你作伴*？」

*keep someone company = 留在某人身邊陪伴對方, 使對方不用獨處***

This is extremely common everyday English.

8. *have company(有客人／有人陪伴) — 有客人; 有人來訪***

A very common use, especially in North American English.

Practice 16

> “We can’t go out tonight because we’re having company.”

「我們今晚不能出去, 因為*有客人來*。」

Practice 17

> “I didn’t realize you had company.”

「我不知道你*有客人在／有人來訪*。」 *have company = 有訪客、朋友或其他人在家中作客／陪伴***

Here company can refer to visitors collectively.

9. company = visitors/guests collectively (客人) — 訪客; 客人

Closely related to #8.

Practice 18

> “We’re expecting company this evening.”

「我們今晚預計有客人來訪。」

Practice 19

> “The house was full of company all weekend.”

「整個週末屋裡都有很多來訪的親友／客人。」 company = 到某人家中探訪、作客或一起相處的人

This use is especially common in expressions such as:

* have company

* expect company

10. in someone’s company (與某人在一起) — 與某人一起; 在某人陪同下

Practice 20

> “She felt relaxed in the company of close friends.”

「她跟親密朋友在一起時感到很放鬆。」

Practice 21

> “He seemed nervous in the company of senior managers.”

「他跟高層經理相處／同處一個場合時顯得很緊張。」 in the company of someone = 與某人一起、處於某人的陪伴之中

Often slightly more formal than:

> with someone

11. in company (有人在場／與別人一起) — 在有人陪同的情況下

A somewhat formal fixed expression.

Practice 22

> “He behaves differently when he is in company.”

「他有其他人在場時的表現會不同。」

Practice 23

> “She rarely drinks when in company.”

「她和別人在一起時很少喝酒。」

in company = 有其他人在場／與其他人一起, 而不是獨處

This expression is less common in everyday conversation than some other company constructions, but still useful.

12. company = people someone regularly associates with (交往的人) — 交往圈子; 同伴

Here company refers collectively to the people someone spends time with.

Practice 24

> “His parents worried about the company he kept.”

「他的父母擔心他平日交往的朋友／圈子。」

Practice 25

> “Young people can be influenced by the company they keep.”

「年輕人可能會受到自己交往圈子／朋友群的影響。」 company = 某人經常相處、來往或結交的一群人

13. good/bad company(交往對象) — 好／壞的朋友或交往圈子

Practice 26

> “His parents thought some of his friends were bad company.”

「他的父母認為他有些朋友是*不良的交往對象*。」

Practice 27

> “She is excellent company on a long journey.”

「長途旅程中她是一個*很好的旅伴／很好相處的人*。」

This expression can develop in two directions.

bad company

often means:

可能對某人產生不良影響的交往對象

good company

can mean:

相處起來令人愉快、有趣的人

So context matters.

14. someone is good company(某人很好相處) — 是很好的伴; 相處愉快

Practice 28

> “He tells great stories and is always good company.”

「他很會說故事, 而且一直都是個*很好相處、很適合作伴的人*。」

Practice 29

> “She was excellent company during the trip.”

「旅途中她是一位非常好的旅伴／相處很愉快的人。」 be good company = 某人跟別人相處時令人覺得愉快、有趣或舒服

This does not mean:

>  一間好的公司

unless the context is clearly business-related.

15. keep company with someone (與某人交往) — 跟某人來往; 結交

A more traditional expression.

Practice 30

> “He began to keep company with a group of artists.”

「他開始跟一群藝術家來往。」

Practice 31

> “People judged him by the people he kept company with.”

「別人會根據他平日跟甚麼人來往來評價他。」 keep company with someone = 經常跟某人交往、相處或結伴

This sounds more old-fashioned/formal than:

> spend time with or:

> hang out with and should be labelled accordingly.

16. company = group of people together (同伴／一群人) — 一行人; 同行者

A broader, somewhat literary/formal use.

Practice 32

> “A small company of travellers entered the village.”

「一小群旅人／同行者進入村莊。」

Practice 33

> “He joined a company of friends for dinner.”

「他加入了一群朋友一起吃晚飯。」

a company of people = 為某個共同目的、旅程或活動而聚在一起的一群人

This usage is less common in ordinary modern conversation than the business sense.

17. company = theatre/acting group (劇團) — 劇團; 演藝團體

A major established domain-specific meaning.

Practice 34

> “She joined a professional theatre company.”

「她加入了一個專業劇團。」

Practice 35

> “The company is performing Shakespeare this season.”

「這個劇團今季正在演出莎士比亞作品。」 theatre company = 由演員、導演及其他演藝人員組成、共同製作舞台演出的團體

This is not a business company in the ordinary commercial sense, even though some theatre companies may also be legally organized as businesses.

18. dance company (舞團) — 舞蹈團體; 舞團

Practice 36

> “She performs with an international dance company.”

「她在一個國際舞團表演。」

Practice 37

> “The dance company toured Europe last year.”

「這個舞團去年在歐洲巡演。」 dance company = 由專業舞蹈員及相關製作人員組成的表演團體

This belongs to the broader performing-arts company sense.

19. opera/ballet company (歌劇團／芭蕾舞團) — 專業表演團體

Practice 38

> “He works for a national opera company.”

「他在一家國家級歌劇團工作。」

Practice 39

> “The ballet company has dancers from twelve countries.”

「這個芭蕾舞團有來自十二個國家的舞蹈員。」

These are all part of the same underlying meaning:

company = 一群固定合作、共同進行專業表演的人員

They should not be artificially split into separate lexical meanings.

20. company = military unit (軍事單位) — 連; 連隊

A well-established military meaning.

Practice 40

> “He commanded a company of soldiers.”

「他指揮一個連的士兵／連隊。」

Practice 41

> “The company moved into position before dawn.”

「該連隊在黎明前移動到指定位置。」 company = 軍隊中的一個編制單位, 通常由若干排組成

Traditional Chinese military terminology:

> company = 連

This is a clear domain-specific meaning.

21. company commander (連長) — 軍事單位指揮官

A useful compound arising from the military sense.

Practice 42

> “The company commander briefed the soldiers.”

「連長向士兵作出簡報。」

Practice 43

> “She served as a company commander.”

「她曾擔任連長。」 company commander = 負責指揮一個軍事連隊的軍官

This is a compound, not another meaning of bare company.

22. part company (分開; 分道揚鑣) — 分別; 分道揚鑣

A very common fixed expression.

Practice 44

> “We parted company after dinner.”

「晚飯後我們便*分開, 各自離去*。」

Practice 45

> “The two business partners eventually parted company.”

「兩名生意伙伴最後*分道揚鑣, 不再合作*。」 part company = 原本一起的人分開, 或原本合作／有關係的雙方終止共同關係

This can be:

- * literal physical separation;
- * end of a working relationship;
- * end of a partnership.

23. part company with someone over something (意見分歧) — 與某人在某問題上意見不同

A figurative extension of part company.

Practice 46

> “I agree with most of his argument, but I part company with him on this point.”

「我同意他的大部分論點, 但在這一點上我*跟他的看法不同*。」

Practice 47

> “The two researchers part company over how the results should be interpreted.”

「兩位研究人員對結果應如何解讀意見出現分歧。」 part company with someone = 在某個觀點、判斷或原則上不再與某人持相同立場

This is especially useful in academic and formal writing.

24. company-wide (全公司的) — 全公司範圍的

A useful compound.

Practice 48

> “The new policy will be introduced company-wide.”

「新政策會在全公司範圍內推行。」

Practice 49

> “The organization held a company-wide meeting.”

「該機構舉行了一次全公司會議。」 company-wide = 涉及或適用於整家公司所有部門／員工的

It can function as:

* adjective;

* adverb.

25. company-owned (公司擁有的) — 公司所有的

Another useful business compound.

Practice 50

> “Employees can use company-owned equipment.”

「員工可以使用公司擁有的設備。」

Practice 51

> “The vehicle is company-owned.”

「這輛車是公司所有的。」 company-owned = 所有權屬於公司的, 而不是屬於私人工人的

26. company car (公司車輛) — 公司提供的汽車

Practice 52

> “Senior managers are given a company car.”

「高層經理會獲公司提供一輛公司車／公務車。」

Practice 53

> “He uses his company car for business trips.”

「他出差時使用公司提供的汽車。」 company car = 由公司擁有或租用, 並提供員工作用途的汽車

This is a transparent compound, so it does not represent a new lexical sense of company.

27. company culture (公司文化) — 企業文化

A highly useful business compound.

Practice 54

> “The new manager wants to change the company culture.”

「新經理希望改變公司文化／企業文化。」

Practice 55

> “A supportive company culture can improve employee retention.”

「良好的企業文化可以提升員工留任率。」 company culture = 一家公司內共同形成的價值觀、工作方式、行為規範及人際互動模式

28. company policy (公司政策) — 公司規定; 企業政策

Practice 56

> “Working from home is allowed under company policy.”

「按照公司政策／公司規定，員工可以在家工作。」

Practice 57

> “The decision was consistent with company policy.”

「這項決定符合公司政策。」 company policy = 公司正式訂立、用來規範員工行為或業務運作的原則／規定

29. company name (公司名稱) — 商號／公司名稱

Practice 58

> “Please enter the company name on the form.”

「請在表格上填寫公司名稱。」

Practice 59

> “The business changed its company name after the merger.”

「企業合併後更改了公司名稱。」 company name = 某家企業正式或商業上使用的名稱

30. company town (企業主導的城鎮) — 公司城鎮; 企業主導社區

A useful historical/business compound, though less common than the core senses.

Practice 60

> “The settlement began as a mining company town.”

「這個聚居地最初是一個由礦業公司建立的公司城鎮。」

Practice 61

> “Most residents of the company town worked for the same employer.”

「這個企業主導的城鎮中，大部分居民都為同一僱主工作。」 company town = 某家公司在當地經濟、就業、房屋或公共生活中佔主導地位的城鎮

This is a useful compound rather than another bare-word meaning.

Important distinction: company = business vs company = companionship

This is the biggest lexical contrast.

Business:

> “She works for a software company.”

= 她在一家軟件公司工作。

Companionship:

> “I enjoy her company.”

= 我很喜歡跟她相處／享受她的陪伴。

Same spelling, completely different concept.

Important distinction: company vs business

These often overlap but are not identical.

company

usually refers to an organization:

> “She owns a small company.”

「她擁有一家小公司。」 business

can mean:

1. a company;
2. commercial activity generally;
3. matters/work to be dealt with.

> “Business is improving.”

= 生意正在好轉。

So:

company = 企業組織本身

business = 可指企業, 也可指商業活動／生意

Important distinction: company vs corporation

company

is a broad everyday word for a business organization.

corporation

usually has a more specific legal/institutional sense, especially in jurisdictions where incorporation creates a legally separate entity.

Therefore:

> every corporation can broadly be called a company in everyday language,

but:

> not every organization casually called a company is necessarily being described with the precise legal meaning of corporation.

For ordinary learners:

company = 公司／企業

corporation = 公司法人／大型公司, 實際法律含義視地區制度而定

Important distinction: company vs firm

company

is very broad and applies across industries.

firm

is especially common for professional or commercial organizations such as:

- * law firms;
- * accounting firms;
- * consulting firms;
- * investment firms.

Compare:

> software company

very natural > law firm

especially natural

So the words overlap, but their typical collocations differ.

Important distinction: company vs organization

organization

is much broader.

It can include:

- * companies;
- * charities;
- * government bodies;
- * clubs;
- * international institutions.

company

normally refers to a business organization.

Therefore:

> A charity is an organization, but normally not a company unless its legal structure specifically makes that description appropriate.

Important distinction: company vs employer

company

= the organization itself employer

= the person or organization that employs someone

Compare:

> “I work for a large company.”

「我在一家大公司工作。」

> “My employer provides health insurance.”

「我的僱主提供醫療保險。」

The same organization may be both your company and your employer, but the words focus on different relationships.

Important distinction: company vs colleague*

company

= organization

colleague

= a person you work with

Your original sentence includes both concepts:

> “a company event”

= 公司活動

and:

> “two hundred colleagues”

= 二百位同事

Do not confuse:

>  my companies

when you mean:

>  my colleagues

Important distinction: company = companionship vs companion

company

usually describes the state or experience of being with someone:

> “I enjoy his company.”

= 我喜歡跟他相處。 companion

is a person or animal who accompanies someone:

> “He was my travelling companion.”

= 他是我的旅伴。

So:

company = 陪伴／相處

companion = 陪伴你的人／同伴

Although the words are historically related, they function as separate modern lexical items.

Important distinction: have company vs have a company

The article changes the meaning dramatically.

have company

= have visitors / not be alone

> “We have company tonight.”

「我們今晚有客人來。」

have a company

= own/run a business organization

> “She has a company in Singapore.”

「她在新加坡有一家公司。」

This is excellent MCQ material.

Important distinction: a company vs company

Countability matters.

Business organization

Normally countable:

> a company

> two companies

> many companies

Companionship

Normally uncountable:

> “I enjoy her company.”

Not:

> ✗ “I enjoy a company.”

when you mean companionship.

Visitors

Often uncountable collective use:

> “We have company.”

= 有客人

So countability helps identify the intended meaning.

Important distinction: company event vs public event

company event

= connected specifically with one company and typically its employees, clients, partners, etc.

public event

= open or directed to the general public

Your presentation was at:

> a company event

which suggests an internal or company-related professional setting, not necessarily an event open to everyone.

Important distinction: company vs team

Your passage contains both.

company

= the wider business organization team

= a smaller group of people working together toward a shared task or function

Your supervisor asked you to:

> “represent the team”

at:

> “a company event”

So structurally:

team → part of the company in this context.

Important distinction: theatre company vs business company

business company

> “She works for a technology company.”

= 商業公司 theatre company

> “She performs with a theatre company.”

= 劇團

The second is defined by a group of performers working together, not primarily by the commercial-business meaning.

A theatre company may legally operate as a business, but the lexical meaning focuses on the performing group.

Important distinction: company = military unit

In military English:

> company

does not mean a commercial organization or companionship.

It refers to a particular military formation:

> “a company of soldiers”

= 一個連／連隊

Learners should recognize this because it occurs frequently in:

* history;

* news;

* military films;

* biographies.

Important distinction: keep someone company vs keep company with someone

These look similar but mean different things.

keep someone company

= stay with someone so they are not alone

> “I stayed to keep her company.”

「我留下來陪她。」

keep company with someone

= regularly associate/socialize with someone

> “He keeps company with artists.”

「他經常跟藝術家來往。」

The second expression is more old-fashioned/formal.

Important distinction: part company — physical separation vs disagreement

Physical/relationship separation

> “We parted company at the station.”

= 我們在車站分開了。

Opinion disagreement

> “I part company with him on this issue.”

= 我在這個問題上跟他的看法不同。

Same expression, figuratively extended.

Word-family note: company vs companion / accompany

Words such as:

* companion

* companionship

* accompany are historically and semantically related to company, especially around the concept of being together.

However, under the Golden Manual's disciplined family rule, I would not present them as simple derived forms of modern company.

They function as separate lexical items.

They can be cross-referenced when useful:

> company = 陪伴／相處

> companion = 同伴 > companionship = 陪伴關係／有人作伴的感覺 > accompany = 陪同／伴隨

but they should not be misleadingly labelled as additional “meanings” of company.

Family-extension sweep

The practical company family itself is relatively small morphologically.

Its learning richness comes mainly from:

1. distinct noun meanings;
2. countability differences;
3. compounds;
4. fixed expressions.

Useful items include:

* company — business = 公司／企業

* company + noun = 公司相關的

* company event = 公司活動

* company policy = 公司政策

* company culture = 公司文化

* company car = 公司提供的汽車

* company-wide = 全公司範圍的

* company-owned = 公司所有的

* company name = 公司名稱
 * company town = 企業主導的城鎮
 * company — companionship = 陪伴／有人作伴
 * enjoy someone's company = 喜歡跟某人相處
 * keep someone company = 陪伴某人
 * have company = 有客人／有人來訪 * expect company = 預計有客人來
 * in someone's company = 與某人在一起
 * company someone keeps = 某人的交往圈子
 * good/bad company = 好相處的人／不良交往對象
 * keep company with = 與某人來往(較傳統)
 * company of people = 一群同行／聚集的人
 * theatre company = 劇團
 * dance company = 舞團
 * opera/ballet company = 歌劇團／芭蕾舞團
 * military company = 連／連隊 * company commander = 連長
 * part company = 分開／終止合作
 * part company with someone on an issue = 在某問題上意見不同

There is no need to manufacture a large derivational family.

The major semantic branches are better understood as:

> business organization

> companionship / people one is with

> visitors

> group of performers

> military unit

Master comparison

Form / sense	MCQ-ready Traditional Chinese meaning
-----	-----
company — business organization	從事商業或專業活動、僱用員工並提供產品／服務的企業組織
company + noun	表示某事物屬於、由某家公司舉辦或與該公司的業務／員工有關
the company — organization collectively	語境中已知的企業機構及代表該機構行動的公司方面
company — companionship	與另一個人／其他人在一起、有人作伴而不獨處的狀態

enjoy someone's company	覺得跟某人相處愉快、舒服或有趣
keep someone company	留在某人身邊陪伴對方, 使對方不用獨處
have company	有訪客、朋友或親友到來作客／陪伴 company — visitors	到某人家中探訪、作客或一起相處的人
in someone's company	與某人一起、處於某人的陪伴之中 company someone keeps	某人平日經常相處、來往或結交的一群人
bad company	可能對某人產生不良影響的朋友或交往對象
be good company	跟別人相處時令人感到愉快、有趣或舒服
keep company with	經常與某人交往或相處, 較傳統／正式
a company of people	為共同活動、旅程或目的聚在一起的一群人
theatre company	由演員、導演等共同製作舞台演出的專業劇團
dance company	由專業舞蹈員及相關製作人員組成的舞團
opera/ballet company	共同製作歌劇／芭蕾舞演出的固定專業團體
military company	軍隊中的一個編制單位; 連／連隊 company commander	負責指揮一個軍事連隊的軍官; 連長
part company — separate	原本一起或合作的人／組織分開、不再共同前進或合作
part company — disagree	在某項觀點、判斷或原則上不再與另一人持相同立場
company-wide	涉及或適用於整家公司所有部門或員工的
company-owned	所有權屬於公司的, 而不是私人所有的
company culture	公司內共同形成的價值觀、工作方式、行為規範及互動模式 company policy	公司正式訂立、用來規範員工或業務運作的政策／規則 company car	由公司擁有或租用並提供員工作工作用途的汽車 company town	某家公司在當地就業、經濟或社區生活中佔主導地位的城鎮

For your original passage

> “One of the most challenging things I have ever done was giving a formal presentation in English at a company event last year.”

The exact meaning is:

company = 從事商業／專業活動並僱用你和其他同事工作的企業組織

Therefore:

> company event

= 「由公司舉辦、與公司員工或公司業務有關的活動」

In your context, this meaning is reinforced by the later details:

* around two hundred colleagues attended;

- * several senior managers were there;
- * your supervisor asked you to participate;
- * you represented your team;
- * you presented a work project.

So the organizational relationship is roughly:

- > company
- > ↓
- > teams / departments
- > ↓
- > supervisor + colleagues

Your original:

- > company event

therefore means:

公司為員工／相關人士舉辦的正式工作活動

The most important learner contrast is:

- > a company event

= 公司活動

but:

- > I enjoy your company

= 我喜歡跟你相處／享受你的陪伴

and:

- > We have company tonight.

= 我們今晚有客人來。

and:

- > a theatre company

= 劇團

and:

> a company of soldiers

= 一個連／連隊

So company is a particularly good example of why learners should not memorize only:

> company = 公司

The same word can shift from business organization → companionship → visitors → social associates → performing group → military unit, with countability and collocation helping identify the intended sense.